

CELEBRATION WAS ROUSHER AT SANDY

Spirit of '47 Glows in Observance of Twenty-Fourth of July.

ORATION BY JULIUS SCHMIDT

Story of Long and Tiresome Journey Recounted by Speaker—Old Time Features Typified—Ball Game.

Perhaps the only genuine celebration of Pioneer Day, in the real spirit thereof, in Salt Lake county yesterday was held at Sandy. The patriotic citizens of that flourishing town entered early upon plans to make the 24th of July, 1908, a memorable day—one which the rising generation might look back upon and understand why the people of Utah—the descendants of the men and women who made the state—celebrate the 24th of July.

Every feature of the celebration was typical and well gotten up. The parade, which was formed under the direction of Marshal of the Day W. L. Bateman, was characteristic, and was witnessed by thousands of people, many of whom came in automobiles and other equipages from Salt Lake, Murray and other surrounding towns. In the lead of the procession were numbers of Indian braves, represented by Sandy youths, and following them there were cowboys and cowgirls in appropriate costume.

Following came Mayor of Sandy W. W. Williams and the members of the town council, W. H. Lewis, H. G. Marriott, W. L. Hewlett, R. G. Yorgason and A. Robert Larson, who occupied an old fashioned stage coach. This was a pioneer wagon, containing a number of people representing the early day mode of travel.

The "Goddess of Liberty" was splendidly represented by Miss Maud Parnalee, this float being the most elaborate of the number. The maids of honor were Misses Mollie Lindell, Edith Harrison, Hazel Stewart and Sarah Griggs.

Among the prominent floats were that representing "Granite," "The Utah Girl" represented by Miss Cora Hardcastle and others.

The exercises of the day occurred immediately after the parade, at All-sport's grove. Bishop Kuhn was master of ceremonies. The Sandy city school children presented several selections, and after invocation by James Jensen, Mayor W. W. Williams made an address of welcome. He greeted all present with words of welcome, and told them to keep in mind the memory of the hardy pioneers who made the celebration possible.

MR. SCHMIDT'S ORATION.

A soprano solo was rendered by Miss Emilia Erickson, after which Julius C. Schmidt, the orator of the day, was introduced. Mr. Schmidt said in part: "Throughout the year, we have been introduced to the celebration of the anniversary of noted men, such days as the 12th and 22nd days of February, and so on, but it is today with hearts filled with true loyal American patriotism that we are gathered here to celebrate the sixty-first anniversary of that glorious day, known to all as 'Pioneer Day'.

As that triumphant day of rejoicing which marked for the pioneers the close of a most wonderful, admirable, long journey.

"The Pioneers" and who were they? They were those people who after a severe struggle for the first time prepared the way, entered and settled in this now most beautiful valley.

These people were the first members of the Mormon Church, organized by Joseph Smith. For some time they lived in a state of adversity. But here it was impossible for them to live in peace, as their lives were in danger, being repeatedly threatened by enemies of this church.

On the 27th of July, 1841, Joseph Smith, their leader was martyred. This caused great grief among these people for there was no man they loved better. August 31, of the same year, Brigham Young, a refugee and well known man, was elected lieutenant-general of the Nauvoo Legion.

RESOLVE TO GO WEST.

Towards the close of the year 1845 Brigham Young and the leaders in council resolved to move at once and seek another home in the valleys of the Rocky Mountains. They must seek refuge with the children of the forest, and as for humanity, they must seek it from the Indians of the plains, for they now were being driven out of Illinois.

Having sold their farms, and all other property, they commenced to cross the Mississippi river, February 4, 1846. Brigham Young was elected president over all camps, March 27. It was now that the Pioneers really began to suffer hardships. Some of the families had provisions, others were quite destitute. During the winter of 1846 the camps had traveled about 100 miles. The roads were almost impassable, and the people suffered much from exposure and cold, it being at times 20 degrees below zero.

Part of the main body of the camp arrived near the Mississippi river June 14, 1846.

FINAL JOURNEY BEGINS.

It was here that the Pioneers got ready to their long journey to the Rocky Mountains, to take place the following spring. The first in the line was the beginning of the Pioneers' final journey to the Rocky Mountains, was made by Heber C. Kimball, who left Winlock, Utah, on the 5th day of April, 1847, and established a camp near Elkhorn river, where the chosen members of the Pioneer party, might gather and make their final plans for the trip.

All preparations having been completed for the departure of those who were chosen to cross the plains, on Wednesday, April 14, 1847, a last farewell was bid to those who remained at Winter Quarters. The last wagon leaving Winter Quarters at 2 p. m.

Having perfected the organization, systematized its management the pioneer band was well on the road to the west. The start was made at early morning, and camp was made at night in perfect order. Each man knew his position, and the teamsters were thus engaged others were lighting the camp fires, pitching tents, and preparing supper.

On the 21st day of April the pioneers, for the first time were attacked by Indians. Their appearance caused much excitement amongst the travelers who did not know what to expect from the savages. But Heber C. Kimball, in order to have no trouble with the Indians, gave them tobacco, salt, flour and other articles. Although many different nights the pioneers were aroused from their peaceful sleep by Indians attacking them, and attempting to steal their horses.

Pratt was ordered to take the part of the company and proceed at once on the journey.

Orson Pratt led his company through Echo canyon to the Weber river, crossing the left bank, about six miles were made which brought them to the entrance of Weber canyon, which was impassable for wagons.

The hard work of the advance company now began. Twelve men were sent ahead by Orson Pratt with spades and axes to cut out a way through Weber canyon, which required much hard work.

PROMISED LAND.

July 19 Orson Pratt and John Brown started from the advance camp soon after sunrise to examine the road, which left Canyon creek and ran along through a ravine to the west, when the dividing ridge was reached the two pioneers here tied their horses and on foot ascended a nearby mountain to obtain a glimpse of the country. Previously from the peaks of that neighborhood the pathfinders of the pioneer band had met by a series of towering, snow capped mountains, piled seemingly one upon the other, ever greeting his tired vision as he gazed eagerly westward looking for the "Promised Land."

But this time a different view was presented. To the southwest, through a vista of gradually sloping mountains, through an opening in the canyons, the light blue and fleecy white clouds above seemed to be sinking into a plain of prairie were visible, and beyond arose a series of blue mountains, their peaks tipped with snow. But what could this be?

"It was the valley of the Great Salt Lake."

Returning to camp, they brought with them this good news of their advance.

The Pratt advance company now for the last time resumed their journey traveling over the ridge that terminated into what is now known as Emigration canyon.

MAIN BODY ARRIVES.

Thursday, July 22, 1847, the main body of the Mormon pioneers, about 14,000 strong, emerged from this canyon and there beheld spread before them the longed for "Promised Land."

Beholding before them, this extensive valley, they could not refrain from a shout of joy, which involuntarily escaped their lips, the moment this grand and lovely valley was within their view.

And finally 61 years ago today Brigham Young, Wilford Woodruff, Heber C. Kimball, Lorenzo D. Young, three pioneer women, two children arrived in the valley of the Great Salt Lake. This day was a most wonderful, yes the most marvelous journey ever attempted by man, which will go down in the annals of history as one that can never be forgotten.

But all honor and due to those early pioneers, who 61 years ago today settled this valley and for years constantly labored, irrigating and fertilizing the rich soil, planted these large trees which now beautify this entire valley and are admired by all.

Therefore, my desire and let us hope that in centuries to come, future generations will hoist and wave the Stars and Stripes, and celebrate with the same loyal American spirit as we today, this glorious 24th day of July, Pioneer Day.

After the exercises a ball game was played between Sandy and Bingham Junction teams, resulting in favor of Sandy by a score of 10 to 9. Several exciting horse races were run, and a boxing bout was one of the features. Later in the evening there was a ball-noon ascession, and the celebration closed with a grand ball.

WRONG AS TO THE BERRIES.

Sun Hun, who was taken to the county jail Thursday night in a dejected condition, thought to have been brought about by over indulgence in strawberries and beer, recovered last evening and told a rather strange story. He declared that he had eaten no strawberries but admitted he consumed a considerable quantity of beer. He said, however, that the beer was doped and that was what made him temporarily insane. He says that before drinking the beer he had $70 on him and that the money was stolen. The police do not believe his story.

What does a sensible business man do when confronted with a deficit? He retrenches. What does an "American" City Council majority do? It increases its expenses, mortgages and shifts the load on posterity.

AUTO STRIKES WOMAN.

Powers Machine Heads for Mother to Save Her Child.

To avoid striking a 10-year-old child, Judge O. W. Powers' chauffeur drove the big Powers' machine into a woman at the corner of Second South and Main street about 8 o'clock last night. The woman was knocked down, but as the machine was going very slowly she was not seriously hurt. The child escaped without a scratch.

The woman who was struck was Mrs. A. E. Dixon, 902 west Second North. Mrs. Dixon and the little girl were apparently waiting for a car, and were standing several feet from the curb. The Powers machine was coming down Main street and turned west on Second South at a slow rate of speed. Mrs. Dixon jumped on the curb, and the little girl jumped the other. It was impossible, according to statements made by eye witnesses, for the driver to miss both the woman and the girl, so the machine struck the woman, knocking her over.

The auto was immediately stopped and Judge Powers gave Mrs. Dixon his name and address. The woman was quite angry and hurried to the police station to make a complaint against the driver. He followed in his machine, but was not detained.

BOY DROWNS IN JORDAN

Burton Steed Slips Into Water While Fishing—Rescuers Nearly Overcome Trying to Save Him.

Burton Steed, the 8-year-old son of E. A. Stead of Farmington, was drowned yesterday afternoon in Jordan river, some distance north of the Copper plant. The lad was fishing when he fell into the stream, and his brother, Rulon, eight years his senior, narrowly escaped drowning while attempting to rescue him. Richard Parvorth, Jr., and Vernard Poulton pulled Rulon from the water, but Burton had disappeared and an hour and 10 minutes later the body was recovered.

Mrs. Clara Steed, her two sons and the family of John Steed went to the Jordan early in the day on a fishing trip. All went well until about 1 o'clock, when Burton was seen to fall into the stream. Rulon, who was with him, but was himself almost overcome when rescued by Papworth and Poulton. Search was at once instituted for Burton, and by means of a section of a barbed wire fence, which was stretched across the river, the body was brought to the surface, and the sorrowful party returned homeward. The father of the boy is a retired farmer, and the family one of the best known in Davis county.

DISCOVER TWO SKELETONS.

Old Miner's Cabin Yields Guesseome Find to Prospectors.

Howard S. Stowe has just returned from a trip to Driggs, Ida., and brings word of the finding recently of the skeletons of two men in the mountains near that place. The discovery was made by Al Griffiths and Fred Adams, who some time previously had made locations on long since abandoned mining prospects. A dilapidated cabin was near the workings, and inside the human bones were found. One was lying upon a bunk and the other was in the corner of the room, nothing but the bones remaining. That the men had been dead for many years was evident, as the few things found in the room were decomposed or rusted almost beyond recognition. Included in the articles was the barrel of a rifle.

It is believed that the men were prospectors and had worked in the area. The latter had caved in, but could be entered for a distance of 90 feet. A crude stone ore crusher, such as was once used in the mines of Mexico, was found at the workings. The finding of the skeletons created much excitement in and about Driggs.

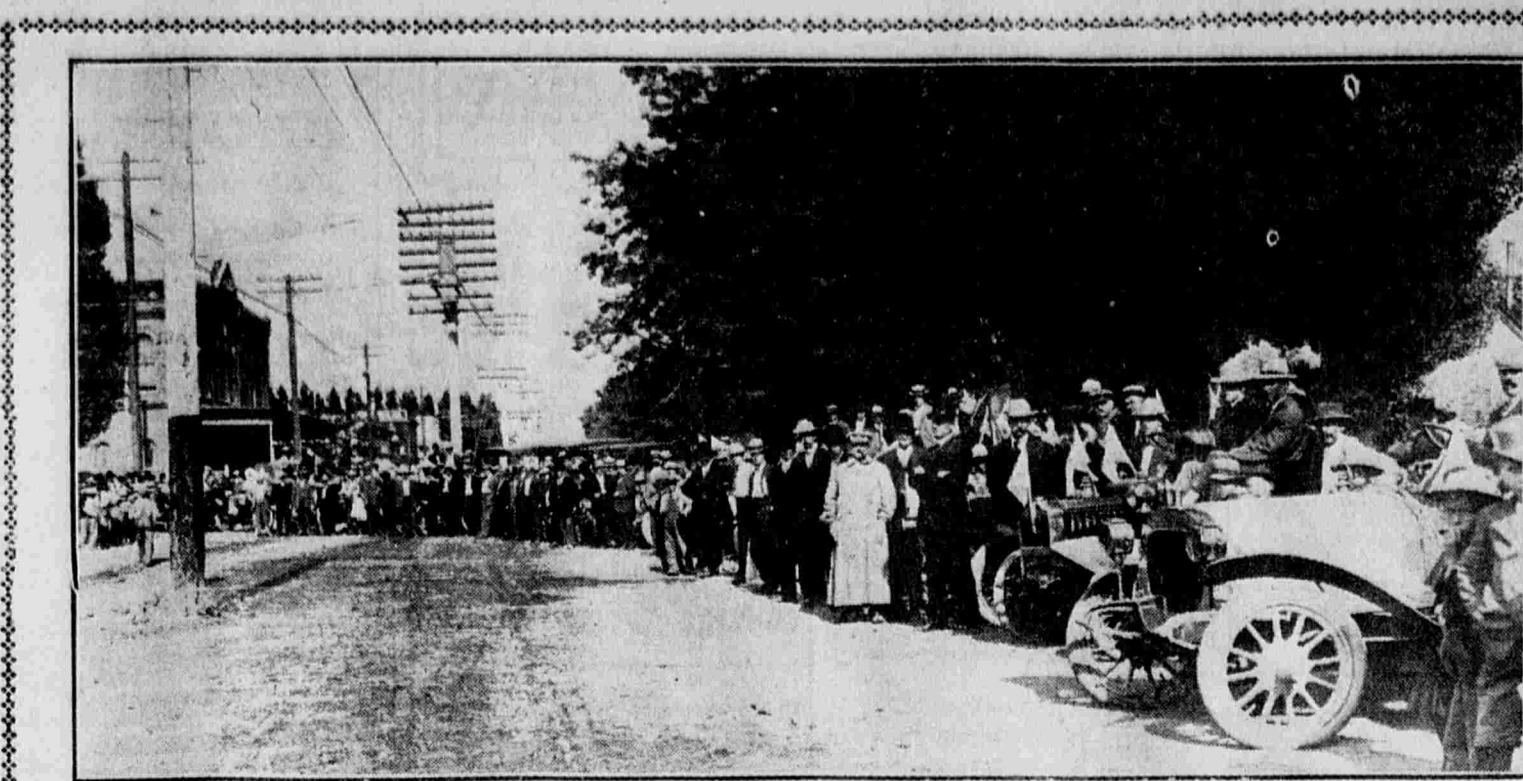

The taxes are sure to be raised—bonds or no bonds. Do not be blackmailed.

THIEF STEALS FROM BUGGY.

Yesterday afternoon a thief stole a new suit of clothes belonging to Thomas Lundy, commander of the Dix post, G. A. R., at Ogden. The suit was in a buggy standing in front of 94 west Second South street. Mr. Lundy was in the office of Alfred Kent, adjutant-general of the G. A. R., for the department of Utah. Mr. Lundy had just purchased a $20 suit and left it in a buggy in which he intended riding to the depot to catch a train for Ogden. When Lundy and Kent went to the buggy they discovered the suit case had been broken open and the clothes stolen.

WILL RECOVER, HOWEVER.

Trouble broke out afresh at Garfield yesterday afternoon between a number of foreigners. Joe Zubich, a recent arrival at the camp, got drunk and pulled a revolver, flourishing it in a threatening manner, declaring he would kill three or four men. His fellow countrymen pounced upon him, took the gun away and threw him to the ground, beating. He emerged from the one-sided fight with a broken rib, two black eyes, two or three cuts on the head and face, and considerable wisdom pounded into his skull. The man will recover.

THE ACCUMULATING PRESTIGE OF THE NEW MOVEMENT FOR GOOD ROADS.

This movement promises to be one of the most important ones of growing political propaganda. Ranking with the temperance movement, it is obtaining prestige and force because of which active work is already begun on better highways in Salt Lake City, Ogden city, Provo city, Davis county, Utah county, and Salt Lake county. In the above picture, taken at an American Fork good roads mass meeting held Wednesday, mayors of eight Utah cities, with members of town councils and boards of county commissioners of three counties are shown. They control 500 miles of highways. So far the advance of the movement has been without encountering a single objection or opposition. The good it can do promises to be greatly augmented by the unanimous support of all the people.

Mrs. Brown screamed and the cowardly fellow fled. The matter was reported to the police and they have a good description of the young man.

TOWN WILL LOOK PURPLE

Elks Busy Making Preparations for a Great Time at Lagoon Next Thursday.

If there is not a program worth going many miles to see on Elks' Purple Day at Lagoon it will not be the fault of the committees in charge. Also, there will be much decorating in the city. Exalted Ruler Davis and other members of the committee made the rounds of the merchants and found every one of them willing and anxious to decorate their windows in purple and white. There will be four cash prizes from $50 to $10 for the best decorations. The handsome gold watch, set with nine cut white diamonds, to be awarded to the most popular lady at the resort on Purple Day, is now on exhibition at one of the Main street jewelry stores.

In talking purple day to the merchants, Mr. Davis explained to them that they were not asked to spend a cent for the occasion but were asked to put the royal color in the windows. All the big stores will have the decorations up by Monday morning.

At Lagoon on the big day, which is next Thursday, there will be all sorts of contests. Imagine a 200 yard dash between Judge Dana T. Smith and Ben Reman. A sack race between Chief of Police Tom D. Pitt and C. M. Freed should prove a star event. Then there will be races for fat men and fat women and Jim Leary will be there with his famous chariot and blooded mules. Another feature will be a ball game between Salt Lake and Ogden locals.

The Lagoon management will begin work on Monday decorating the place in the proper colors for the occasion and the local lodge will by that time have decided upon the committees on reception and entertainment and arranged for a few other stunts on the program that will cause several dizzy surprises.
