

DRUGGISTS GET DOWN TO WORK

Good Papers Read at Second Day Session of Utah Pharmaceutical Association.

OFFICERS' ELECTION TODAY

And This Evening the Convention Will Wind Up With Banquet At Commercial Club.

The second day of the sessions of the Utah Pharmaceutical association began this morning, with an attendance considerably increased over that of yesterday. The delegates seemed refreshed and inspired by the outing of last evening to the lake, where bathing, dancing, and a banquet were among the features of entertainment.

The feature of the morning session was the address by George P. McCabe, solicitor of the department of agriculture at Washington. Mr. McCabe is a young man of prepossessing personality and of undoubted erudition. He is a Utah product, having been born and reared in Ogden. While yet a young man, Mr. McCabe was chosen to be principal of the Ogden schools, and there was much criticism, adverse and otherwise, in the Junction city as to the placing of so much responsibility in the public schools upon the shoulders of one so young. Mr. McCabe, however, "mad good," and filled the position of principal to the entire satisfaction of all concerned. He studied law and became attached to the government service in the department of agriculture, where he has steadily worked his way upward until he is now solicitor for the department.

PURE FOOD AND DRUGS ACT. Mr. McCabe's paper this morning was a thorough treatise on the effect of the operation and enforcement of the pure food and drugs act of June 30, 1906. He said in part: "I feel honored that there should come to me this opportunity to address the Utah Pharmaceutical association, not only because of a great interest in the national law which is the subject of my remarks, but because of the character and standing of this association and of the individuals who compose it. Upon the good sense, honesty, ability and public spirit of the druggists and the pharmacist, much depends in the enforcement of the law."

Passing over the history of pharmacy as practiced through the ages, Mr. McCabe told of the steps taken by the secretary of agriculture to protect the drug supply of the country, which he said, came mostly from foreign countries. "The law says," continued Mr. McCabe, "that no drug shall come into this country if it is adulterated or misbranded, or may be dangerous to the health of the people of the United States. Accordingly, samples are taken of drugs offered for import into the United States, and if they are adulterated or dangerous to the health of our people, their entry is not allowed and it is required that they be shipped out of the limits of the country. Before the national law was enacted, the pharmacist and the people had no such protection."

"The pure food law has been in operation now for about two years and a half, and while the law was passed primarily for the protection of the consumer, it has been in many instances, of service to the wholesaler as well as the retailer. In a moral, as well as practical way, before the act was passed there was no restraint on the kind of drugs and chemicals placed on the market. Because of competition with unscrupulous dealers, the man who wished to carry on his business with clean hands, was either forced to adopt the tactics of the unscrupulous or go to the wall. Now the honesty of the druggist, both wholesaler and retailer, is protected by law, and he may carry on his business in a decent, reputable fashion."

EFFICIENT SERVICE. Mr. McCabe cited a number of instances in which violators of the law had been apprehended and punished, showing the efficiency of the branch of the service having to do with the enforcement of the provisions of the law. Mr. McCabe said in conclusion: "The purchasing of drugs from the wholesaler, manufacturer, or any other source, you should require the person or firm from whom you make the purchase to give you a guaranty. In this connection you should bear in mind that a guaranty is of no protection to you unless given to you by the person from whom you purchase. The law requires every package or bottle containing a drug which is in whole or in part alcohol, morphine, opium, cocaine, or certain other related dangerous or habit-forming drugs mentioned in the act, to bear a statement of the quantity and proportion of these substances. The department of agriculture asks that the Utah Pharmaceutical association, and every pharmacist in this country, that they will use their best endeavors to assist in the enforcement of the food and drugs act. Its benefits to you are apparent and its benefits to the country as a whole cannot be overestimated." The address was greeted with prolonged applause, in which every delegate participated enthusiastically.

PRICE OF PRESCRIPTIONS. Charles VanDyke of the VanDyke Drug company, delivered a paper on the subject, "What System do You Consider Fair and Equitable in the Pricing of Prescriptions?" Mr. VanDyke said in part: "Not long ago I telephoned to an electric company for an electric push button switch, and was told the price would be 50 cents. As one of the employees of the company would be passing my way soon, I said he would deliver it to me. He did, and when he arrived, he asked if he should attach the switch. I said why yes, he might as well. He attached the switch and what was my surprise on the first of the following month to receive a bill for $1.35. Why? Because the employee ordered two or three minutes of charging a switch, and the minimum price for any labor was 75 cents. As it is with the electrician, so it is with any organized skilled labor. Are the pharmacists keeping pace with the onward and especially upward march by adhering to prices for the skilled knowledge required by the man who fills prescriptions?"

Mr. VanDyke entered into a technical discussion of the scale of prices charged by physicians, and compared them to the prices charged by pharmacists, arriving at the conclusion that the physician received more for his services, than the pharmacist, whose services were just as skilled and just as essential, as those of the physician. The speaker quoted from the Prescription Pricing Schedule which sets the scale for all general prescriptions and mixtures compounded in drug stores. Mr. VanDyke, however, was of the opinion that while this schedule may be taken as a basis for charges in preparing prescriptions, the price must also largely be influenced by local conditions, into which the price of transportation, etc., enters. Mr. VanDyke concluded: "In conclusion I desire to bring out one more point as to the necessity for a more proper remuneration in filling prescriptions. Every time we fill a prescription, we risk to a more or less degree our business and professional life. The confusion of mind with corrosive sublimate, quinine, morphine, opium, salts, oxalic acid and others, a moment of abstraction of the mind and work and study of years may be forgotten."

A discussion of the points made in the paper read by Mr. VanDyke, was made by George Driver of Ogden, treasurer of the association, Richard Bridge of Salt Lake City, and Wynn L. Eddy of Brigham City. Many technical points of interest to the druggists and pharmacists were brought out to the edification of those present. At noon recess was taken until 2 o'clock p. m. when the election of officers for the ensuing year was scheduled to occur.

PHARMACEUTICAL NOTES. At 12 o'clock the members and ladies attended the organ recital at the tabernacle, which they very much enjoyed.

This evening the ladies of the association will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Charles VanDyke, at 553 South Sixth East street, the ladies of the Salt Lake Retail Druggists' association will be present to assist in their reception and entertainment.

At 8:30 this evening a banquet will be given by the Salt Lake druggists at the Commercial club.

DAIRYMAN GETS HIS VINDICATION

J. E. Malin Purged of the Charge Of Adulterating His Milk With Formaldehyde.

USED A CLEANSING FLUID.

Trace of Which Was Left on Cans and Appeared in Analysis of Milk Tested.

The testimony of the witnesses for the prosecution, City Food Inspector Walter J. Frazier and State Chemist Harms, went for this morning to vindicate J. E. Malin, proprietor of the Pleasant View dairy of the charge of purposely adulterating the product of his dairy with formaldehyde. Although the defense admitted that in the sample analyzed, which formed the basis of the complaint, traces of formaldehyde had been found, it was proven that its introduction into the milk had been unknown to Mr. Malin and had been the result of ignorance of the composition of a cleansing fluid used in the washing of the cans, at the conclusion of the case, although the defendant was found technically guilty, no sentence was imposed.

The testimony in the case showed that Mr. Malin had been using a patented solution, called "Freezie" for the purpose of cleaning his milk cans. It was only after the complaint had been issued against him that, in endeavoring to unravel the mystery of the appearance of formaldehyde in the milk sent out from his dairy, that Mr. Malin hit upon the possibility of its existence in the cleansing fluid. He had taken this fluid to State Chemist Harms and it was found to contain formaldehyde. Mr. Harms stated as the defense presented evidence to the court that the discovery of the formaldehyde in the samples taken from the milk cans could have been and probably was due to the use of the cleansing fluid. Mr. Frazier stated to the court that the discovery of the formaldehyde in the milk delivered by Mr. Malin had been a discovery of the fact that Mr. Malin maintained the cleanest and most sanitary dairies in the city, and that his record during the past four years had been unblemished. Mr. Malin informed the court that immediately upon the discovery that the fluid which he had bought and used because he had been given no date, contained formaldehyde he had immediately discontinued its use. He was admonished by the court that he should have his fluid tested before using them, and the further admonition was given to other dairymen that the discharge of the defendant in the present case was an unintentional violation of the law must not be construed as a precedent.

PETITION IN BANKRUPTCY.

George Morrow of Salt Lake City filed a petition today in bankruptcy, with the clerk of the federal court. The liabilities are $11,747.84, and the assets are placed at $50, which are exempt. Among the largest items among the liabilities is a judgment of $5,000, and $1,000 of the same nature against the Lumber company. Nearly all the lumber companies in the city appear on the list, as well as paint and hardware firms. The petition was given by that of Elias Morris & Sons company for $251.40, date back six years or more.

NEW TRIAL NOT GRANTED.

Joseph E. Caine's Victory to be Re-

Fought in Supreme Court.

In the case of Joseph E. Caine against Frank J. Hagenbach, a motion for a new trial was made this morning by W. R. Hutchinson, attorney for Mr. Hagenbach, for a new trial before Judge Lewis. The motion was overruled and will be carried to the supreme court.

Judge Lewis handed down a decision in the case Monday after having it under consideration for a year, giving Mr. Caine judgment for $250,000 on the sale of an option on the Laidig Copper mine in Yerrington, Nev.

TOO MUCH, SAYS SALT AIR.

The Salt Air company filed a motion for a new trial in the case of Ben D. Lewis, a negro, against the company, today. Judge Ritchie awarded Lewis judgment in the sum of 25 cents because he was ejected from the dancing pavilion. The company holds that the amount is excessive.

SEES MOTHER GROW YOUNG.

"I would be glad to overstate the wonderful change in my mother since she began to use Electric Bitters," writes Mrs. W. L. Gilpatrick of Danforth, Me. "Although she is 70 years old, she seems really to be growing young again. She suffered untold misery from dyspepsia for 20 years. At last she could neither eat, drink nor sleep. Doctors gave her up and all remedies failed till Electric Bitters worked such wonders for her health. ## Some Headliners at Judge Bowman's Matinee

R. H. Alexander, a genteel traveler in "Vagabondia," was given a curt "move on" this morning. Alexander pleaded guilty to being a vagrant, one of the stylish class, and was given until tomorrow to continue his travels.

Harry Wright was wrong when he took just one too many, but the court was lenient with him, and his excuse of "just having got drunk," was rewarded with a discharge. Harry had the distinction of being the only drunk in court this morning.

George Ottewill, who was found guilty of having interfered with a patrolman Tyler, while the latter was discharging his duty, was sentenced this morning to pay a fine of $25. This fine was imposed upon the recommendation of the prosecutor who informed the court that the defendant was a hard-working young man, and that any punishment in view of the fall confinement already suffered by the defendant, would be a hardship.

George Golding, Frank Coit and R. Desky confessed that they had been so enthusiastic over the merits of their respective motor cycles that they had ridden all about the speed ordinance as a gentle reminder that there is such an ordinance on the statute books they were fined $5 each for speeding.

Andrew Priel, Arthur Dufault, M. Monahan, John Sweeney, T. C. Richards and R. Maxwell, all pleaded guilty to having conspired with the defendant in the Belmont hotel last night and cost him $25, which he didn't voluntarily offer as a gift, nor know that he had paid that sum for a kiss until he was thrown out of the room by a supposed husband. Lacking sufficient evidence to convict the woman on a larceny charge, the police were content to see that she left the city and Leona seemed glad of the compromise.

On the promise that reimbursement would be made today, the case against Carl D. Hazely, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, was continued until tomorrow, when if it is shown that the plaintiff has been satisfied the charges will be dismissed. Hazely is accused of having obtained a piano from the Beesley Music company on a time contract and then mortgaging the same to Leon Johnson for $30.

A horse trade is said to lie back of the complaint read in court today charging Frank Brighurst with the embezzlement of a horse, valued at $100. James Curfew is the complainant, and according to the story told by the defendant, Brighurst grew "hot" of feeling and belief that he had got worsted in a trade of horses. Brighurst pleaded not guilty to the charge and will have his hearing July 22.

J. A. McVey was arrested this morning after the police have been on his trail four mornings, on the charge of embezzlement. He was arraigned in the police court this morning, but asked until tomorrow in which to enter his plea.

DOUBT ANDERSON'S STORY.

Police Say Man Who Claimed to Have Been Robbed Was Only Drunk.

After a day in the jailer's care Andy Anderson, who appeared at police headquarters yesterday morning in such condition that he required the police surgeon's attention and who told a story of having been held up, beaten and robbed by two thugs, was released last night. Although Anderson told an entirely straightforward story, the police through their inexperience, seemed to take little stock in it. Anderson was found yesterday morning about 10 o'clock lying in the gutter on West Temple street, by Patrolman Morris and special officer C. C. Riley. He had the appearance of having been severely beaten, and his condition was almost unconscious.

When received by Police Surgeon Steele and through the medium of Patrolman Kist, an interpreter, he told a story of how he had been set upon by two thugs and robbed of $20 and a six-dollar silver watch, and left lying unconscious in the gutter. The police through their inexperience, seemed to take little stock in it.
