The French have concluded to al low American hogs to enter their dominions without restriction. From the accounts that have come to us from time to time we had supposed all along that the American hog had been roaming through France at will.

These cold mornings remind a South Bend Tribune pencil pusher of a young married couple in this city, who used to take a deck of cards to bed with them, a few winters ago, and play a game of euchre in the morning to see who would get up and build the fire. The wife happened to be a good on thre player and very seldom had to build a fire. A credulous man said to a wag, who had a wooden leg: "How can e you to have a wooden leg?" "Why," hy answered the wag, "my father had one, so had my grandfather. It A Yorkshire man whose well late-
