POPE PIUS DEFINES HIS ATTITUDE.

Catholic Writers Must Abstain From Antagonized Views of the Holy See on Leading Subjects

MUST SUBMIT ALL WRITINGS

On Religion, Christian Morals, Natural Ethics, and Mere Technical Matters to the Bishop's Censorship.

Rome, Dec. 21 .- Tonight's Observatore Romane, the vatican organ, publishes an important document signed by the pope on the action of the Catholic laity, which is said to be rendered necessary by the proceedings of the recent Catholic congress at Bologna, which showed such opposite tendencies of the Catholic conservatives and the Catholics democrats.

His holiness remarks that divergent views in field practise cause divergencles in that theory, so essential to the strengthening of the principles which must direct Catholic action. The document quotes 19 articles and rules taken from the encyclicals of the late Pope Leo on the subject of instructions to congregations, the following being most important:

the most important:

"Christian democrats must entirely abstain in Italy from participating in any political actions, which in the present circumstances and for reasons of a very high order are interdicted."

Thus the pope destroys all hope entertained by the liberal elements in the Catholic party that they would be allowed to participate in the political life of the country.

Other important rules mentioned are for the direction of Catholic writers, who must abstain from antagonizing the views of the holy see on leading subjects. They must submit all writings concerning religion, Christian morings concerning religion, Christian mor-als and natural ethics to the censorship of their bishops, and they are con-strained to do this even in the case of publications on mere technical subjects. In the case of differences of opinion among Catholics, instead of making these differences public in the news-papers, they must submit them to the ecclesiastical authorities, who will pass

These rules have greatly dampened the enthusiasm of those who hoped that the present pontificate would be more liberal than the last one.

pected that he will assume active service.

M. Mercier's report, it is believed, not only establishes that Dreyfus is innocent of writing the bordereau, but dwells with emphasis on the modification of M. Gribelin, keeper of the war office records, of his testimony before the council at Rennes. M. Grizelin then swore that Dreyfus was guilty, while the modification of his testimony now indicates that the alleged treason was committed by Col. Henry, who was at the time chief of the intelligence department of the ministry of war.

The social functions of the week will be few, excepting those to take place on Christmas day. The previous days will be teo busily filled with shopping will be too busily filled with shopping and other preparations for the great Christian holiday to give thought or time to social activities. Right here a pertinent application of the spirit of the time may be made in relation to shopping. In the local stores is a small army of employes whose task it is to minister to the multifarious needs and demands of Christmas shoppers. Their hours through the season's rush are long, and the serious strain upon their physical strength and patience unquestionable. It would be a fire application its Happy Vagaries Enable it to Suit Every Human Condition.

CALIFORNIA CLIMATE,

The climatic conditions of California The climatic conditions of California when closely considered, upset completely all one's preconceived notions of the relation between latitude and temperature. The latitude of San Diego, the southern city of the State, is about that of Charleston, South Carolina, while Los Angeles lies a little farther south than Memphis, Tennessee. The northern line of California is on the same parallel with Boston, Massachusetts.

From these facts one is apt to conclude that although Southern California may have a subtropical climate, adapted to the growth of citrus fruits, yet the northern part of the State the rigorous winters of the North Atlantic States or of Iowa or Nebraska on the upper Mississippi. This is, however, very far from being the case. Four hundred miles north of Los Angeles and five hundred north of San Diego the summers are warmer and the winters but little more severe than in the cities named. All along the coast the climate is cool during the summer, with considerable low fog near the ocean, which during the day floats up to the summits of the Coast Range. This gives an abundance of moisture and an equable temperature. During winter this belt is almost frost-less, and the rainfall is, except in the extreme south, from twenty-five to fifty inches annually.

The valley belt, extending six hundred miles paralled to the coast, is quite warm through the summer, with scarcely any rain from May to October. In winter it is colder than on the coast, with much rain.

In many of the northern valleys the palms, fig and olive find a congental home, while the orange and lemon reach perfection, ripening from four to six weeks earlier than in the more southern countries.

outhern countries.

The tourist who is in search of either health or pleasure can in California select his climate at any period of the year. A winter at Monterey with a sum mer on the Sierras will secure a most delightful and healthy climate during the entire year.

By carefully selecting the location one can find plenty of land adapted to any kind of agricultural or horticul iral pursuit, where with industry and economy he can build up a comfortable, self-sustaining home.

City Superintendent of Schools Christensen is highly gratified that fifty-two of the eight-six graduates of the High school of the year 1902 are attending or are going to attend, college. This is certainly a most remarkable and gratifying showing. It would be hard to equal anywhere in the land. At the same time, while sixty per cent of the High school graduates are going to have a college education, it is a lamentable fact that no more than one scholar in 151, less than one per cent of the children of Salt Lake are having even a High school education; in other words, that sixty per cent of the High school graduates are having the advantages of a college education, that less than one per cent of common school variety. less than one per cent of common school pupils are enjoying the advan-tages of a high school education. While we are congratulating the sixtieth part of one per cent, is it not wise to think of the great majority who are missing educational opportunities? Sixty per cent of our high school graduates appear to appreciate more education. What must be the tremenduous lack of appreciation on the retrieval. appreciation on the part of the great percentage, the ninety-nine per cent, who do not even have a high school education. Is Salt Lake really to be con-gratulated on this condition? We have

For those people who are unable to enjoy the larger advantages of a high school or college education, the opportunities offered by our Encyclopaedia club are very great, inasmuch as one can continue by home study on and self-can continue by home study and self culture work left off at school.

The need of this is very clearly shown by the following figures:

Does Salt Lake really appreciate high er education? Less than one per cent of Salt Lake people appreciate the value of the high school. These figures show a very evident bad judgment either on the part of the people who take the higher education in colleges, or those who are content with not even a high school education
