To the Excelsior Manufacturing Company, St. Louis.I have for a number of years been a diligent inquirer into the relative merits of Cooking Stoves, and for eight years have used one of your Charter Oaks, and have found it superior for all cooking purposes to any other pattern that I have ever seen. I have just put up one of your new patterns, No. 80, and must say that I regard it as being beyond the pale of successful competition. The time I now save by my hired men getting their breakfast 20 minutes earlier each morning by using this stove, not only makes it invaluable to farmers, but will also pay the price of the Stove in one year.

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

Fessenden presented the credentials of Hannibal Hamlin, Senator from Maine.Howard called up the joint resolution to withhold Government bonds from the Union Pacific till certain conditions are complied with; after some discussion the resolution was postponed.Stewart offered a resolution, requesting the President to transmit forthwith, to each State, an Executive copy of the Constitutional Amendment, and so secure its early ratification. Davis objected.The bill to strengthen public credit was taken up. Davis offered a substitute, and addressed the Senate in its favor.Bayard moved to strike out the section to legalize coin contracts as unnecessary. After a long discussion the amendment was rejected; yeas 7, nays 37.In the evening session, Wilson introduced a bill for the more equal distribution of the national banking capital.
The bill provides that there shall be four hundred millions in greenbacks withdrawn, and that the amount then in circulation shall not be increased.Sherman offered a resolution to authorize the recognition of the independence of Cuba, and authorizing the President, when in his opinion Cuba has established an independent government, De facto, to recognize her independence; referred to the committee on foreign relations.A resolution was passed granting cannon for the erection of a monument to General McPherson.Cole offered a Joint Resolution, declaring that it was with grave concern the United States regarded any interference of the Great Powers in favoring the perpetuation of Turkish supremacy in the islands of Greece.Morrill thought it was time to proceed with the business for which the Senate had met. The Senate then resumed the consideration of the bill to strengthen public credit. Doolittle spoke in opposition to the bill.Cole followed the same side as Morton, saying he could consent only to one section of the pending bill, namely, the declaration that all the just obli-tions of the Government be paid in coin. If he could vote for that alone he would be inclined to do so, but he could not vote for the rest of the sections because they would put a wrong construction on the law under which the five-twenties were issued. He regarded the bill as a movement of the bullmen, intended to affect the present price of bonds for speculation purposes.Sherman defended the Finance Committee from the extraordinary attack of the Senator from Indiana. He said that ever since the Committee had failed to see the merits of the Finance bill that Senator had found fault with all their work. The first section of Henderson's amendment was rejected; the bill then passed 30 to 16. Adjourned.The Senate bill for the removal of political disabilities was taken up. The motion to strike out the name of Asa Rogers, Auditor of Virginia, was discussed till the expiration of the morning hour, when the motion was withdrawn, and the bill went over.A resolution was adopted calling upon the President for the correspondence between the Department of State and the United States Minister, and Secretary of Legation at Madrid, during the last two years.The Senate resumed the consideration of the Army Appropriation bill. Pending its consideration, an amendment of Sprague's, declaring that the public domain within the jurisdiction of the United States, including the Indian reservations, is the sole property of the United States, and that the occupants thereof are subject to United States laws, was withdrawn, or a suggestion of Morrill, that the object sought could be obtained in another way.An amendment, providing that all the officers retiring on account of disabilities, shall be retired on the same terms as regulars, was adopted. A motion to strike out the limiting number of Brigadiers to eight was lost, 18 to 21.Sumner reviewed the amendment to provide for the payment of the claims of the Massachusetts interest, on the advances made to the United States in the war of 1812. The amendment was discussed till recess without a vote.The Senate occupied the evening in the discussion of Sumner's amendment.
Adjourned.
