

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

Correspondents writing for publication are requested to write on one side of the paper only. No notice can be taken of anonymous communications. Correspondents' names must in every instance accompany their communications, but not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of reliability.

THEATRICAL.—This evening Miss Adams will make her first bow before a Salt Lake audience, in the superb character of Julia, in "The Hunchback," supported by a strong cast. Mr. McKinnis as Master Walter and Miss Adams as Julia.

KANARRA.—Brother Samuel Pollock, writing from Kanarra on the 25th ult., says "the prospects are very good for an abundant harvest in this locality; yet we are sorry to announce the arrival of the locusts in our fields, although not in quantity sufficient to do much damage."

FEET STAMPING.—If people who are in the habit of keeping time to music in places of amusement, such as the theatre, only know what an intense feeling of annoyance they cause in those who appreciate good, delicate and refined music; if they possessed even a slight degree of human compassion, they would at once cease from indulging in that vulgar habit. Surely the slightest consideration this stamping can afford those who do it ought to be sacrificed for the benefit of those who consider that the noise made by knocking the feet against a board lends no additional charm to the music, loud whispering, munching candy, apples, etc., during the rendition of the most sublime and interesting parts of a play are bad enough, goodness knows, and have an annoying effect upon the nervous appreciation of the drama, and therefore should only be indulged in between acts; but at any rate do spare the feelings of the lovers of the "Divine Art" and don't stamp the feet to keep time to the tune. Those noisy demonstrations of applause—whistling, yelling and stamping, so frequently indulged in by the masculine portion of our youthful theatre-goers, are an intolerable nuisance, and should be suppressed. Our theatre has the reputation—and it is well merited—of being more orderly than probably any theatre in the world, and also of being entirely free from those objectionable features that in almost every other theatre excite the horror of the orthodox religionist; but if the annoyances referred to above were suppressed, it would still improve the reputation of our theatre, and while the real pleasure of none would suffer the least decrease, that of many would be largely increased.

GRASSHOPPER.—Bp. H. H. Kearnes, writing from Gunnison on the 25th ult., says "In the last three days the grasshoppers have come in countless swarms, and the little grain they left from last spring is now almost destroyed. Oats and late sowed wheat there will be nothing of. Gardens and young orchards are much injured, and from the appearance of things they are preparing to lay their eggs for another season. We will not be able to raise near enough grain to supply the inhabitants of the place."

MALAD CITY.—Bro. D. R. Dille, writing from Malad City on the 21st ult., says the harvest in that valley had commenced in good earnest, with a prospect of a good yield as could be seen probably anywhere in the Territory. The grasshoppers, in great numbers, had not them several visits, but had probably not destroyed above one-tenth of the entire crop. We are sorry to hear that the health of Bro. D. Dille is not very good. Bro. Dille says they have room in that valley for many more settlers.

A BIG FIRE.—On the evening of the 25th ult., just below Cheyenne City, an immense pile of coal, belonging to the railroad company, was discovered to be on fire. Every possible effort was made to arrest its progress, but in vain, and it soon extended to a large pile of pine wood lying contiguous. The conflagration was seen for miles around, and lasted until two thousand tons of coal and a thousand cords of pine wood, value fifty thousand dollars, were consumed. By some, the fire was supposed to have been the work of an incendiary, but the general impression was that it was the result of spontaneous combustion, accelerated by the rain that had recently taken place.

WANTS TO HEAR FROM HIM.—J. L. Floyd, of Chaudierville, Chester county, Pennsylvania, wishes Elias Harmer to write to him.

NOTICE.—There is a letter for John Lloyd at President Young's Office.

CEGAR CITY.—Brother John V. Adams, writing from Cedar City, Iron county, on the 25th ult., says, "The locusts are here in fearful numbers, our fields are literally alive with them. They came from the north on the 22nd, and from the absorbing topic of the times."

In reference to the crops, etc., he says, "Our crops are excellent, but much damage may yet be done to late crops, it is presumable that the early grain, which is near maturity, will escape the devastating pests. However, it is a hard matter to say, truthfully, what the appetite of those insatiable hordes would refuse in the shape of vegetation. Our fruit crop is unusually good. "A good feeling exists between our citizens and the natives in our vicinity. They follow, in a limited degree, the peaceful pursuit of agriculture, having a farm enclosed and under cultivation."

WATER IN THE DESERT.—The Rio Virgin Times says "Last month the hands sent out to search for water on the new road to the Muddy, returned. They report having dug and walked up a well 35 feet in depth, in the Beaver Dam well, with abundance of nice water, and wind-lift and bucket for the use of travelers. There are now only about 20 miles between water on the new road that altogether avoids crossing the Rio Virgin river."

STARTLING DISCOVERY.—One of our exchange—evidently in a state of dotage—refers to an incident in relation to the departure of the distinguished military visitors from Denver—General Grant, Sherman and Sheridan. It appears that when aboard the express and just before leaving the city, a little girl, daughter of the express agent came running to see "Grant." She was lifted into the coach by Gen. Sheridan and presented to Gen. Grant, who took her in his arms and kissed her, and then introduced her to Gen. Sherman who saluted her, and so in turn with Gen. Sheridan and Gen. Grant. Now, the incident, in and of itself, is pretty enough, but certainly is of no particular interest to the public; but our contemporary after indulging in considerable bystanding in relation to it says, "The incident derived its significance from the absence of jealousy between these remarkable men it so well displayed. It has always marked their intercourse. No amount of attention shows one can play the others, but they rather take pride in it; indeed they are forever complimenting each other, officially and unofficially, as if they were a human trinity. And we are inclined to believe that such is the highest source from which the other would receive a compliment, because they are peers."

Now, who ever said more welcome trouble than the above? The three distinguished men, especially referred to, may be as free from jealousy as it is possible for poor human nature to be. They have grown together, each has helped to make the other great, and they each understand the other's true worth and greatness. But that the act of each of them kissing a little girl, "as pretty and sweet as a dove or an opening rosebud," is a proof that they are free from jealousy or "peerless," is something that never would have been discovered, but by one totally blinded by hero worship or who has looked the "blarney stone."

BIG EFFORTS.—The following extract is from a letter printed in the Daily Tresspass, dated Wadsworth, Nevada, July 27, 1906: "Every effort possible is being put forth to reach the station for 'Great Salt Lake City' in advance of the Union Pacific Company train from the East. A bet offered a few days since by an advocate of the latter company, that they would reach this point (Salt Lake City) before the Central Pacific Company did, was readily taken by one of the managers of this section of the road. Besides forty more on the way from the East. Every mile of the road requires a hundred tons of rail, and about that amount in weight of ties, together with other material. The C. P. R. R. Company have now on their road one hundred and twenty locomotives—all, or nearly all, in running order, besides forty more on the way from the East. These facts show the confidence those interested in the construction of this section have in its early completion. The C. P. R. R. Company have now on their road one hundred and twenty locomotives—all, or nearly all, in running order, besides forty more on the way from the East.
