> A Peculiar Book .- "The Record, volume of over 300 pages, is a poem of exceptional beauty, illustrating a theory of the philosophy of life. The ideas of the author are displayed in an attractive shape, being in the form of a story of striking interest, the characters being used as mediums through whom philosophical thoughts are elucidated. To one who is attracted with that class of literature which embodies fiction, poetry and philosophy, this work cannot fail houses of John P. Kelly and to have a peculiar charm. The intent John Durrant, arrested them on of the author appears to be to impress similar charges and subpœnaed the reader with the theory that there is progression for man in the spirit life, beyond the grave. The John W Lowell Company, of New York, are the publishers.
