And then to scare them out of their boots while their heads were bowed, over the possibilities of dynamite and kindred compounds in the hands of oppressed laborers and desperate anarchists! It was enough to make them indignant, and justified their refusal to have the prayer printed in that intensely plous and thrillingly interesting periodical, the Congressional Record.

Seriously, the evils touched upon in the Chaplain's prayer are important enough to challenge the attention of all thinking people. And if he really believed in the God of Jacob, and was sincerely seeking for Divine help to bring those things to the consideration of the legislators of our country, his utterances were pertinent and seasonable, and may be endorsed with a hearty amen.

The conflicts that are pending, and which will no doubt become more serious, between capital and labor, the amassing of immense wealth in the hands of a faw while common necessaries are out of the reach of the many, and the awful power "which modern science has disclosed as means of revolution and destruction, ought to be subjects of the most. thoughtful deliberation by all the governments of the earth. And If their eyes could be opened to discern the fast approaching troubles that will overwhelm the world, they would perhaps make some preparations to meet them, and the great nation of which we form a part would find something better to do than to crush out a loyal people, who truthfully desire to serve the God of Jacob.

MATRIMONY AS A MATTER OF RELIGION.

THE decrees of the Roman Catholic Plenary Council of Baltimore, which were sent to Rome for Papal confirmation and which have been returned approved, contain many doctrines and announcements of importance to the body of religionists whom they are intended to govern. "Among them is a removed "noblest Roman," etc. decree in regard to matrimony. It is generally known that marriage is re-garded as as sacrament by the Romish Church. It cannot be properly con-tracted and solemnized by Cathelics without a duly ordained priest and the prescribled ceremony. All other marriages of members are considered ecclesiastically void. In this the prescriber of the Church and the prescriber of members are considered ecclesiastically void. In this the views of that Church are similar to those of the "Mormon" Church. But they do not now-a-days. occasion so much comment. When a Latter-day Saint Elder advises the members of his Church not to marry outsiders, and declares that contracts formed outside of the rites and ordinances of theChurch are not valid in the sight of heaven, although they may be Jin the eyes of the secular law, he is denounced with a vehemence and bitterness that savor of violence? A Roman Catholic priest may utter the same precept and doctrine in regard to his Church, and scarcely anything is said about them by others. The Protestant world has become accustomed to Catholicism and has almost ceased to nersecute its followers. precept and doctrine in regard to his re-appoint the same persons, and although the Senate may again refuse to confirm, the President has the advantage of power and if he so desires can have his way in spite of the temporary obstructions thrown in the path by the Senate.

We think the President is right in trying to raise the Executive authority above the level of more party expedi-ency. The idea that Republicans cannot serve under a Democratic Admin-istration, and vice versa, and that on a change of party supremacy there must be a complete change in all the offices existence. in the gift of the Govarnment, seems to us entirely erroneous. Fitness for the position should be the great recom-mendation, and when a Republican is performing faithfully the duties of an office, we see no good reason why he should be removed simply to make way for a Democrat. Office should not be conferred by way of reward for political service but on the same principles that govern employers in business and, in private

However, the other system has pre-vailed more or less for a long time, and the Democratic porty, having had no chance at the public teats for a quarter of a century, it was natural that on the accession of a Democrtic President the hungry expectants should look for a pretty clean sweep of Republican suckers and a general opening for their impatient opponents. knows it, and is sure of it, and that is why he behaves himself. Now, Mr. Common-sense, what do you say to this? Your alleged Chris-tians are not entirely wrong, but they are at sea; they have had truth once, but they lost it. Occasionally they grasp a ray of light now and again, and thus it is that utterances like those quoted come out. You condemn "Mor-monism" because you have never in-vestigated for yourself. You pride yourself on your deference to public opinion, while it is your daty to help set public opinion right and not be a shave to a faise public opinion. Mr. Common-sense is not satisfied; he retreats belind And as party triumphs cannot be won without party support, and that is stimulated in many quarters by the hope of gain, it is to be expected that party wishes and demands will prevail. above sound principle, and changes will be wanted and acceded to on the lower and more sordid motive.

In trying to act upon higher ground, President Cleveland has run against a big stamp, and while disgusting many Democrats has put a , whip into the hands of the Republicans, who are not slow to use it for all it is worth.

10 a.m.—The striking Knights on the Missouri Pacific, notwithstanding Powderly's order to return to work, have not yet done so and are walting official instructions from Irons. 11 a.m.—Little is heard in Wall Street All right, Mr. Common-sense, let ns follow the Rev. Jones in his sermon and see how he looks at this part of the question. Here is what he says, i

his own words:

CHILDREN OF A KING. Chillbries OF A kive. The first thought of the text is, "Now are we the sons of God." Squarely put, is is the princely character of Obristian men. I am the child of a King. The noblest blood of all the world courses in my veins. I an the son of the Lord Almighty. If you can ever, get a man to see that, he will behave him, self. It is worth a good deal to a man to have had a good father and mother. I have thought many a time you asid, that fellow is not well bred and not half raised. I wish you had seen my father andimother. If you racked out yourselves by the side of them you would get left. During the first half hour the market was fe-verish, irregular and lextremely active. Erie has been conspicuous for its ad-vance, and Vanderbilts have been beavy.

It will be seen that this doctrine was applauded. This very doctrine has been taught by the Prophet Joseph Smith 50 years ago, and it is believed in by His disciples, and they are perse-cuted for believing what is applauded in Chicago. Mr. Jones says, "If you can get a man to see that he is a son of the Lord Almighty, he will behave himself." Every "Mormon" sees it, knows it, and is sure of it. and that is A Misunderstanding Between Gould and Powderly.

Sr. Louis, 29.—Powderly's dispatch directing the strikers to return to work immediately was received at the head-quarters of the executive committee this moraing at 2:30, and a member of the committee at ones the property of this morning at 2:30, and a member of the committee at once telegraphed to irons at sedalia to return to St. Louis forthwith. It is expected that irons will start immediately, and upon arriving here will preside over a meeting of his committee, which will then comply with Powderly's order to declare the strike-ended. J.J. McGary, Judge Advocate of the Knights, was seen this morning by a reporter, and in reply to the inquiry as to now the order of Powderly would be obeyed, said, "If Irons receives it early enough he might put a cipher dispatch on the wires, and by one o'clock every man could be back to work." "Will the men go back to work on Powderly's order." "No, sir, not until the other matters are arbitrated upon, and then, no mat-ter how this arbitration results, all the men must be taken back without any discrimination being shown against One dark brown MARE about 3 years old, and no brands visible.
