CHRISTENSEN'S

Mr. Christensen will give a special Matinee and Ball in his beautiful new Academy, 127 East 1st St., on Thanksgiving Day, at 4 and 8:30.

In Women's World.

A certain woman had her drawing room so filled with bric-a-brac that it was only with the greatest caution that one could go about the room without displacing or injuring some piece of it. It was the constant care of this woman to add to, arrange and exploit this collection, and her life was so absorbed in this occupation that she had no time for a needless kindness, or to read a helpful book, or to speak on enlightening subjects. She was a complete slave to the unessential.

Of course, the great reason why non-essentials should be eliminated is that the clearness of brain, the concentration of mind, the strength of heart and hand, that are essentials and make for essential, are by them entirely hindered or rendered wholly or in part ineffective and inadequate for the task in hand—the making of a happy and successful life. The gardener who is master of his business prunes away many small tendrils from the tree that the life and sod and growing forces may not be diverted from the fruit producing branches. Many a bud and offshoot from the rosebud is removed that thereby all the nourishment may be conserved to make the perfect blossom. What girl or boy brought up on a farm has not been set to think out the best way to many plants, if allowed to grow in the bed, would have so exhausted the earth's nourishment as to have rendered the whole of the vegetable small and unsatisfactory.

"Whether life is to be a failure or a success depends very largely on whether we allow the non-essentials to choke and hinder and divert the soul forces, or we cut them away and devote them to the perfection of the fruit, the consummate flower of a symmetrical soul."

BACHELORS.

"Bachelors can be found roaming at large in all parts of the world. They inhabit apartments, clubs, open fields, bodies of water and music halls. They are also seen behind the scenes. They hover at times near front gates, and have been found in back parlors with the aid of a searchlight."

"Bachelors are nomads by nature and variable in their tastes, never going with one girl long enough to be dangerous."

"Bachelors make love easily, but rarely keep it. Rich bachelors are hunted openly and shamelessly, and are always in great danger. Those who finally escape are as rule, never any afterwards."—Tom Masson, in the December Delineator.

dress is its simplicity, even in high-class gowns. The skirt designed for morning wear is short enough to avoid all danger of contamination from the pavement. This calls for footwear that is well cut, and free from the least appearance of shabbiness.

"The material chosen for morning dress is woolen. Tweeds are used, also serge and plaid cloths. The trimmings are straps and braids, stiff, narrow plainings, flat braids, pliable leather and hand-embroidered and braided in conventional designs. The colors reflect the rich autumn tints. Wine and sherry shades forest green and bronze, and the warm hues of the dahlia and petunia are seen in plain materials and in checks and plaids, to be made up separately or in combination.

"Among the accessories of morning dress are belts of Persian leather, embroidered suede, and studded elastic. Plaque gloves add to the 'workmanlike' and the morning frock of even the lady of leisure must now assume. Linen shirts continue to be worn, but with the advent of cold weather fine flannel blouses and waists of plain, checked and plaid taffeta will make their appearance."

THE SLAVERY OF SUPERSTITION.

"There is no form of mental slavery so torturing as the slavery of superstition," says Lillian Bell in the December Delineator. "We are fond of resigning ourselves to the unenlightened, but few are the men and women today who are perfectly free from it in some shape. And after all, what does it amount to but fear? Fear of disappointment or disaster. We spend our lives in the shadow of a great fear."

"I feel no scorn for the victims of superstitions of whatever sort cherished, any more than I would feel contempt for the ill-treated child, which, when snatched from beatings to safety, flung up its tiny arms to guard its face from expected blows, at the slightest move on the part of its new-found friends. But my heart is wrung with the same sympathy for an unnecessary and inexplicable fear which is allowed to torture and make miserable lives which but for that would be mostly sunshine."
