

EVENING NEWS. Saturday, June 16, 1893.

FLOATING FRAGMENTS.

Salt Lake is having a boom in the line of amusements of the very highest class of the "divine" and historic arts.

The regular monthly meeting of the Sevens of the 1st Ward will be held on Monday evening next, at 7:30, at the residence of Wm. Henders.

The regular monthly meeting of the 14th Quorum of Elders will be held in the Court House, on Monday evening, June 18th, at 7:30 o'clock. J. H. KILSON, Clerk.

The bakers and butchers will play their baseball match on Monday night, June 18th, at 8 o'clock. All are invited to witness the contest. C. PEVEY, Secretary.

The Miss Quorum of Sevens of the Eleventh Ward will hold a meeting in the schoolhouse on Monday evening, June 18th, commencing at 7:30 o'clock. As this will meet in this capacity a full attendance is desired. A. McMASTER, Secretary.

The Enquirer says about the last of the victims of the Utah Lake disaster: The procession that conveyed the bodies to the cemetery consisted of eighty carriages and wagons, and about 600 persons. Five graves were dug, and the departed ones were lowered were all in close proximity; the coffins were all covered into the graves simultaneously, and one dedicatory prayer was offered for all.

Mr. White, a private in the cavalry company of Fort Boise, was killed to death by a horse several days ago. He was found with his skull crushed and brains coming out, and taken to quarters, where he died the following day. He retained consciousness for several hours after getting hurt, and said he was thrown, his foot hung in the stirrup, and he was kicked in the manner mentioned above.—Boise Democrat.

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

TO THE PRESIDENTS OF STAKES AND THE BISHOPS OF WARDS.

Our attention has been called to the proposition of Dr. Elvira S. Barney, one of our sisters who resides in this city, who has for a number of years past devoted her attention to medical studies, and has had the advantage of studying in the best medical colleges in the United States—to teach a class of her sex in obstetrics and diseases of women, including lectures on anatomy, physiology, materia medica, surgery and practice. We understand she offers to take twenty-five students, and, for the sum of $2 per week, provide furnished rooms, beds, fuel and light, also a cook and washwoman for them, on condition that they bring with them or furnish their own provisions.

Sister Barney is deeply interested in the spread among her own sex of the knowledge and skill which she has acquired, and having a large house in the city already well furnished, she is able to make this very liberal and advantageous offer, charging nothing for her teaching, and only requiring remuneration for actual expenses.

We should have efficient nurses and skillful lady physicians in our settlements. There is no doubt that many valuable lives have been lost for the want of the knowledge and skill which are now placed in this proposition of Sister Barney's within the reach of all who choose to avail themselves of it. With these advantages there exists no further necessity for mothers and children to be entrusted to the care of ignorant, unskilled or incompetent nurses or midwives.

We therefore suggest to the Presidents of Stakes and the Bishops of the various Wards, where they do not have properly trained persons of this character, that this opportunity to have some suitable persons from their settlements receive this instruction should be embraced. There may be each Ward a suitable person or persons who have sufficient means to pay their own expenses, but in the event of such persons not being available, we suggest that it would be a wise movement for the Bishop or the President to make such arrangements as are necessary to enable them at this school, until they become fully competent to perform all the services required by their own sex under all circumstances of sickness. The expense is very light, and if such instruction be obtained it will no doubt be the means of preserving and prolonging life.

JOHN TAYLOR, GEORGE C. CANNON, JOSEPH F. SMITH, First Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Special Meetings.—On Saturday and Sunday, June 23d and 24th, Mill Creek Ward House, special meetings will be held for the district embracing Mill Creek, East Mill Creek, Sugar House and Farmer's Wards.

The first meeting will be at 6:30 p.m. on Saturday, for the members of the Mutual Improvement Association of those Wards. The Stake Superintendent of these associations and others will be present.

General meetings will be held on Sunday at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. On behalf of the Presidency of the Stake. W. W. TAYLOR, Clerk.

Found Drowned.—On Thursday evening, a little boy about three years of age was accidentally drowned. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Blunquist, who live at Lynne. Their residence is located about half a mile east of the State road, near the Harberville irrigation canal. It appears the child was playing on the banks of the ditch, alone, and accidentally fell into the water and was carried off by the current, which is about three feet deep and runs swiftly. He had floated down about a mile before he was discovered.

He was first seen by a young man named Neil Christensen, who took the boy from the water, but life was extinct.—Ogden Herald.

Julius Caesar.—Last night there was a full house at the Salt Lake Theatre, to witness Shakespeare's grand play of Julius Caesar. It is one of the heaviest among the heavy tragedies of the great dramatist, and received, generally speaking, an artistic interpretation. The character of Cæsar Cassius, by Mr. Lawrence Barrett was one of the finest pieces of acting ever seen on the Salt Lake stage, and there are but few men of the profession who can play Marcus Brutus, "the noblest Roman of them all," equal to the rendition of Mr. Louis James. Besides his special ability, his appearance, presence and voice make him peculiarly adapted for the part. The performance of Mr. Barrett in the assassination scene in the Senate Chamber, was wonderful in its indescribable intensity. His half-smothered pent-up agony, Antony being permitted to speak over the body of Cæsar in the market place, was an exhibition of alarm, hate and suppressed rage, that we never saw surpassed. The crowning scene of all was the quarrel between the two friends, which in its grandeur, force and fury, reminded one of a thunder storm, the subsequent reconciliation acting like the breaking out of the sunshine after the rolling away of the angry clouds.

Mr. Old Skinner is an excellent actor, being the head ideal of a lover, but notwithstanding he was called before the curtain twice last night, we must say that we consider him much out of his sphere as Mark Antony. He robbed the character of its strength and dignity, combined with rhetorical sublimity, by too much rant, and tear, and fume. As a juvenile actor he will always do justice to himself and the profession, for he has excellent ability, but in the more ponderous roles he will not shine.

Mr. Mosley made a good Cæsar, and Miss Walnwright an excellent Portia, that lady being a charming and capable actress.

To-night Mr. Barrett and his capable company will close a very successful engagement by performing Richelieu, when there will doubtless be a crowded house.

The Thomas Concert.—The Tabernacle last evening presented a splendid appearance. Beautifully illuminated by electric lights, the evergreen flags and other adornments showed to excellent advantage, and the stand occupied by the choir and the grand Thomas orchestra made a beautiful picture.

The vast building was occupied by an immense audience nearly filling the body of the house and galleries. The concert was of a character to claim the cultivated ear and delight the musical critic, but was above the appreciation of the untutored in the grand art. The vocal as well as instrumental performances were classical and difficult of execution, but performed with ease, precision and perfection which only the very best artists can achieve. The strains of harmony now plaintive, now impassioned, sometimes sweet as the songs of birds and then grand like the mighty thunder's roar or the rushing of a torrent or the swell of the ocean, resounded through the building, with thrilling effect.

Mr. Francis Rembert has a magnificent voice. Miss Belle C. Thurely, her rich contralto pleasingly mellowed the latter's clear soprano. All, we believe, would have been better pleased with some simple lullaby in English, but we suppose would have been too common in a Thomas festival. The chorus concluding the entertainment was grand and satisfactory, and the whole performance was of a very high order of merit.

To-night will be the closing concert, when all who want to see the great leader and hear his incomparable orchestra will have to attend or lose the opportunity.

The Bishop's Record.—In another part of the paper will be found a request from Brother George Goddard, which will doubtless be met with a ready response. We can endorse the statement regarding the completeness of the record kept under the administration of the venerable and worthy Bishop Hunter. Much attention has been given to recording the general proceedings under the Presiding Bishopric in detail, and Brother Goddard has gone through the entire minutes and supplemented them with a condensed statement in the form of an elaborate index, pointing to all the leading matter of the record. To render it still more complete, the additions requested by Brother Goddard, who has acted in the capacity of clerk for twenty-seven years, are necessary.

Death of Brother W. S. Grant.—On Friday morning, shortly after 1 o'clock, Brother Wm. S. Grant, of West Bountiful, son of the late Geo. D. Grant, expired after a lingering illness, having been confined to his bed since the beginning of last April. The deceased was not quite forty years of age. He apparently enjoyed good health until the last few years. The physicians were unable to determine the nature of the disease that carried him off. For several weeks previous to his death he kept gradually sinking. He bore an excellent character, performed a mission to Europe and belonged to the Home Missionary corps of Davis Stake.

The funeral will be conducted at 1 o'clock to-morrow, at the West Bountiful meeting-house.

Result of Wrestling.—At Richmond, on the 4th inst., two little boys, one of them a son of President M. W. Merrill, aged 5 years, were wrestling. The little Merrill boy was picked up from the ground by his playmate, who was trying to "shoulder" him, but in the attempt, dropped him to the ground. The little fellow went on and was taken into the house when he fainted. On regaining consciousness, it was found he could not use one of his arms. A nurse was called in who expressed the opinion that no more was broken. But the injured parts were no better, and yesterday the child was brought to Dr. Ormsby's office, Logan, and an examination revealed a fracture of the collar bone.—Utah Journal.

The C. & N. W. Ry.—This morning we were pleased to receive a call from Mr. J. H. Marshall, general agent of the C. & N. W. Ry., a line with which our people have done a great deal of business, and whose relations have always been of the pleasantest character. Mr. Marshall is located at Council Bluffs.

Lamentable Bereavement.—This issue contains a lamentable tale of bereavement. Brother and Sister Hirsch, of Park Valley, Box 118, recently lost by death four of their children within a few days, from malignant diphtheria. They have only one little one left, who was attacked with the malady but recovered.

Accidentally Drowned.—A correspondent of Randolph informs us that on the 11th inst., Brother Geo. Simpson, Jr., was drowned in Bear River, at Blyth and Pileys ranch. No details were given. The body had not been found and nine men had left Randolph to hunt for it, the accident having occurred 30 miles below that town.

A Phenomenal Storm.—Yesterday a dispatch was received from Fillmore, as follows: "A mysterious, rumbling noise from the west announced the approach of a terrific hail storm, which lasted about fifteen minutes. Hailstones of an immense size and quantity descended with a force that stripped the trees of their tender foliage, cut down fields of grain and all manner of vegetation, broke window-panes and effected inestimable damage. The ground was covered with a mantle of five inches of hailstones."

Utilization of Small Streams.—Water is the great requisite to cause the land to bloom and bring forth its strength. Those who have traveled in the foothills and ravines of this region are aware that in numerous places where the surroundings are dry and barren, little springs and spongy seeps are found. The streams that are obtained from these are generally so small that to convey them over the ground is an impossibility, as they soon disappear into the thirsty earth. It may therefore be of considerable interest, especially to some of our farmers who are at a disadvantage for want of a sufficient supply of water, to peruse the following correspondence, which shows a comparatively inexpensive species of piping:

NEPHI, UTAH, June 12th 1893. Editor Deseret News: The enclosed communication shows a new way of doing in Utah County to bring into use one of the precious elements, namely—that of water, which with us is a scarce article. I have the County Agency for the making of the Artesian Piping of which Elias Morris of your city has the right for the Territory.

I made a half mile for myself last year and expect to make as much more this season besides some for a number of other places. Our foothills have many little springs that can only be brought into use by some such cheap system as this which, however, when brought down to the level of the land, will prove of vast benefit in the building up of our valley homes.

Yours very truly, JOHN ROWLEY. TURNER VALLEY SPOCK FARM, Utah County, Utah, June 12th, 1893. John Rowley, Esq., Nephi, Utah.

Dear Sir:—[I take pleasure in stating that the six thousand eight hundred feet of cement or asbestos piping made by you, for us, is a complete success, so far as tested. We have laid thousands of them in a few weeks, each day adding to its strength and durability, and a careful examination both with the level and by the aid of a transit, would turn in shows there to be practically no loss whatever. The pipe is just imperfectly covered, the ground faces the south and is thus exposed to the heat of the sun. Notwithstanding this the water empties at the lower end cool and nice. Respectfully, JOEL GROVER, Of the firm of Wright & Grover.

Returned from Tennessee.—We have been called upon by Elder Thomas H. Merrill, of Richmond, who returned a few days ago from a mission to the Southern States. He left home on the 12th of July, 1891, and labored most of the time he was absent in Tennessee. He enjoyed his labors greatly. During the last ten months he presided over the West Tennessee Conference. There is a great deal of opposition in that section. Elder Merrill was present in that field when the meeting house in which a conference was about to be held by the Elders was burned down, the particulars of the affair having been published a short time since in the News. There have been quite a number of additions to the Church in that locality, Brother Merrill having baptized and assisted at the administration of that ordinance to thirty persons. Elder E. B. Miles, of Smithfield, has succeeded Brother Merrill in the Presidency of the Conference.

Besides his labors in West Tennessee Elder Merrill labored a short time in Lauderdale County, Alabama, and Alabama County, Mississippi. A good work is now being done in the first named of these fields, and openings were also being made in the latter.

Elder Merrill, during his mission, assisted in holding 284 meetings, and walked 4,452 miles. He had little rest and never in the beginning of April had entirely recovered and returns in good physical condition as well as cheerful in spirit.

The Largest and Finest Yet.—The other day we made a note of some large strawberries grown by residents of this city. The specimens of the fruit mentioned have, however, been so far eclipsed that they were comparatively small. This morning Mr. Robert Dye, of the Bess Cottage, 29th Ward, exhibited to us a collection from his garden that were really remarkable for size, the quality being also equal to their mammoth proportions. Some of the berries measured ten inches each in circumference. We never saw such fine specimens of that fruit before. They have been named "Dye's Excelsior," being an improvement on the "Sharpless" variety.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

TO THE BISHOPS IN EVERY STAKE OF ZION AND THEIR COUNSELLORS.

At April Conference, 1891, by unanimous vote, Edward Hunter was appointed Presiding Bishop, and on the 24th of June following, the first Book of Mormon conference in Salt Lake City. Since that time to the present, a record of the minutes of the Bishops' meetings has been kept, and on the 11th of April, 1893, during the conference, Brother Hunter was ordained the Presiding Bishop of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. On the 22d of June, 1893, he will be ninety years old. The Bishops' record is said to be the most complete and exhaustive of any in the Church. In that book the ordination of every Bishop and Counselor now acting should appear, also of those who have since died in either of those capacities since 1851. All those whose ordinations have been attended to at the Bishops' meetings, also others that have taken place since the last conference, to the clerk are already recorded, but there are doubtless a great number whose ordinations have never been recorded, and it is therefore more especially for the benefit of future generations, it is earnestly requested that every one that ever acted as Bishop or Bishop's Counselor, and also of those who now fill either of those positions, forward to Bishop Hunter's office, written in a plain legible hand, the names, places, ordinations and dates of those who have been ordained or set apart, at the earliest possible date. GEORGE GODDARD, Clerk.

The "Hoisting Process."—The following structures upon a nuisance that needs abatement will be endorsed by other sufferers besides the complainant whose communication is hereto affixed:

Editor Deseret News: In some respects some people who attend our theatre are insufferable nuisances. In ordinary assemblies it could matter but little who had the pleasure of a full view of one's back from the case of theatre-goers it is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some occasions I have been so annoyed that I have been remonstrated, but to no purpose; the "hoisting process" has continued, at intervals, during the entire evening. I am the only one who has suffered. Many have complained to me, perhaps in the way of sympathy, but they have complained in vain. The rear row in the dress circle might, perhaps, be of a rough character and, by putting their feet on the chairs in front and back, think the case of theatre-goers is different. What a delightful sensation to feel yourself rising unawares, carried away with eloquence of tongue and gesture, when suddenly a pry is taken underneath your chair seat, and you are raised on the toe of some fashionable boot only to drop back again with a thud, into your normal position. The sensation was not agreeable at first, but when one has been recalled to the inevitable. On some