UNIVERSITY GETS IT.

Liberatory Building New Presidents & Part of that building.

The Salt Lake Library and its association has formally transferred to the Utah State University through the presidents of that institution, the Liberator building on West Sixth street. This transfer was made at the conclusion of the endorsement first conferred by the association on the University's establishment as a chair of science. The association's original endowment of $10,000 in value was transferred over. The new agreement provides for the building and grounds to be $10,000.

The members of the board of trustees who were present were Justice Robert Frank Pierce, Waldron Van Duzer, T. C. Clegg, and others. Resolutions were adopted accepting the University's arrangement to have the building and grounds at a value of $10,000. This price agrees upon for the building and grounds is $10,000.

Frank George's Association.

Orson Vining, Then, there was a meeting on last Wednesday evening of citizens interested in the advancement of the fruit industry of this county. The meeting had been called for the purpose of taking steps to upgrade an association through which the fruit industry could be made more profitable.

A committee consisting of O. W. Warner, R. J. Thompson, J. M. Maynard, and W. S. Thompson, was chosen to prepare the necessary papers for incorporation and submit them to the city council at their next meeting, at which time further steps will be taken toward the organization of a fruit association.

The meeting was opened with a short address by J. P. Miller, secretary of the association. After some discussion, it was decided to incorporate a company with a capital of $10,000, and to issue 2,500 shares of the $5 each stock, fully paid up to the non-members.

The committee to draw up the articles of incorporation, and the election of a president, vice-president, etc.
