LOOK AFTER YOUR LAND TITLES.

IF people wish to secure to themselves the lands upon which they have settled, they should use all due diligence to comply with the the pre-emption or the homestead laws, and these laws must be complied with, or title to the respective lands can not be had by the settiers. Are these facts properly con-sidered by the settlers on such lands in this Territory? If they are not, land titles affected thereby are worth little or nothing.

If a man homesteads a piece of land, it is a matter of primary importance to him, as respects his land, that he comply with the laws governing the case, and unless he complies with them in time he does not comply with them at all, and company on the basis of 30 cents on the dollar, by three, aix and tweive The people's ho prings, south The people
