TO THE MUSICALLY INCLINED,

And to those desirous of Learning Music!

Mrs. WHITE, of Rochester,

TEACHES Robbins' American Method for the Piano-forte, which is so far superior to the old method of teaching the Piano-forte, Melodeon or Organ that its full importance can scarcely be estimated. It is a century ahead of all other methods for the Piano—Pupils acquiring a knowledge of Music in an almost incredibly short time.

References to and letters of recommendations from the most eminent Professors of Music in the East.

Mrs. WHITE is stopping at the TOWNSEND HOUSE for a limited time, where she can be found, and full particulars learned. Private tuition given.

A CARD.

To the Inhabitants and purchasing Community of this Territory:—

Owing to the great decline in the prices of goods in the Eastern Markets (being determined to keep IN RATIO with them,) I have made a further reduction in the prices of goods, which upon examination will speak for themselves. I have also on hand a great many articles that have laid over for one and two years—which I will sell, REGARDLESS OF COST, even lower than the present rates in the Eastern Markets will permit of; viz: Table and Pocket Cutlery, Spades, Shovels, Scythes and Snaths, Bake Skillets, Locks and Latches, Tea and Table Spoons, Carriage Bolts, Cast, Bilster and Plough Steel, Soap, Lye, Tobacco, and an immense variety of other goods, which are necessities for every day use. Farmers and Country Merchants would do well to call and examine the stock and prices, and as Greenbacks are scarce in the country, I will take for pay, Cattle, Wheat, Flour, Barley, Oats, Pork, &c., for which I will give a price that will guarantee satisfaction.

BENEFIT of Mr. P. MARGETTS

From the Arizona Miner we extract the following interesting account of a terrible voyage through the Big Cañon of the Colorado. It was published in September last; but, as it possesses some interest to the people of this Territory, we do not think it stale. Hon. Erastus Snow, who has perused the account, says it is true that such a man did come down the river. He was seen by Bro.

Andrew S. Gibbon, of St. Thomas, and described his trip to him. Bro. Gibbon is an Indian interpreter, and had opportunities of knowing that he told the truth:

NAVIGATION OF THE BIG CANON. A TERRIBLE VOYAGE.

William J. Beggs, who arrived here to-day from Hardyville, brings us the following account of the first passage, so far as is known, of any human being through the Big Cañon of the Colorado. He derived the particulars from Captain Wilburn, of the barge Colorado, who arrived at Hardyville on Monday last, and James Ferry of Callville, who arrived on Tuesday:

In April last a party, consisting of Captain Baker, an old Colorado prospector, and formerly a resident of St. Louis, George Strobe, also from St. Louis, and James White, formerly of Penosha, Iowa, and late of Company H, Fifth California Cavalry, left Colorado City to prospect on San Juan river, which empties into the Colorado between the junction of Green and Grand rivers and the Big Cañon. They prospected until the middle of August with satisfactory success, and then decided to return to Colorado City for a supply of provisions and a larger company. They set out to go by the mouth of the San Juan, with the double purpose of finding a more practicable route to Green river than the one they had traversed, and of visiting some localities which Captain Baker had prospected some years previously. On the morning of the 24th of August while encamped about a mile from the Colorado, they were attacked by a band of about fifty Utes. Captain Baker was killed, but Strobe and White secured their carbines and revolvers, some ropes and a sack containing ten pounds of flour, and ran to the Colorado, where they found a few drift logs, which they hastily fastened together, and embarking on the frail raft, started down the river in the hope of reaching Callville. On the second day they came to the first rapids, in passing over which they lost their flour. On the third day they went over a fall ten feet high, and Strobe was washed from the raft and drowned.

White had lashed himself to the raft, which, although shattered by the shock, sustained him, and he hauled it up on an island below the fall, repaired it, and proceeded alone. He had not much hope of getting through alive, but he thought his body might go through, and, being found, furnish a clue by which his friends would learn his fate. He describes the course of the river as very tortuous, with a constant succession of rapids and falls, the latter varying in height from four to ten or twelve feet. Sometimes when he plunged over a fall, the raft would turn over upon him, and he would have much difficulty in extricating himself from his perilous condition. For a few days he found on bars and islands in the river sufficient mezzquit to allay the pangs of hunger, but for seven days he had nothing to eat but a leather knife scabbard. He saw a few lizards but was unable to catch them; and he looked from side to side in vain for any mode of egress from the Cañon, the perpendicular walls of which were in many places a mile and a half, as well as he could estimate, in height.

He floated on an average, about ten hours a day, hauling up at night on the bars which were formed by the eddies below the falls. For about ten days he was without hat, pants or boots, having lost them while going over a fall. On the afternoon of the 6th, he passed the mouth of the Virgen river, and a party of Pah-Utes swam off and pushed his raft ashore. They stole one of two pistols which he had managed to preserve, and he bartered the other to them for the hind-quarters of a dog, one of which he ate for supper and the other for breakfast. On the 7th he reached Callville, and was taken care of by Captain Wilburn and Mr. Ferry. He was much emaciated, his legs and feet were blistered and blackened by the sun; his hair and head, which had been dark, were turned white, and he walked with difficulty, being unable to stand erect. He remains at Callville, and although in a precarious condition, will probably recover.

From his actual traveling time, and the rapidity of the current, it is estimated that the distance through the cañon, from the mouth of the San Juan to Callville, is not much short of five hundred miles.

A well organized gang of ten-year old thieves has been broken up in San Francisco.

A Cape Cod tailoress, Miss Elizabeth Alexander, has cut two thousand five hundred yards of cloth, and made four thousand button holes, during the past year.

William Murphy, of Taunton, Mass., died in his one hundred and eighth year last week, leaving descendants to the fifth generation. He has sawed wood for his subsistence within a year.

There are 12,600 public journals in the world. America has 5,000 and all Europe only 7,500. Twelve million sheets are issued daily.

The Baltimore American thinks that Reverdy Johnson stands no chance of re-election, and that the Senatorship lies between Messrs. William T. Hamilton and William Pinkney White.

A merchant of Bloomington, Illinois, has hit upon a kindly method of advertising his wares. He gave ten dozen caps away on Christmas to the poor of the town.

Cincinnati has the credit of originating and perfecting "the system which packs fifteen bushels of corn into a pig, and packs that pig into a barrel, and sends him over the ocean to feed mankind."

COULD HAVE HIS MONEY.—One of the pleasantest incidents of the French Court stage occurred when the Emperor Napoleon jokingly hissed the Empress Josephine, who was acting a little operatic part in the theatre in the palace of St. Cloud. She demurely stepped forward and remarked that any one of the audience who was dissatisfied with the performance might retire and have his money returned to him at the door. The consequent laughter was uproarious.
