

DESERET EVENING NEWS.

PUBLISHED EACH PAPER DOLLAR AT FIVE CENTS.

EDITED AND PUBLISHED BY THE DESERET NEWS CO.

CHARLES W. FISHER, EDITOR.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1891.

THE TAX CASE REHEARD.

The decision of Judge Lane in the tax case will be heard in our report of court proceedings. It is in favor of the defendants. That is, it is in favor of the taxpayers and against the collector. Mr. Clute will not make much great gains as he expected to get. The twenty percent reduction was legally made, and the "liberal" attempt to defeat it has failed to the ground.

It will be observed that his Honor has taken the same ground that we assumed as soon as the matter was under public discussion. The City Commissioners power to add or take from an otherwise revenue the assessment of taxes as it makes fit is not only sufficient, but just and fair. It can hardly be denied that the value of property is not that it is taxed but that it is taxed. And it can also be denied that the personal property is fairly assessed while the real estate is unfairly assessed.

That is all good common sense and entirely in conformity with the Charter. If not, where is the inconsistency? That has been over seen, but the supporters of the tax assessment amendment have relied upon little technicalities which they hoped would overcome the weightier matters of the law.

There is talk of an appeal. That only means further delay, no change of the issue. Taxpayers may breathe freely. The reduction will be all right and they need not pay the full amount of their excessive assessments. Judge Lane has given another proof of his firm adherence to the law in its spirit and in its letter.

THE RELIGION OF THE FUTURE.

Many references are made in books and newspapers, to any notion of the past, to what is called "the religion of the future." The phrase itself, passing by the views of writers regarding it, is an indication that the religion of the present is unsatisfactory in a multitude of thoughtful people.

The various "Christian" sects all claim to have the true religion, that is, the religion introduced by Jesus Christ who is recognized as the Son of God. While there are differences of opinion in regard to his experimental origin, it is agreed that he taught and established the religion which is to bring the world into final harmony with heaven. But numerous denominations of "Christian" conditions and unfeignedly by human efforts, perceive the incongruity of the doctrines taught by the one and also their inability to agree with the other of the two. Therefore they look for some other and more advanced religion than what is called "Christianity." In most of the ways of inter-day humanity and under mankind on a common basis, which shall accomplish that universal fraternity and harmony that all the great prophets, sages, poets, and philosophers of the ages have desired and predicted.

But if Jesus Christ was the being he was destined to be, and introduced the religion of the Father, the truth of the Eternal God, if his religion is the true religion, it is the religion not only of the nations, portions of the Christian era, nor the religion of the present and the religion of the future. And what is needed is simply that religion in all its fulness, and force, and authority, and inspiration, so it comes from him as the mouthpiece of the Almighty.

What is that religion to be found today? Compare the churches and creeds of the world with the Church and Kingdom of Christ as set up by Christ and the Apostles, and it will be found that there will be no accounting all of them except and in one tradition as to establish the correctness that they have all gone out of the way, and that they have no right to the claim that they are the Church of Christ or have the Christian religion as it came from Jesus of Nazareth.

The religion of the future is to be the pure gospel of Christ. It is ample for the wants of all the world. What places for new "Christian" halls very shortly the plumbline and light and power. A restoration of it and its acceptance by mankind would answer every need. There is no necessity for new religion. The old religion of Christ will fit every requirement. Few changes are as well as possible. It contains within itself elements of adaptation to all lands and times and conditions. It connects man with his Maker and gives the handmaids of light and knowledge by revelation and inspiration for every need.

The world will not long receive it, but it is a fact that will come to recognize that this restoration is inevitable, and that the system acknowledged "Mormonism" is to that Church and creed and organization, which is the model of the times and which did not set up to meet the wants of mankind. It is to be a new religion but the old religion of Jesus Christ restored.

It will be the religion of the future. It solves the theological problems of those who do not believe in the dominion of the Devil. It fills every want of both "Christian" and "atheist" humanity. And it will penetrate to every fibre and win to its support and love.

the good and true by every walk of life. This may be accounted by the sufficient today, but as rare or strain you never experienced ever, if only time is given, so sure will what we have foretold be one of the great realities of the approaching new era.

JEWISH REPRISALS ON RUSSIA.

Wealthy Hebrews in Europe are working to repay the Czar of Russia for his inhumanity to his brethren in that country. For this purpose they are using their only apparent power of prediction and means for the enforcement of their wishes that they possess—the influence of wealth. In these days, when money is king, it is a mighty lever. The species of reprisal to which they are resorting is the rendering incapable of every effort of the Czar to negotiate a peace. The urgent need of Russia for money indicates how great gains the Jewish bankers may be able to inflict upon that country.

This policy of Hebrew money kings will have one of two effects. It will either drive the Czar to greater extremities in his inhumanity, or it will induce him to adopt a more lenient policy toward the Jews. Should he succeed in obtaining money in spite of the opposition of Jewish bankers, the success will doubtless be put upon the unfortunate people. Even within his empire more tightly than ever. Should he succeed but be unable to exact the Jewish opposition, he may be driven to adopt a policy of leniency in order to obtain the money which he so much requires.

A large percentage of the wealth of the world is in the hands of the Jews. It is sure that probably the power that comes from the possession of so great a proportion of that wealth at this time, the majority of people seem to prostrate themselves before a factor in these days in wroughting the destiny of the remnants of the chosen people.

A LUSON AMERICAN.

A consideration before us last Sunday's New York World in its account of the spreading of the "Vannous." For the benefit of those not thoroughly posted on the most important concerns of the nation we will explain that this "Vannous" is a very steamboat built for Mr. W. H. Heath, the proprietor and nominal manager of the San Francisco "Dinner."

The "Vannous" is not much over a hundred feet long and will not carry a hundred passengers, but it can more than accommodate 100 men. It is built with the efforts of a great newspaperman after a large share of twenty millions to finance himself, with during 20 hours could coast with this hundred thousand dollar boat. One would think that such a newspaperman would be sufficient to outfit the vessel of one good intellect. The secret of the matter is the young man's ambitions are strictly modest. He yearns for public adulation of the hundred and most comprehensive character possible. Millions are to be very common people, and the sum of great editor necessarily has its limitations, which are a veritable expansion of the spirit of an American model of the latest cast. To gain this title of human endeavor completely Mr. Heath could see that neither the newspaper nor the $50,000 was the right thing. Such comprehensive greatness he could observe in just one direction. If he would be great among all men and have all some recognition with appropriate from all human conduct at once, he would go to great sport. This why he has just a hundred thousand more or less for playing.

But the money has purchased him the most excellent toy of the kind that any man ever owned. The "Vannous" will sail fast and around the swiftest sounder that has yet been invented. It has made the loitering gentry of New York green with envy, and has, during its brief existence of a few months, made Mr. Heath the most famous sport in all the earth. The name of the owner of the "Vannous" has been no more longitude since the thing was christened by W. E. Gladstone by her. Who will say that this young man's head was not level?

We have no especial interest in Mr. Heath or his "Vannous." Our purpose in calling to the notice is to illustrate the very conspicuous and somewhat remarkable features of the times. The number of millionaires in the United States is not enough for the father of young Heath. He had more time for building fast houses and yachts, and their performances than he had for the management of his wealth and the duties of the post to the highest office in the country.

What is at the bottom of it all? We think it is gambling. We suppose that these sporting empires will make no pretense of having the money to satisfy their passion, but in the meantime, this course, the leading business and all the rest of this category, sporting articles will be the natural and trifling adjuncts of the gambling house. And the same may be said of the speculative abductions of nearly every branch of trade, commerce and industry. This is becoming a nation of gamblers.

What is one of only three States in the Union retaining a government control as a part of the government.

SUIT & HIGH-TOEPIE DISPUTE.

Mr. Jerry Barnes, the middle-aged Chicagoan from Kansas, has raised a hornet's nest again! His trial because of the incident mentioned in the dispatches which occurred at Cleveland, Ohio, the other night. He delivered a lecture, by engagement with the People's party. In the course of his speech he called ministers and money kings fat and thin. He safely based with political red ink and finished with anti-blotched handkerchief black marks. After the close of the portion the versatile Jerry advanced to the Hollingshead hotel and discussed a campaign speech with two reporters, telling the chief he had written a few minutes before, in up-frontly keeping. The confidential reporter of the Kansas State Journal was not, of course, present, nor, was anyone else, but the reporter who was engaged with him at the beginning. A committee of citizens waited on him at the hotel and upbraided him roundly. He, in substance, told these gentlemen that they might as well where they would be, as he did not propose to furnish any information with his personal library.

This incident seems somewhat small of itself, but its results may not be as insignificant, in a political sense, as Mr. Cleveland especially. Subsequently the Cleveland National City took up the subject, and again the headlines were drawn over the political corpus of the men whose social affinities and indulgences had offended those who had themselves looked upon him as a pliable supporter of their cause. It appeared that the majority of the members of the club that Mr. Barnes had addressed were of the class that political enemies constitute a political enemy, but they could not be prevailed upon to swallow. One of the salient features of the affair is that it was decided not to pay Mr. "Wickless" damages the amount he was to receive, according to agreement, for his lecture. This is by no means mean as there was no anti-champagne supper given in the meeting. The parties of the first part—no legal purpose—but a right to the place with his heirs in future, but a repudiate payment of services rendered to date. The circumstances are too meager confined to one side of this political tempest on a small scale.

THE DISHONORABLE IN URGUAY.

Rumors from Uruguay in South American state that serious rioting is taking place in Montevideo. It is said that the rioters belong to a club organized for political purposes. The members of this organization call themselves the Junta. They calculate about 1000 and from the soldiers in the event of a revolution. This audience did not understand. On the contrary, fifty-three of the Junta party were shot dead by the military. There were about 300 revolutionaries in the streets on the night of the 11th inst. A panic seized them when they saw so many of their own party killed, and the determined opposition of the soldiers.

The object of the revolutionaries was the seizure of Sucre Oros, President of Uruguay. For this purpose twenty machine guns were employed to command the streets. They were commanded by a desperado named Abatto. The police discovered the plot in time. The Junta, President of the Junta, and the principal leaders of the Junta were arrested. The remnants of the Junta have fled to the country and are keeping up a kind of guerrilla warfare. The police and troops are closely pursuing them, and the revolution for the present is a failure.

Uruguay is a republic. The President is elected for a term of four years. He is assisted in his executive functions by a council of five ministers. The Congress is composed of two houses, consisting of eighteen senators and forty-eight representatives. The latter are chosen for terms of three years and the former for six.

Uruguay declared its independence of Brazil in August, 1828, but the Constitution of the republic was not adopted until July, 1830. It might be said that it was its independence to Great Britain. Montevideo, the principal city, has over 100,000 inhabitants. It commands the entire commercial trade of the country.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

DEAN & CO., in their report for the week ending October 10, 1891, state that business is improving in all Eastern centers. A notable feature in the absence of all speculative excitement in stock department. Fall and winter grain markets are to a large extent quiet, and in the market all cases the result of a long continued stagnation the last month of Oct. November. The volume of trade is, however, large, though prices are low, profits small, and competition severe. Collections are reported slow in some places. It is noted that $12,500,000 in gold has already arrived from Europe, and nearly $5,000,000 more on the way hither.

In the Northwest wet weather has done damage to unripened wheat. Crops are reported progressing. Iron is firm in price. Wool at Boston is high, but general business is bad, with ample supplies of money. At other Eastern points trade is reported fully active. At Chicago, trade from the year ago is not equal to that of previous years.

Breeding of wheat are fair thus far, but last year, of eye on later, and wool-dulls. All through the West and South improvements in trade, is general. Heavy receipts of cotton are noted at Southern cities.

Speculatively the breakfast has been active, but when it went down many new records, with sales of only 25,000,000 bushels, while corn has declined less and a quarter cents and oats an eighth.

Little change in the supply of currency has been made by the treasury. The volume now in circulation is about $20,000,000, and the coinage of 20,000,000 dollars. Labor is well employed. Fear of trouble still exists at Pittsburg, where the miners are out on strike.

Business failures for the month amounted to, in the United States, 220 and in Canada thirty. For the corresponding week last year, the figures were 185 for the United States and twenty-one for Canada.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

Secretary Tracy of the United States Navy department is reported sick.

Professor Bell says that France alone will send 400,000 men to America when the war breaks out.

Secretary Noble says that he does not consider himself responsible for his place in the Cabinet.

Thomas F. Peery, of Boulder, Colo., has sold his 10 acres of $125,000 an acre.

Petrie, London, is staying five or six weeks in England every year.

H. H. said the Hopkins-Sheets will consist of a widow, Mrs. Hopkins, who was married to a bachelor who died, and began a second family. She was highly obliged in July without doing any injury.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

It is reported that the National Democratic Convention will be held in May or early in June, 1892, and that San Francisco is suggested as the place for holding it.

James G. Blaine will receive active duty at Washington on October 27 next. The intelligence comes from Mr. Murphy of Albany, one of the thermometers of warm friends.

An attempt was made on the 13th last to assassinate President Sarmiento of Uruguay. The would-be assassin was a corporal of the palace guard, who was tried for assault mortal.

St. Louis has a candidate for a divorce. There lives a woman in that town who says she is a daughter of Queen Victoria. Her name is Charlotte. She was raised in France. St. Louis is still trying to hold off Chephren.

A school in Lower Austria, it was just received a legacy of 200 florins. It was bequeathed by a merchant of Vienna who was a member of the school committee. The legacy was intended for the education of poor children.

The London papers say that Frenchmen are making the famous project for revolution. There is also a political assassination society organized by Russian refugees in Switzerland and France.

There are three men of Charlie Sheen's alive. One is an attorney and a merchant, and the third a sheep raiser in Australia.

It is estimated that a woman is to drive the last nail in the woman's building at the World's Fair in Chicago. It is not stated what will happen when she presents her bags.

The present chronic disease in Kangaroo Island is Windmills, bladders. The poison gas, one shilling and three pence a week for minnows to 200 pounds. This is about twenty-eight cents a week.

During the year ending March 31, 1891, the inhabitants of Great Britain consumed 27,821,000 gallons of whisky. In Ireland the consumption, while averaged one gallon per head, while in Scotland it was one-half gallon per head.

General Shafter, chief of United States Ordnance, is about to establish a laboratory in Pueblo for experiments with smokeless powder and high explosives. The enterprise will be conducted under government auspices, and with money from the national treasury.

Mr. Fausto Hoffman, publisher of Cullinan, Alabama, has two ships at the present cost of the year, for trading in coal. One was damaged, but was repaired, and a second another re-entered. From a basket which she carried, he began a second business. She was highly obliged in July without doing any injury.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Mr. Fausto Hoffman, publisher of Cullinan, Alabama, has two ships at the present cost of the year, for trading in coal. One was damaged, but was repaired, and a second another re-entered. From a basket which she carried, he began a second business. She was highly obliged in July without doing any injury.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.

Chephren, minister of the Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, says that England has no intention of taking complete control of his country. He states that there is no disposition on the part of his people to be annexed to the United States. Overall will remain an independent kingdom. Chephren's daughter is half-American.