Men's Mutual Improvement associa-tions, of which the deccased was an honored member, was represented by Presidents B. H. Roberts and J. G. Kimball, while the presidency of the Liberty stake, reduced to two members by Elder Maycock's death, were present in the persons of President Hugh J. Cannon and Arnold J. Schultess.

THE SERVICE.

The service was conducted by Bishep Roscoe W. Eardley of the Third ward. The opening prayer was offered by El-der Rudger Clawson, who supplicat-ed the divine blessing upon the gath-ering and upon the bereaved ones. Bishop Eardley said: "We have met today to pay our last respects and today to pay our last respects and honor to one of God's noblemen, and lay away the tabernacle of one of our father's choicest spirits. Brother Mayacter's choicest spirits. Mother may-cock has always commanded the sin-cere love and respect of all men. I give my humble tribute to his noble, generous nature, as a member of the ward in which he was born, and which was his home all the days of his life. Those of us who have been his closest neighbors can truly say that he was Those of us who have been his closest neighbors can truly say that he was faithful and diligent in whatever he was called upon to do, and he always gave us the best he had. His daily walks in life were an inspiration. He did not hide his light under a blahel, but its radiance was shed forth for the good of all. I trust God will help his devoted wife and the rest of us to sustain our great loss in the of us to sustain our great loss in the leath of our friund and brother, Phillip Maycock.

PRESIDENT HUGH J. CANNON.

President Hugh J. Cannon of Liberty stake, said: "I am sure no poor words of mine can express the feelings of my heart on this occasion. With the rest of my brothers and sisters, I am overwhelmed and appalled by the loss that has come upon us, and to me it is like attempting to speak at the funeral of brother. for I have been ve ly associated with Brother Maycock and I learned to love him as a brother. My association with him was always of the most pleasant character. There of the most pleasant character. There has never been a thought between us that was not dictated by love and good will. Brother Maycock was glifted in that he could express his ideas clearly and forcibly, but that was not the char-acteristic that made him chiefly valu-able. It was his ability to work, Whenever any work was assigned to Whenever any work was assigned to Brother Maycock, we could always rest assured that work would be done, and well done. No man hated hypocrisy more than our brother, and to do good was his chief ambition, working for his feilow men. To say we shall miss him would be expressing it far too inadequately. May we follow the ex-ample which he has set for us, and may God comfort his wife and mother.' ELDER B. S. HINCKLEY.

able and fearless advocate of the truth of the gospel. There were lots of people who had been converted, but there was no one there to baptize them, and to Brother Maycock was entrusted this work, and he acquitted himself with great credit. He was always live-ly, always cheerful, and in our experi-ences together. I will say that his com-pany was one of my most pleasant memories. Since returning home when I have met Brother Maycock, his pleas-ant smile seemed like an inspiration. I felt that at home as abroad, Brother Maycock was a worker. In the misnoon. I felt that at home as abroad, Lrother Maycock was a worker. In the mis-sion he got so he could converse with the people and labor with them, and showed a devotion to the cause that was truly admirable. Brother May-cock has filled his last mission on this earth, and I feel the reward of the faithful will be his portion in the king-dom to come. I pray God to bless and comfort those that mourn, and to bless us all." ELDER R. H. ROBERTS.

ELDER B. H. ROBERTS.

Elder B. H. Roberts was the next speaker. "It is not because we have any doubt of a glorious resurrection awaiting Phillip Maycock that we have awaiting Phillip Maycock that we have assembled here in such large numbers. We are here to fulfil the law, but not because we have any doubt of the glory which shall be the portion of our departed brother. Love, respect, and honor for the dead, and not doubt, is what brought us together. Philip Maycock's faith in the Christian re-ligion was without shadow of doubt. He had accepted of every law and every ordinance of the gospel. He had obeyed every ordinance which was re-He had accepted of every law and overy ordinance of the gospel. He had obeyed every ordinance which was re-quired by scripture for a righteous life and he manifested by his life that he had lived according to the great law of God. My acquaintance with the de-ceased was gained principally in our mutual connection with the general board of the Y. M. M. I. A., but from his activities in that department i looked forward with great expectations to the possibilities of his work in that direction. I loved to study the char-acter of Brother Maycock, in looking into the texture of his mind, I saw he had power-power of analysis. I looked upon Brother Maycock as a pro-duct of what the world calls Mormon-ism, for it was by the living of the principles of that faith that his soul and his manhood was developed. And his character was an answer to all that slander that has been heaped upon that faith. Humanity has no better rype, and God has no better servant than was Phillip Maycock." ELDER GEORGE ALBERT SMITH. Morehouse.

ELDER GEORGE ALBERT SMITH.

ELDER GEORGE ALBERT SMITH. President Joseph F. Smith was un-able to address the congregation, and Elder George Albert Smith spoke in his place. He paid a beautiful tribute to the deceased in his capacity of man churchman and lawyer. "The tributer already paid I feel, are echoed by ev-ery friend of Brother Maycock, and as He himself would say, we can only bow to the decree of the Infinite, and say, Father, Thy will, not ours, be done." The speaker quoted from the 93rd section of the Doctrine and Cove-nants: "Every soul who forsaketh their sins, and cometh unto me, and calleth upon my name and keepeth my calleth upon my name and keepeth my commandments, shall see my face and know that I am." Thaw also refers to a letter in the possession of Mr. Gleason which he says originated either July 8 or 7; "while I still may have been trenzied." Richard Worthington of Battimore, Thaw declared, could prove the date of the letter. Thaw also desired President Fatten of Frinceton theological semi-nary to be called as a witness with re-gard to letters Thaw had written him. She takes advantage of the op-portunity to state that in the direct line of descent for four generations there has been no taint of insanity or epilep-sy in the prisoner's family. She re-sents the 'malicious representation and gross exaggeration' on the subject. The principal affidavit made in Thaw's behalf is signed by Delphin M. Delmas, his leading counsel. Mr. Del-mas attaches to his personal statement a score or more of letters and notes he has received from Thaw during the trial. These writings, Mr. Delmas de-clares, cleavly indicate his grasp of the proceedings and have contained valu-able suggestions. The affidavits which Thaw's counsel hope will block Mr. Jerome's move for a hunacy commission were filed with the clerk of the supreme court this afternoon and were turned over to Jus-tice Fitzgerald, who will announce his decision probably Wednesday morning, when the Thaw jury has been ordered to report again.

The alienists who declare Thaw capable of under-standing the proceedings against him are Drs. Britton D. Evans, Charles G. Wagner, Graeme M. Hammond and Smith E. Jelliffo. The physicians also relate at great length many of the in-cidents of the trial and many of the daily conversations they have had with Thaw. TWENTY-FIFTH INFANTRY

Elder Briant 5. Hickley of the Lib-erty stake high council, said: "I feel the full conviction that no poor word of mine can do justice to this hour. When we contomplate our daad broth-er, we behold before us the supreme work of an honest life. In all of those honest efforts, which men so admire, Phillip Maycock was the peer of any man. He was sound to the core, sincere and patriotic, and withal tender and and patriotic, and withal tender and lovable. From his boyhood days to the hour of his death, he always stood up for fair play. In the little ward where he was raised, the people with one voice will say, he was a hero and a leader. The widow and the fatherless will say he was always kind and just. He was elocuent courascouts and He was elequent, courageous and strong, and the high council of the Liberty stake will perhaps miss him more than any other body of men. I ask God's blessings and peace upon the family of Brother Maycock."

PREST. ANTHON H. LUND.

President Anthon H. Lund related some of the stirring events of Brother Maycock's life while in the mission field. It was during the time of the field. It was during the time of the speaker's presidency over the European mission that a man was needed to send to preside over the Turkish mission. "What elder in the German mission can we send to take that mission, was the question, and all pointed to Phillip Mission. He was sent to Turkey and filed an able and honorable mission. faith that those words came from our Father in heaven, and like Brother Maycock, if we observe them, we shall gain eternal life. There is no distincgain eternal life. There is no distinc-tion of race or creed in these words; they are open to all who will obey, as our brother has obeyed. Day by day he exemplified the highest type of manhood, and all who had the privilege of associating with him are better for that association. We are told of the glories that await those who keep the commandments of God, and we know that reward is assured for such a man at was our deceased brother. On oc-casions of this kind our thoughts are drawn out to the contemplation of the as was our deceased brother. On oc-casions of this kind our thoughts are drawn out to the contemplation of the other life, and we are awakened to the realization that there is another ex-istence-another life far more glorious than this one, where the works of this life will be continued, in a higher sphere. And it would seem that be-reavements like this are but remind-ers from above, that we might think of these things. Brother Maycock was among those who kept his first estate. This life is but a preparation for the life before us. There we will be able to enjoy the fullness of knowledge and the blessings of eternal life. I am thankful that we know, that our brother knew, that this is not the end of life; that we will be permitted to go back into the presence of our Lord. I feel that the life our brother has led will be cour-tinued there. He has but answered the summons that will be our lot some day, and let us, like lim, set our lives in order that we too, might reap the bies in sind we the first we had not be some day, and let us, like init, set our lives in order that we, too, might reap the blessings that will be the reward of the faithful. Mrs. William Thaw, she declares that he had a most brilliant mind and was classiday orator at Amherst college. His oration impressed the faculty as so profound in its erudition that they injudiciously decided not to limit him as to time, with the result that its close was immediately followed by an attack of brain fever, which shaltered for a time his nervous system. Josiah, Jr., was discharged after seven months, enlisted in the civil war, was a prisoner in Libby prison and, according to the affidavit, "is now in vigorous health and sound mind at three score and ten." "The other case of derangement." Mrs. Thaw's affidavit continues, "is the one really referred to by medical experts for the prosecution as being 'imbedie from his birth," on the con-trary, Henry W. Copley, uncle of the defendant, was, until six years of age, in perfect physical and mental condi-tion. In the dusk of a summer even-ing two vicious boys trespassing on our place, disguised with horrible masks, pursued him until he fell with a scream of terror in my mother's arm. I was buit two years older, yet the scene is imprinted on my mem-ory. Ever after, as the country prac-titioner, Dr. Doemar, has testified, ho was of feeble intellect and incapable ory. Ever after, as the country prac-titioner, Dr. Doemar, has testified, he was of feeble intellect and incapable of engaging in business or any steady employment, yet so desirous was he of serving his country that he en-listed near the end of the war, al-though under age. He lived, as Dr. Deemar has testified, to be nearly 40 years of age. "Let me say, once for all, that there is no secret to be guarded or family visient to be hidden on either side of the family of the defendant."

THAW'S THIRD STATEMENT.

New York, March St.—Harry K. Thew onight made public another statement, his time denying a rumor which he elicites is current to the effect that here is dissension among his counsel, de also refers to the affidavits filed with Justice Fitzgerald by his attor-cys in opposition to the appellitment if a lunkey commission to examine him. A Russell Peshedy, who gave the neys in opposition to the appointment of a lunkey commission to examine him. A. Russell Feabody, who gave the natter to the press after he had had a conference with other members of Thaw's counsel designated it as "tho third statement issued by Thaw since Aug. 10 last."
