EVENING NEWS.

Wednesday - - May 1, 1878.

BOX ELDER STAKE CONFERENCE.

The Quarterly Conference of the Box Elder County Stake of Zion convened in the Public Hall at Brigham City, 10 o'clock a.m., April 27, 1878.

There were present on the stand Of the Twelve Apostles, W. W. Woodruff and Lorenzo Snow; the Presidency of the Stake, O. G. Snow, E. A. Box and Isaac Smith; Patriarch, Wm. Box; the Bishops and leading officers from many of the wards of the Stake.

Singing and prayer.

The statistical report of the Stake, also reports from Female Relief Societies and Young Ladies Mutual Improvement Associations, financial and statistical, were read by the clerk.

President O. G. Snow presented the authorities of the Church and Stake, all of whom were unanimously sustained.

Brief verbal reports of the various departments of home industries were made by the superintendents. The Tannery department was not well supplied with hides. Boot and Shoe department had 28 hands employed; the weekly products were nearly $700; had but a scant supply of leather on hand. Hat department was very prosperous. The Silk department had 1,400 mulberry trees planted three or four years ago, which were in general good condition; 2 000 young trees to plant on hand. The Farming department, some farms were paying well, other farms had sustained large losses; the Portage Farm, last year, had 500 acres of grain destroyed by grasshoppers, and this past winter the same amount of grain had been killed by frost on that farm. The Harness department is a flourishing condition. The Butcher department would shortly be able to supply all the employees with a sufficient amount of fresh meat. The Wagon department was paying a fair profit.

Singing and benediction.

9 p.m.

Singing and prayer.

The Carpenter department had 18 hands employed, were at work on the Woolen Factory and in ten days more it would be ready for the machinery. The Cotton farm, prosperous. The Brush department in good order, with nearly $400 worth of an excellent article of brushes. The Nursery department had furnished over 1,000 mulberry trees to the Relief Societies, etc. The Tin department had had paid a fair dividend from its organization. The Lumber department was in a satisfactory condition. The two dairies were just commencing the season's business, with a good prospect of having a sufficient number of cows. The Mason department had about 30 hands employed, and were doing good and substantial work for the people. The Blacksmith, Furniture and several other departments were not reported. Favorable reports were made on the Indian Farm and on the Young Men's Mutual Improvement Associations.

Singing and benediction.

10 a. m. 28th.

Singing and prayer.

Elder W. W. Woodruff addressed the meeting, on the necessity of continued labor in and the extension of co-operation, on silk culture; saving and storing of grain; preparing to meet the events which are coming according to the revelations of God; rearing of Temples; work for the dead; and accomplishing the work assigned the Latter-day Saints. His remarks were highly instructive and interesting, and were listened to with marked attention by the congregation.

Singing, benediction.

Singing and prayer.

The Sacrament was administered.

Elder Lorenzo Snow delivered a powerful discourse on the United Order, quoting largely from the revelations of the Lord as contained in the Doctrine and Covenants. He depicted the benefits arising from its adoption practically, and the consequences resulting from its rejection; read the history of Job and he could readily imagine a coincidence in the serious losses which had befallen co operative institutions the past few months; it was everyone's duty to acknowledge the hand of the Lord in all things, His anger is only kindled against such who do not [illegible] remarks were reported in full by Bro. G. F. Gibbs.

Elder W. W. Woodruff bore testimony to the remarks made, and said those things were true and faithful, and asked God to bless the Saints in their co-operative labors.

Conference adjourned for three months.

Singing, benediction.

JAMES EYMATER, Clerk.

A Brave Miner.

Some time ago, Jack Kermeen, foreman of the Hamburg mine, had just gone down on the 450 level of the mine, on his usual round of inspection, when his attention was called to a man crawling out of an 80-foot winze, who fell fainting as soon as he reached the floor of the drift. Jack rushed to the man, found him insensible, and saw at once that it was a case of foul air, and it flashed across his mind that there were more miners in the bottom of that drift. To rush to another portion of the mine and summon assistance, grab a rope, hurry back and start down the wings ladder was but the work of a moment. Reaching the bottom he found them lying in a stupor and insensible. He attached the rope to the body of one of them, sang out to the miners who had gathered at the mouth of the wing to haul away, which they did with a will, and soon landed it on top. The operation was repeated with the other two, and then Jack, dizzy and faint, climbed out, his temples throbbing with pain and nearly overcome himself.

Some time ago Jack was working in the Alta Mine, putting in a blast at the bottom of the 90 foot winze, in company with a brother miner. Everything being ready to fire it, his companion lit the fire, and both started up the ladder, Jack ahead. He had climbed about 20 feet when his partner shouted that he was about to faint. Without a moment's hesitation Jack skipped back, and just as the man relaxed his hold succeeded in grabbing a death grip to his shirt. It was a fearfully heavy burden, the man weighing 200 pounds; but, putting forth all his muscular energies, he slowly climbed the ladder, round by round, the insensible miner unembarrassing his progress by his contortions. It was almost certain death unless he succeeded in getting out of reach of the explosion, and his progress seemed to be painfully slow; but he hung on and was within ten feet of the top before the blast went off—a sufficient distance to place him and his load out of harm's way. Half a dozen rounds more brought him to the surface of the drift, where he deposited the man and fell exhausted beside him.—Eureka Sentinel.
