FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, 4.—Morgan introduced a bill requiring the President of the Senate to submit to the House and Senate the Electoral returns.

Cameron moved to consider the Ben Holliday bill; agreed to, 39 to 27.

Pending debate the morning hour expired, and Vest spoke in support of the Spofford-Kellogg resolution. He expressed contempt for the course of the minority committee, and asked what amount of sincerity there was in its language? What was loyalty? Do we know, he continued, that loyalty to Constitution means what the gentleman says, simply loyalty to the republican party. I read to-day in a leading republican paper of this city, a declaration by Col. Mosby, now an accredited Minister of the United States abroad, and in full fellowship with the party of God and morality, progress and reform, in regard to his course in the rebellion. He says his works of four years ago are fulfilled. I feel a just pride in their glory, and am as jealous of the military honor of the Southern people as any man on their side. No generous foe would ask to deprive them of it. General Grant will not, and to-day, continued Vest, he stands an accredited Minister of the United States and states that he feels as much pride in his record as a Confederate soldier as he did when his terrible flag waved for four long years before the National Capital. When did Mosby, Longstreet and Key obtain the confidence of the republican party? When they voted the republican ticket and were willing to give the offices of the country to the republican party.

I assert here that there is not a Confederate brigadier on this side of the chamber who, if he would give his allegiance to-day to the republican party, would not receive the highest office in the gift of the President and receive unanimous votes in confirmation of the republican Senators on the other side. Even my distinguished friend from South Carolina (Butler), the butcher of Hamburg, as the republicans call him, if he would sacrifice his real manhood and honest conviction, and agree to give the spoils of party to the republican party, would be asked no questions about the past, but would be received with open arms.

Vest then proceeded to discuss the facts in the case and the doctrine of res adjudicata. A running debate of considerable length between Vest and Carpenter followed upon the legal case in point. In conclusion Vest said the stock in trade of the republican party consisted always in charges of kukluxing and bulldozing in the south.

Hill, of Georgia, said he would withhold his remarks until some of those on the other side had given their views.

Cameron, of Wisconsin, thought some republican Senator would be ready to speak in the morning.

Beck, Withers and Allison were appointed conferees on the disagreeing vote of the two Houses on the Indian appropriation bill.

Seller, from the committee on railroads, reported favorably on the bill authorizing the Wyoming, Montana and Pacific Railroad Company to build its road across the Fort Russel and Fort Laramie military reserves; passed.

Plumb, from the committee on military affairs reported favorably on filing claims for horses and equipments lost by officers and enlisted men.

A bill authorizing the claims of the convent with Nicaragua was again taken up and the doors closed for its consideration.

After the doors opened Edmunds moved to substitute for the bill a resolution requesting the President to urge the government of Nicaragua to agree to a convention for the settlement of the claims in question; rejected.

The bill was then read the third time and passed.

After executive session Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, 4.—Orth made a personal explanation relative to his connection with the claims against Venezula. He concluded by alluding to the action of the investigating committee of the Forty-forth Congress, and criticising severely the conduct of Springer in making two reports, one to the House and the other to the country.

Springer stated the discrepancies between the reports were at the request of Orth's friends and asked and obtained consent to reply to Orth at some future time.

The Speaker then laid before the House the President's veto of the special deficiency bill and it was read.

The veto message was referred to the committee on appropriations and the bill laid upon the Speaker's table. The effect of this action is to postpone its consideration until the House sees fit to call it up. Consideration was then resumed of the internal revenue bill.

AMERICAN.

VETO!

Hayes in His Old Role.

WASHINGTON, 4.—The President sent to the House to-day the following message vetoing the deficiency appropriation bill:

After mature consideration of the bill entitled, etc., I return it to the House of Representatives with my objections to its passage. The bill appropriates about $800,000, of which over $500,000 is for the payment of fees of United States Marshals and general and special Deputy Marshals, earned during the current fiscal year, and their incidental expenses. The appropriations made in the bill are needed to carry on the operations of the Government and to fulfil its obligations for the payment of money long since due its officers for services and expenses essential to the execution of their duties under the laws of the United States. The necessity for these appropriations is so urgent, and they have been already so long delayed, that if the bill before me contained no permanent and legal legislation unconnected with these appropriations, it would receive my prompt approval. It contains, however, provisions which materially change and by implication repeal the important parts of laws for the regulation of United States elections. These laws have for several years past been the subject of vehement political controversy, and have been pronounced as unnecessary, oppressive and unconstitutional. On the other hand it has been maintained with equal zeal and earnestness that the election laws are indispensable to fair and lawful elections, and are clearly warranted by the Constitution. Under these circumstances to attempt in the appropriation bill at modification or repeal of these laws, so as to annex a condition to the passage of needed and proper appropriations which tends to deprive the Executive of that equal and independent exercise of discretion and judgment which the Constitution contemplates. The objection to the bill, therefore, to which I respectfully ask your attention, is that it gives marked and deliberate sanction, attended by no circumstances of pressing necessity, to questionable, and, as I am clearly of the opinion, dangerous practice of tacking upon appropriation bills general and permanent legislation. This practice opens wide the door to hasty, inconsiderate and sinister legislation. It invites attacks upon the independence and constitutional powers of the Executive by providing an easy and effective way of constraining Executive discretion. Although of late this practice has been resorted to by all political parties when clothed with power, it did not prevail until 40 years after the adoption of the Constitution, and it is confidently believed it is condemned by the enlightened judgment of the country. States which have adopted Constitutions during the last quarter of a century have generally provided remedies. Many of them have enacted that no law shall contain more than one subject which shall be plainly expressed in its title. The Constitutions of more than half the States contain substantially this provision or some other of like interest and meaning.

The public welfare will be promoted in many ways by a return to the early practice of the government and to the true mode of legislation, which is that every measure should stand upon its own merits. I am firmly convinced that appropriation bills ought not to contain any legislation not relative to the application or expenditure of money thereby appropriated, and that by strict adherence to this principle an important and much needed reform will be accomplished.

Placing my objection to the bill on this feature of its frame, I forbear any comment upon the important general and permanent legislation which it contains as a matter of specific and independent consideration.

(Signed) RUTHERFORD B. HAYES.

WASHINGTON.

How the Veto is Viewed—Wells, Fargo's Letter Service—Surrender of Sitting Bull—Census of Chinese!

WASHINGTON, 4.—The President's veto of the marshals' deficiency bill has naturally been the subject of much private comment at the Capitol today, and speculation is rife this evening as to what will be its consequences. There is considerable excited talk among the extremists or Bourbon faction of the democratic congressmen, some of whom insist that a firm stand should be made by embodying the noted bill, rider and all, in the forthcoming general deficiency bill, and thus return it to the President as the House's ultimatum. Cooler members of the party perceive, however, that this would simply renew the fight of the extra session, with a practical certainty of a similar outcome. The general expression is that the clause relating to the election of marshals will promptly be passed as a separate bill and the remainder of the bill will be sent to the President either by itself or as a part of the general deficiency bill at a later period of the season. If this course be agreed upon, the election marshals' clause may be somewhat altered to obviate the objections urged by Senator Edmunds and others against its machinery. It is confidently expected that the President will sign the proposed separate measure, as he has based his veto to-day solely upon his objection to riders.

Another amendment to be offered to the postal appropriation bill, is one providing for the distribution of silver coin through the mails.

Representative Page and John J. Valentine appeared before the Postmaster-General and a commission of department officials to-day, and urged against the proposed discontinuance of Wells, Fargo & Co's letter carrying service. Page presented memorials signed by 50,000 citizens of the Pacific States, and resolutions of the California legislature, San Francisco Produce and Stock Exchanges, and the New York and San Francisco Chambers of Commerce, all protesting against the threatened suppression of the company's letter carrying facilities, and Page then proceeded to read a carefully prepared and strongly framed argument, which appeared to be absolutely unanswerable. One of his points was that there is really no law in existence authorizing or in any way justifying such interference with the business as the department committee have advised.

Horace Davis, at the instance of Supervisor Langley, called on Superintendent Walker to-day and obtained his promise to provide authority for the employment of interpreters to assist in taking the census of the Chinese in San Francisco. Davis will to-morrow request Secretary Evarts to ask the Chinese Minister to take measures to facilitate the census work by explaining to the Chinese that there is nothing to fear from it.

The House committee on Indian affairs agreed, by a vote of 7 to 3, to recommend the passage by the House of a bill to transfer the Indian Bureau from the Interior to the War Department, with an amendment that the transfer shall be made on July 1st, 1881, instead of 1880, as originally provided.

A report, which has been received from United States officers in the Northwest, was laid before the Cabinet in reference to Sitting Bull, and to the effect that messengers from that chief recently made overtures looking to a surrender, and inquired regarding the terms on which his band could be received. The Cabinet decided that any surrender on the part of Sitting Bull would have to be wholly unconditional.

All the members were present at the Cabinet meeting to-day. Secretary Evarts read a communication from the United States Minister to Mexico, in which the statement was made that two Mexican officers had pursued two deserters across the border into Texas, fired upon them and accidentally shot a female, and that the officers had been arrested for violating both Federal and State laws.

In the Senate to-day Slater presented a petition of 5,000 citizens of Oregon for a resolution requesting the President to call an international convention of maritime nations to arrange for a canal across the Isthmus of Darien.

The internal revenue bill, as passed by the House to-day, contains, without amendment, the provisions heretofore noted in these dispatches as prospectively highly beneficial to California brandy makers.

Postmaster General Key has extended the time to Wells, Fargo & Co. to make an argument against the breaking up of their postoffice business until to-morrow.

The judiciary committee of the House has decided to postpone till the next session of Congress all further consideration of the Geneva Award bill.

South American War News.

PANAMA, April 24.—The Chilian blockading fleet announced its presence in Callao Bay by sending before daylight a torpedo launch against the Peruvian corvette Union, anchored well in shore, but exploded harmlessly against the floating palisade protecting that vessel. The Chilian launch was carelessly or clumsily managed, and ran dangerously near the United States steamer Alaska and the Italian frigate Garibaldi, and just escaped a warm reception from those vessels. The approach of the launch was perceived on board the Union before the explosion took place, and a heavy fire of musketry and Gatling guns caused the launch to retire.

At the request of foreign consuls, notice of the blockade to begin was extended from eight to fifteen days.

The United States steamer Adams is still at Golpuie, and a report from Costa Rica has it that a coaling station has been taken up, but not in the public way or in any manner to cause offence to the authorities of Costa Rica or Columbia, both of which claim jurisdiction over the territory and waters of the Gulf. Surveys of an eligible site were made, but the flag was not planted over it, nor any deposit of coal made in the name of the United States government.

The Interminable Whittaker Case.

WEST POINT, 4.—The Whittaker examination was resumed this morning. Ames, the expert, gave the result of his investigations that the most intimate resemblance existed between the writing in the note of warning and a piece of writing designated No. 23 and its duplicates, and that the writing of the person who wrote No. 23 had been used as a copy, and that the note of warning is very skillfully executed. He also stated that the sheets of pencil writing marked A and B were in his opinion written by the same person who wrote No. 23, but he understood the Recorder as saying positively that they were not, in which case the language the writing on these two sheets deserve careful attention, as whoever wrote them might easily simulate the writing of No. 23 in the note of warning.

Albert Smithworth, a noted expert from Boston, was sworn and the papers placed in his hands to examine. Ames' report is to be submitted to the board of experts to which Ames would be appointed.

Coast Notes.

SAN FRANCISCO, 4.—Ex-Auditor Monroe Asbury died to-day, aged 62.

Collector Shannon has received orders from Washington to fit out the Revenue cutter Thomas Corwin for the relief of the exploring yacht Jannette and ice-bound whalers in the Arctic. She was put on the dry dock to-day, and will be ready to sail in two weeks.

The United States steamer Lackawana has left to look after American interests at Callao.

Caledonia levies an assessment of fifty cents.

The Superior Court to-day order the distribution of the estate of the late W. S. O'Brien, to which objection had been made by John H. Burke. With the exception of bequests to Maria Coleman and Kate McDonough, aggregating $1,500,000, the value of the estate undisturbed is about $7,000,000.

The Long Branch Hotel, Alameda, burned this morning. The fire originated in the use of coal oil in kindling a fire. Mary Spaulding, an employee in the house, was burned to death. The building was a three storn frame. Loss about $30,000; insured.

Recovery on Kid Gloves.

NEW YORK, 4.—In the United States Circuit Court to-day was begun a suit of A. T. Stewart & Co. against the collector of the port to recover an alleged excess of duty paid on kid gloves, on the ground that the valuation fixed by the appraiser was too high.

Gen. Heintzelman's Funeral.

BUFFALO, 4.—The remains of Major General Heintzelman arrived this morning and remained lying in state at the City Hall during the day, and were interred in the Steward family vault at Forest Town cemetery this afternoon.
