Back From Camping Trip—J. H. Lovendale and his brother Theodore with their families have returned from an extended fishing trip in Summit county. They brought with them a large quantity of fine trout which they distributed among their friends as evidence of their skilful Walton propensities. As a general rule fishermen report poorer fishing in all the canyons this season on account of the men report poorer fishing in all the canyons this season on account of the comparatively high water, but the Lovendales were up close to the headwaters of the Weber, where the water was less turbulent and they say that fishing there has been good all season. They noted hee formations an inch thick during the first week in August, and all garden vegetables were frozen, tomatoes and potatoes especially being greatly damaged, they say.

The BUTTE GOES TO SECOND PLACE

Salt Lake Now in the Lead For High Price of Living.

BUT TRUST SUPREME.

It is Declared to Raise Prices an Occasional 10 Per Cent Just to See Its Victims Jump.

That Salt Lake is fully entitled to receive from the city of Butte the belt for living under a system of mony taking for necessities that surasses all other human efforts, is the conclusion of the Boise Statesman, which prints a dispatch from Guy Flenner, an associated editor, who is in Salt Lake sending telephone bullshis paper on account of the phers' strike. The dispatch telegraphers'

If you lived in Salt Lake now, either If you lived in Salt Lake now, either at hotel, restaurant or at home, sweet home, you would, to use a vernacular expression, be "stong." You would be stung deeply and the local provision trust would do it to you. After you had pulled its stinger out of your body you would discover a large hole had been made in your pocketbook, for that is the article that the trust's sharp prong never fails to penetrate. Butte for a long time held the record for high prices, but today it must pass the belt over to the City of the Saints. The elevation of prices by the combination has been followed by a similar increase by Salt Lake's restaurants, and, following this lead, the hotels have also boosted the prices until it is impossible to get even a until it is impossible to get even a mean little room for less than $1 or $1.50 a night, and if one desires to live in a half-way respectable place in point of comfort the price runs up to $3.50 a day for the room, with a bath. So far the boarding houses have not increased the price, but have done what is worse—diminished the visible supply of food, which, God knows, was small enough before. All but one of Salt Lake's hotels are run on the was small enough before. All but one of Salt Lake's hotels are run on the European plan, so the increase of rates at the eating places affects both the traveling public and the local people who either board from choice or from compulsion, having found the cost of housekeeping altogether out of the question. No matter whether the hotel rate be $1 or $3.50, it means nothing but a room. The patron can always figure on double that price per day for meals. If he live in a poorly furnished dollar room he will be more apt to cat at the lowest price restaurants, which will cost him a couple of dollars a day, while if he secure more costly sleeping apartments he will due more expensively—and if anyone can more expensively—and if anyone can get a thing desirable to eat in a Salt Lake restaurant for less than a $1 a meal he is either afflicted with dys-pepsia or is a dear friend of the waiter.

Complaints are general among the Complaints are general among the citizens who have establishments of their own. The traveling public does not kick so much, because the traveling public is accustomed to being muleted by everybody, from the czar of the Pullman car to the young woman who officiates with broom and duster around the hotel rooms. The local trust is damned up one side and down the other, but it continues along the even tenor of its way and occasionally raises the price 10 per occasionally raises the price 10 per cent or more, apparently for no other reason than to see its victims jump. Utah is said to have an anti-trust law, but it has no one to enforce it. The gov-ernor of the state does not seem to be interested, and his attorney general prefers the comforts of an easy office chair to a tussel with the octopus. Meanwhile, while the officers sit idly by, the local combination of butcher and baker and candlestick-maker goes on milking the public dry. Just how long the workingman of Salt Lake will long the workingman of Salt Lake will be able to stand this constant increase in the price of necessities is problematical. Of course he can eat less. To be sure, the eating houses do a thriving business in the face of the ridiculously high prices. There is a reason for it—the tourist rade, not the wealthy tourist particularly, for he is not in evidence this year so much as he has been, but the ordinary tourist, who is enticed westward by cheap rates and who can get a free ticket from Ogden to Salt Lake and return. The tourists arrive in Salt Lake every from Ogden to Salt Lake and return. The tourists arrive in Salt Lake every day during the season by the trainload. They have to eat and the restaurant keepers, with a smile that is childlike and bland, greets them with his inflated bill of fare. They pay the price and pass on. Between the excuse offered that the provision trust is constantly raising the cost, and the fact that the town is filled with "easy" tourists, the local Boniface does not hesitate to also grind the last cent out nesitate to also grind the last cent out

PRUSSIAN FARMING.

Methods Used to Obtain Large Returns From Small Areas

Consul H. J. Dunlap, of Cologne, transmits the following report of his onsular district:

This district which comprises the greater part of Rhenish Prussia, has a large area devoted to grain growing and is also the principal vine-growing district of Germany. The wine shipped to the United States is sold under the name of Rhine, Mosel and Ahr wine, according to the stream on whose borders it is produced. The district has many manufacturing centers whose population necessarily requires great quantities of vegetables for sustenance, which diminishes the area of tenance, which diminishes the area of tillable land that could be devoted to grains and grasses. The farms are generally small, probably averaging 7½ acres each, and the space devoted to any kind of grain is restricted. It is no unusual thing to see a plat divided into strips a rod wide and 40 or more rods long on which are growing alternately wheat, rye, barley, oats, potatoes, clover, alfalfa, and vegetables. The ceultivation is all by hand and is very intensive. Two crops are grown each year and a system of rotation prevails. Everything that will make fertilizer is saved and applied. The highways are swept in summer and scraped in winter and the dust and mud utilized for fertilizing purposes. Nothing goes to waste, and there are no spots where weeds have possession. All the soil that will not produce grain or vegetables—and there is a great deal of that kind in Germany—is planted with some kind of forest tree, spruce prevailing. Rye is the prevailing grain, with wheat next. No great amount of oats, barley, flax, or buckwheat is produced. The grain grown is all consumed at home, but falls far short of supplying the demand. Sugar beets are also grown. tillable land that could be devoted to

TIMELY INFORMATION

The Jamestown exposition at Norfolk, Va., in its completeness, is, indeed, a handsome spectacle. Located, as it is, overlooking Hampton Roads, a short distance from Norfolk and Portsmouth, near Old Point Comfort, Hampton and Newport News, in a region full of historic interest and places; in a state which has always been a battleground; emphasizes the wisdom of its projectors, who, knowing the patriotic fervor of the great American people, also knew that they would generously patronize this most unique of expositions. This is the first great exposition to be held at the seaside, in a beautiful country, and within the center of a populous civilization. The potency of the combination is obvious. Delegate, soldier, sailor, diplomat, and civilian meet there to commemorate the three hundredth anniversary of the nation's birth.

The Eric railroad offers to the exposition visitor an excellent train service with close connections at Marion, O., Peoria, O., Mansfield, O., Youngstown, O., Olean, N. Y., Elmira, N. Y., Waverly, N. Y., and New York City.

A daily through sleeping car line is operated from Chicago on Eric train No. 8, leaving at 9:39 p. m., to Marion, O., via Hocking Valley to Columbus, thence Norfolk and Western train, leaving Columbus 8:90 a. m., arriving Norfolk 8:30 following morning.

The Eric equipment is comprised of comfortable, high back seat day coaches, the best Pullman drawing room sleeping cars, and Eric dining and cafe cars operated on the European plan; you simply pay for what you order.

Tickets can be purchased going one-way via New York, returning direct, or reading going and returning via New York and rail or steamer.
