"Bobby" Walthour and Archie McEachern, the Pan-American team, and the French pair, Gaugoltz and Samar, are out to lower the record made in Madison Square Garden in 1899 by Miller and Waller, when that team covered 2,733 miles and four laps. Last year Elkes and McFarland won the six-day race after riding 2,628 miles and seven laps. The Swedish team. Furtos and Peterson, failed to qualify and withdrew from the race.

The start was delayed until after midnight while Jimmy Michael rode an exhibition mile to motor pace in 1:47. At 12:11 a. m. the starting shot was fired. BILLINGS AFTER JEFFRIFS.

Local Heavyweight Would Like a Chance for Championship Honors.

It is said there is a big miner out at Mammoth who weighs 204 pounds in condition, who has whipped all the fighters, alleged and otherwise, who have bumped up against him, and now It is said, he is anxious to have a go at James J. Jeffries.

"coming champion's" manager is Frank Evans, also of Mammoth, and it is said he will have his man here on the occasion of Jeffries' visit and try to ar-range a match with him. He believes his man, whose name is Claude Billings, could stand up before the champion for several rounds without a knockout. If the champion should consent to take on the Mammoth man, there is likely to be some fun doing.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

So Says the Supreme Court About Part Of Fruit Tree Act.

According to an opinion handed down by the Supreme Court the law requiring county commissioners in countles having 5,000 fruit trees to appoint a fruit tree inspector from a list of three persons submitted by the member of the state board of horticulture from the district in which the county is, has been declared unconstitutional. The opinion is written by Chief Justice Miner on the mandamus of the state ex rel. J. A. Wright, member of the state board of horticulture vs the county commissioners of Weber county.

As Weber has over 20,000 population the inspector would have the right to appoint as many deputies as he thought were necessary. The county commissioners, the defendants, demurred in the lower court, moved to quash and obtained a judgment. Justice Bartch concurs with the attirmative opinion, which holds that the act applies only to certain counties, and, not being uniform throughout the state, it does not establish a uniform system of county government under the supervision of the county authorities as required by the Constitution. The opin-ion by request of counsel does not state whether or no county commissioners are ministerial officers,

Justice Baskin dissents from his brethren of the Supreme bench, holding that the duty of the commissioners was in all respects ministerial and, therefore, that they cannot make a plea by mandamus that the act is unconstitutional. The appeal in the case of State vs

John G. Jost has ben dismissed because the appellant failed to comply with the rules of the Supreme Court relating to filing abstracts on appeal.

THE COSPEL IN CREAT BRITAIN.

Elder W. B. Dougall Gives Report of Condition There.

APOSTLE COWLEY'S SERMON

Revolution of the World's Religious Bellef Through the Revelation of The Gospel in the Latter Days.

The services in the Tabernacie yeserday afternoon were presided over by Prest. Angus M. Cannon and were opened by the choir singing the hymn: 'Lo the might of God appearing, From on high Jehovah speaks."

The opening prayer was offered by Elder Oliver K. Meservey, and the services were continued by the choir renering the hymn;

How are Thy servants blessed, Oh Lord.

How sure is their defense." The first speaker was Elder W. B. Dougall, who recently returned from the British mission, where he had been laboring in the London conference. He stated that the progress in the conference in reference to conversions, was slow. The English people at present seem to have no disposition to change their religious views. One of the rea-sons is, the prejudice that is generally held against the Latter-day Saints. Prejudice held by fair-minded people can be overcome in time, but the great difficulty the Elders encounter is indifference. The desire not to change characterizes the people of England in material as well as in religious things. For this reason England is loosing ground in the commercial field. There they are so set in material things, suggested the speaker, it is not surprising that they should hold to the faith of their fathers which they assert is good enough for them.

The speaker had noted that many people were leaving the Church of England and were connecting themselves with the Wesleyan or Congregational churches. The authorities of the Church of England are working towards the end of re-establishing the ritual that was in vogue prior to the reformation. In order that the forms of the church will not be so far removed from those of the Catholic church. The class is called the "Anglo-Catholics." This of course promotes dissension. Elder Dougall cited other things that are ending to create dissatisfaction in the Church of England, and he thought it may result in causing many people to investigate the faith of the Latter-day Saints. At present, however, there are thousands of people who are not accessible, and the Elders also met with dif-ficulty in securing halls. For that reason street meetings are held frequently but few remain at the meetings to the end. Some of those who do, however, become members of the Church. It is moreover, almost impossible to secure a conversation with many people at their homes. The encouragement, their homes. The encouragement, therefore, the Elders have in their work in that land, is the consciousness that they are doing their duty and they can leave the result to God. The speaker expressed the sentiment that England ould sooner or later undergo a religious revolution. At the cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris is exhibited a crown of thorns which is said to have been that which was worn by the savior. A piece of wood is also kept there, purporting to be a portion of the cross of the crucifixion, and strangely enough it ap-peared to the speaker that both the priests who displayed them and the eople who looked at them actually be lieved that those articles were just what it was said they were.

what it was said they were.

Elder Dougall spoke of a sermon which he heard delivered by the archbishop of Canterbury, wherein that eminent churchman described prophecy as history repeating itself in a natural way, and revelation as God moving upon humanity in a general way. On that occasion there were many prelates of the church present, and the most striking thing about them, said the speaker, was their apparent lack of hu-mility. On the other hand. Elder Dougall said he had met hundreds of rood, honorable men and women, and he knew there were thousands of such in England, and how the Gospel will ever reach them, must be left to the Lord. He mentioned the incident re-lated to him once by President Wood-ruff of the presence of the Apostles He-ber C. Kimball and Wilford Woodruff. in the crowd that greeted the Queen on her coronation; of her majesty's carriage stopping where they stood and her bowing to them, when Elder Kim-ball blessed the Queen, and the speaker believed that blessing was fulfilled in her career. Elder Dougall expressed the career. Elder Dougall expressed the conviction that Queen Victoria had in her veins the blood of Ephraim, and that had she been bern in the humble walks of life she would have embraced the Gospel. He went on to eulogize her virtues and graces and depicted the scene of grief and sorrow that spread all over England when she died.

The speaker concluded by expressing admiration for the English character and the English government. The lat-ter, he said, aimed always to be just, and had dealt more fairly by the Lat-ter-day Saints than any other government on earth.

APOSTLE M. F. COWLEY

was the next speaker, and in arising he said he had enjoyed the report of Elder Dougall. The Prophet Joseph Smith stated at the beginning of his ministry that the work he was establishing would revolutionize the world. The speaker said he thought that would prove true in the light of the changes in the religious views of the world, that had already been effected by the influence, direct or indirect of the Gos-The speaker read a passage from Prophet Malachi wherein it is stated that Christ would come suddenly to His temple, and that in those latter days the earth would be purified by fire, and the wicked would be destroyed. Many other passages of scrip-ture were cited bearing directly upon the second coming of the Messiah. And by a process of clear reasoning from the texts he read. Apostle Cowley estab-lished the fact of the taking of the Cos-pel from the Jews to the Gentiles; the subsequent apostacy from the Gospel, the restoration of the latter hundreds of years later: its spread among all na-ing of the Messiah. The speaker stated, however, that there were good people in all denominations and outside of all he sects; and that through the dark the sects; and that through the dark period, when the Gospel was not on the carth, there were sparks of inspiration received by such men as Roger Sherman and John Wesley, both of whom had the conviction that the true Church of Christ was not on the earth in their day, but believed that it would appear day, but believed that it would appear at some future day.

The speaker acted passages from the Bible relating to the restoration of the Gospel: the raising up of a prophet and the dire consequences that would result from the rejection of that prophet. With strong and earnest language Elder Cowley testified that the Gospel had been restored; that Joseph Smith was the Prophet spoken of and that to him was committed every gift, every key, and every measure of authorky that were ever enjoyed in any previous dispensation. Among the keys that were restored that the speaker devoted most attention to was those restored by Elijah, whose mission was to turn the hearts of the fathers to their children and the hearts of the children to their fathers. It was affirmed that since the coming of Elijah, God had moved upon the hearts of the people and gene cal societies have spread up, furnishing names of departed ancestors of the Saints, who could thus be baptized for the dead, thus bringing about the purposes of the Lord.

Elder Cowley declared that the principles God revealed to the Prophet Jo sept Smith had come to stay, and would endure as long as the throne of God remained unshaken. After the choir sang the anthem, "Rouse, Oh Ye Mortals," the benediction was pronounced by Elder Thos. H. Maxwell.

INVEIGHS AGAINST ORTHODOX HELL.

Dean Eddie Astonishes His Hearers at St. Mark's.

PUNISHMENT IS RATIONAL.

Is in Proportion to the Degree of Guilt-Some Would Make of God A Cruel Barbarian.

Dean J. B. Eddie preached a very striking sermon at St. Mark's cathedral yesterday morning, which was listened to with some astonishment but with great interest. His topic was "A Rational Heil," and had he expressed the same sentiments one bundred years ago his life would probably have paid the panalty. Yet in the wide discussion that his ideas gave rise to he had plenty of backing. What caused the astonishment was the dean's radical departure from what has been the orthodox idea of hell for ages. But the preacher explained himself with clearness and force. He affirmed that no soull will be sent to hell until after a fair trial, and that the measure of punishment shall be in proportion to the offense, in short every man will be udged according to his works. The dean in beginning said:

"We are at present experiencing a reaction against the cruel and irra-tional ideas of hell and future punishment that have been unduly empha-sized since reformation times. There is a recoil from the feeling of vindictiveness which apparently impelled God in his work of punishment and torture. Men are craving for a juster and truer estimate of the character of God and of his dealings with mankind." After giving in the words of Jonathan Edwards the horrible hell then pervalent and describing Ge-henna in the valley of Hinnom outside the walls of Jerusalem that serves as a natural crematory for the city, and in which the bodies of dead animals and the corpses of dead criminals were burned, as the foundation for the idea of the literal hell, Dean Eddie said:
"Belief in hell—that is, future punishment—must be abandoned as a myth of the dark ages, or else we must have such a rational theory of hell that intelligent men can believe in Dean Eddie spoke of the common right to a fair trial by every man who is accused, a right that was secured by the Anglo-Saxons from King John at Runnymeade. This was mere human justice, could divine justice be less?

Continuing, he said: "If a man is charged with a misde-meanor or crime which involves a fine of a paltry sum of money or imprison-ment in a jail for a few weeks, or months, or even years, he has a right to a fair trial, and that before his own peers; how much more should he have the same right and the same privilege when punishment for sin in hell is in-

They were better than their religion than their conception whom they misrepresen ed as cruel, relentless, revengeful, vindictive. If a man believed such a doctrine of eternal damnation, how could be eat or sleep, or laugh or work? The picture of endless torment ever before him would drive all else from his mind." In relation to the inflicting of pun-Ishment in wrath or vindictiveness, the Dean offered the following thoughts: "Here is the great difference be-tween punishments as inflicted in civil ized and barbarous countries. In bar-barous ages and barbarous lands the elements of vindictiveness and revenge always enter largely into the punishment of a criminal. He is put to the extremest torture, is made to suffer every form of indignity, is put to the cruelest sort of death. In the indiction of punishment these elements of vindictiveness and revenge are eliminated as far as possible in civilized between the punishment as inflicted by an enraged mob and as inflicted in a court of justice. The mob is vindic-tive, full of the spirit of revenge: the court is calm, unprejudiced; weighs the evidence carefully, pronounces the sentence according to the law. Yet, ac cording to much of our Christian theology and Christian preaching, God in-flicts punishments in the vindictive, re-vengeful spirit of a barbarian, or after the real estate and the custody of the
