

HIS WIFE LEFT HIM.

EDWIN CADWELL HAD A DIVORCE FOR THAT REASON.

THE CASE CALLED UP TODAY.

Mrs. CADWELL WANTS MONEY TO EMPLOY COUNSEL AND TO COME HERE FROM CALIFORNIA.

The divorce suit of Edwin Cadwell vs. Eddie M. Cadwell came before Judge Morris this morning on the defendant's motion for temporary alimony, support fees and the payment of the defendant's transportation from California.

Mr. Cadwell was represented by Attorney Christopher and his wife by Powers and Griggs.

The parties intermarried at Ogden on July 11, 1891, the plaintiff being then a widower with two children, whose ages range from five to twelve years. There were no issues of the present marriage. Plaintiff in his complaint filed March 17, 1894, claims that he at all times considered himself above the defendant as a living and useful citizen and has always been ready willing to furnish her with a good home. On March 9, 1893, however, she went off him without cause or excuse and has ever since remained away.

The defendant, in her affidavit now read, stated that she is at present residing at Stockton, Calif., that she has a good and sufficient income to live on, but is entirely without means and unable to employ counsel to provide funds for her defense. She further states that she has no personal estate if her own nor any interest whatsoever in any personal or real property which is a lesser interest in her husband's estate, that plaintiff is well situated financially, and that she is not in debt.

In answer to defendant's claim that he is possessed of property by retaining the sum named by his wife, at the most he places it at $10,000, and that he wholly disclaims any interest in the house or winter residence, plaintiff said for a writing that that of holding back from registration papers that this transaction was commenced by her husband entirely without knowledge of the true value of the house and other children. Plaintiff also says that when she left him he has been obliged to keep a hired woman in the house to look after his children. Plaintiff also says that she has no money and that she has been unable to secure a home and live with her daughter in California.

Mr. Cadwell went upon the witness stand and testified as to his very limited means, etc. His attorney deposed that his wife had no means for supporting herself, and that she would go west or east for "good bye" signs leaving the house one morning, she replied, "It is good bye, Mr. —" and went off in that direction. These were her last words before departing.

Judge Powers ruled the plaintiff was only too glad to get rid of his wife and said this was a case where when the full developments were made at the trial would perhaps appear to be a case of desertion. The documentary evidence in their hands would readily show the manner in which this woman had been treated.

The application for temporary alimony was withdrawn and when asked why he did not say his lawyer directed that the plaintiff pay alimony to her son within the next day, he said and allowed the wife $10 to defray the cost of her transportation from California.

The West Judgment.—A. Farkas Case—Sister.

Spotted Objects on the Water.

MANTZ, U.S.A., July 12.—The judge in the noted water case, previously spoken of, was held yesterday, ending it conclusively. Likely their will be other similar.

The afternoon of yesterday was occupied with the trial of the case of the United States vs. John Holden, formerly with Louis Palmer. The latter appeared in court with an infant in his arms, who was presented in evidence by the prosecution to show resemblance. The evidence, excepting here, was purely circumstantial and conflicting. The jury was unable to come to a verdict, so the court adjourned until Friday morning, when it sat again with a re-examination of the jury.

Fifteen residents of Gunnison appeared in a body and were admitted as witnesses.

The case of J. H. Wright vs. W. J. Parker et al., in which plaintiff asks for $2,500 through his attorney, is now on trial.
