Daly and Ajax Show Falling Off-Tesora and Star Con. Softening -Boss Tweed Active.

Business closed on the mining exchange today with the sale of 34,100 shares for \$11,014.75. Stocks were a little quieter than usual, and prices generally showed a weakening tendency. Lower Mammoth and Mammoth formed exceptions to the above statement. The former sold up to \$3.061/2, though it weakened to \$2.05 on the closing sale. Mammoth was quite firm around \$2.21, as was May Day at 47. Ajax opened at \$2 and sold down to 8014, while Daly was traded in as low as \$2.04 per share, Some activity was seen in Eagle & Blue Bell, which sold as high as \$2, Grand Central was unchanged at \$6.00, while Star Con. sold down to 78%. Silver Shield was much weaker today as the result of the passing of the dividend sales being made as low as 10 cents per share. Tesora was also a little softer at 481/2 and 49. Boss Tweed was active at 11, while Manhattan sold at $\frac{5}{8}$ and Yankee Con, at 12½. Boston & De La-mar let go 5,000 shares for \$10. Closing quotations were posted as follows:

It is quite probable that the big tailings dumps at the Honorine of Stockton will shortly he treated again by modern methods. It is understood that a proosition has been made by the parties who have the option on the mine to Messrs. Richmond and Bowers of the Salt Lake Hardware company, When seen today Mr. Bowers said he was not in a position to say anything further than that a number of tests had been made on the tailings by Mr. Richmond who has the matter in hand, Mr. Richmond is now in the East and is looking over mining machinery there for the most improved methods handling the big dump. It consists of about 60,000 tons and it is said that the parties who have the option on the mine expect to get $1 per ton for the lot. Meantime work is going along nicely at the mine. The two new Worthington sinking pumps are now in place in the shaft and within a day or two Super-intendent Raddatz expects to push the drift forward. It is expected on pass-ing through the big porphyry dyke a larger flow of water will be encountered, but the management is now prepared to handle 1,500 gallons per minute Later on the new Janesville pump,hav ing a capacity of 2,000 gallons will be placed in the station on the lowest level. The new boiler is also in place and the stack was being put in place

Lower Mammoth Management Quits Sinking at 880 Level.

The Lower Mammoth company has stopped the work of sinking at the depth of 80 feet below the 800 level, and is now cutting a station preparatory to crosscutting to the vein. This was the news imparted today by Simor Bamberger, who has just returned from the mine. It was expected that the 101/2 company would sink 20 feet deeper be-fore a station was cut, and the above announcement may surprise some of the stock holders. Mr. Bamberger says the 880-foot level of the Lower is the 134 same as the 1,000 level of the Ajax, and ag it is the intention to connect the workings of the two properties, it was thought best to cut a station at the above point. The vein is expected to be tapped in about 100 feet after which the management will drift both ways. 456 It is intimated that the Lower Mam-moth workings on the lew level may be 3 05% run into the Ajax to determine if that Conflicting Movements in the Steel Stocks company will derive any benefit from the ore body in the Lower Mammoth. The new half of the compressor is now on the ground and the bins are

It breathes the same spirit as the "Old Homestead," and who knows but that its longevity will be just as great. It is as true to rural life as that kind of existence is to honor and sterling manhood and womanhood. It depicts the eccentricities and character-istics of the performers just as they would display them upon the farm. More than that, it preaches a sermon Money on call nominally 2 per cent. Not often are the performers of a Not often are the performers of a play so nearly equal in ability as those which go to form the cast in "Way Down East." All are good; none are weak. The narrative itself is distinct and easily followed. It discloses the true mother's love for her son-a son who has been all devotion. The young man is in love with a girl whom cir-cumstances mark as an outcast, but who has been imposed upon by a mock marriage. The girl is all honor and demarriage. The girl is all honor and de-clares that she does not want and will not become the wife of the young man. For months she remains under the roof of the home of the latter's parents. Finally she is driven forth into the cold and cruel world amidst a blinding snow storm, with only a part of the truth revealed. The whole story now quickly unwinds itself and she is sought and brought back to become the wife of the son who leaves the parental roof for her sake. The man who is the cause of her wretched life is in the meantime held up to exectation and the wagging tongue of gossip now only wags in words of praise. There is not a little real humor running through the whole play, and the scenic production is elaborate and as natural as the characters themselves. The door yard of Squire Bartlett's farm took the entire audience—or congrega-tion, directly on to the premises of an old-fashioned farm, with all its simple and picturesque surroundings. There was the well with its oaken bound bucket directly in the foreground, the shady nooks, rustic seats, entrances to shauy hooks, fusic sears, entrances to house and barn, quaint characters— counedy and pathos all intermingled. The butter-making incident in the first act, through the medium of the old dasher-handled churn, brought such realistic recollections to the mind of the writer that it caused his back to ache writer that it caused his back to ache and impelled him with a desire to rush from the scene. He had been there many times when a boy, when hours of churning failed to bring anything more than the aforesaid backache. The downfall of the beautiful in the third act was the most realistic stage snow storm ever invented and elicited much applause.

applause. Of the performers, Robert Fischer, as Squire Bartiett, probably did the strongest work, though Francis Byrne, as David the lover-son displayed abil-ity that should make him an actor of renown. Let his career be followed, and if it does not become brilliant then things are not what they seem Baryl things are not what they seem. Beryl Hope, as Anna Moore, the heroine, is John E. Brennan, as Hi Holler, the chore boy, was genuinely and scream-ingly funny, and his "pickings from Puck" as dry as an abandoned bone yard. The piece goes for the remainder of the week. . . .

Ex-Sheriff Wm. McQueen was taken before County Clerk James, who sat as judge pro tempore yesterday afternoon, and was examined as to his sanity by County Physician Mayo and Dr. Ellerbeck. Several witnesses were present and testified that Mr. McQueen had been afflicted in the past, at different times, with spells of irresponsibility, although the development of the mania was infrequent. But now the affliction has assumed an acute form, and the ex-sheriff has tendencies at times to inflict self-destruction. His main hal-lucination appears to be of a relig-lons-evil-spirit character. He sings short snatches from religious songs an talks in an incoherent manner with ref-erence to the Delty and His dealings with mankind. He also imagines he sees evil spirits, and fears he has done wrong in some manner, and thus of-fended St. Peter and the Pope of Rome. ometimes upon the nurses at the hosoftal requesting him to do certain things he resists with all the force at his command.

The examining physicians soon came to the conclusion that he ought to be nmitted to the asylum at Provo, the county clerk so ordered. Sheria Naylor took the unfortunate man down to the Garden city on last evening's train. Mr. McQueen's condition excited the sympathy of all those who saw and know him. He was greatly emaclated and was hardly recognizable to his old friends. Until lately he was superin tendent of the Ben Butler mine a Bingham, and about three weeks ag he took down with an attack of pneu nonia, which he successfully overcame out in the meantime suffered a menta collapse, and has been in the Holy Cros hospital for treatment. NEW ORE PULVERIZER.

Invented for the Purpose of Doing Away With Stamp Mills.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer gives an account of a new ore pulverizing plant which was tested a few days ap and found to be very successful. purpose of the machine is to pulverize gold-bearing and other valuable ores into so minute a form that the values can easily be extracted. It does its work so well that a microscope is said to be necessary to distinguish the fine particles. In this work it is designed to take the place of the cumbersome particles. and weighty stamps now in use on most free milling properties, ore which is to be treated is first placed in an ordinary rock crusher where it is reduced to pieces about the size of peas. From this crusher it is carried automatically in an elevator to two small hoppers, which pour it into the steel box where the crushing done. The ore runs down in two small streams at opposite ends of the box. Each of these streams is caught by a jet of steam, which is under 100 pound pressure, and is shot toward the center of the box at a speed of 3,000 feet a second. The result is that the two streams of ore meet with an impact of 6,000 feet a second. The shock is so great that every particle of the rock is shattered into atoms. The fine dust thus formed is drawn up by suction power into a large bin, the power being licately arranged that it will not lift any stray pieces of ore which may have escaped the collision.

Sacramento Bullion.

A bar of gold bullion weighing near ly 12 pounds, was seen in the office of the Sacramento Mining company tothe result of the last clean-up day, bullion was run out by the Utah Reduction company, operating near the Jordan river. New York, Feb. 26 .- The market pened feverish and unsettled under the nfluence of conflicting movements in the steel stocks. The sale of 5,000 shares of Steel & Wire carried that stock down from 4314 to 43, compared with 45 last night. On the other hand American Hoop, on the sale of 5,000 shares, was quoted at 37 and 35%.compared with 35 last night. National Tube rose 11/2. The other members of the group showed fractional changes both ways. The changes in the ralload list were also mixed, and the internationals generally failed to respond to the advances in London. Prices of the steel stocks underwent rapid fluctuations following the publication of thorized details of terms on which the stocks of the various steel companies vill be exchanged into the new United States Steel corporation. A heavy sell-ing movement developed while the street was analyzing the terms offered which drove Steel & Wire 2% below last night; the preferred and National Steel, 1½, and lowered American Hoop; preferred, and National Tube, 2 points below the high price at the start, Federal Steel, preferred, declined 1½ from the best, while Tin Plate suffered a point. Never before did the Salt Lake Theater have quite such an audience as that which it held last night on the occasion of the presentation of "Way Down East," Lottle Blair Parker's pretty New England play, as revised and elaborated by Joseph R. Grismer. High church officials, "Mormon" and non-"Mormon," were seen in every section of the down stairs portion of the house. Among them were faces that the oldest dramatic critic could not recall under similar circumstances. Altogether was a substantial endorsement of the production which has entered upon a record-breaking season. And it will not be at all surprising if it relegates all other records to the rear, as the audi-ence last night drew very lightly upon the regular theater-going public. That part of the community, or much of it, has bought tlokets for later perform-ances. This reversal of the natural order of things is not a little surprising and is accounted for only from the fact that the story is one that appeals to and is approved by the religious element. To what extent this element was represented may be judged from re-coloring and there were realistic bits in its presentation-such as the scene in which the plano is heard for the first time in the mining camp, and the dazed miners gather about the spot in awed which was as artistic as could wonder, be desired. The chief characters in the play, Jack Mason and Bessie Fairfax, were done by Mr. Ralph Cummings and Miss Blanche Douglas and it was the general opinion that neither had been seen to better advantage. As the handsome, cool, debonair Jack Mason the typical sporting man of the western mining comp, Mr. Cummings made a hit that was only equalled by his Capt. Swift, and his art made him the object of several enthusiastic curtain calls. Miss Douglas as winsome Bessie Fairfax, gave an impersonation that held the hearts of her audience from her first appearance in her bedraggled pink gown and soiled sunbonnet, till the curtain went down, and the huge boquet of American Beauties that went over the footlights to her was an out ward manifestation of her popularity with the entire audience, whoever might been the individual donor. Miss Ruth Holt who took Miss Hall's place. owing to the bad cold from which the latter is suffering, looked exceedingly pretty and played her part with a sweetness and dignity that captivated the audience, and Miss Edith Angus did an excellent bit of characterization in her rather thankless part of Mrs. Boggs, Willard Blackmore as Alex Fairfax, was a close second to Mr. Cummings, the part of the rough, big hearted miner ng exceptionally well done. As Duncan Lemoyne, the diabolical persecutor of the heroine, Joseph Downs was all that could be imagined of congealed vil. lany, and Mr. Giblyn made his two short character bits stand out with usual ex. ellent distinctness. The part of Jim Bixby was well done by Harry Hynes, who is always at his best in eccentric characters. The play will be done for a matinee on Wednesday, and judging by the favor with which it was received will doubtless be largely attended. The "Little Minister" will be the bill for tonight.

Senate Committee Told Why It Should and Why It Shouldn't.

The committee on Fish and Game of the Senate held an open meeting yesterday and listened to reasons why they should, and why they should not pass the Allison game bill. Martin Garn of Salt Lake avowed that the present law would be very satisfactory with a few minor amendments. He did not think that a citizen should be amenable to the law if he has in his possession fish or game during the prohibited season. He also spoke in favor of putting screens in irrigation ditches. He fur-ther said that the throwing of sawdust in streams destroys more fish eggs than any other one thing. Mr. Garn was in favor of taxing hunters and fishers outside of the State $40 each for using guns and rods here, as the States of Idaho and Wyoming do. He thought that it would prove to be a revenue of $4,000 to the State annually.

Mr. Garn also wanted to have the duck season closed in January and February and opened in March, and a iaw should be passed forbidding the ex-portation of fish or game from the

Mr. Perry of Brigham City didn't like the provision in Senator Allison's bill requiring a license of $2 from all per-sons bunting or fishing. He said that represented may be judged from re-marks such as these which were fre-quently heard: "Why, this isn't a theater audience at all; it is a fast meeting congregation," or "It looks like mass to me." This is the way it struck a well known preacher: "We had a meeting of the Ministers' asso-clation this morning to consider the suppression of Sunday liquor selling, and to me it looks as though the breth-
