TALK IS CHEAP,

and the press teems with advertisements of sarsaparillas, and other liver, blood and lung remedies, but there is one medicine, and only one, the claims for which, as a cure for all lingering diseases arising from Torpid Liver or Biliousness, or from impure blood, are backed up by a positive guarantee! If it does not do just as represented in every case, the money paid for it is promptly returned.

This peculiar medicine sells beyond all others throughout the civilized world. And why should it not? "Talk is cheap," but when it's backed up by a positive guarantee, by a house of long established reputation for honesty, integrity and sound financial standing, then words mean business! And that's just what the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y., mean in guaranteeing their Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery checks the frightful inroads of Scrofula and, if taken in time, arrests the march of Consumption of the Lungs (which is Lung-scrofula), purifies and enriches the blood, thereby curing all Skin and Scalp Diseases, Ulcers, Sores, Swellings, and kindred ailments.

DESERET EVENING NEWS.

Wednesday, - April 30, 1890.

DON'T FRET, BUT SMILE.

It isn't worth while to fret, dear,
To walk as behind a hearse,
No matter how vexing things may be,
They easily might be worse;
And the time you spend complaining
And groaning about the load,
Better be given to going on,
And pressing along the road.

I've trodden the hill myself, dear—
'Tis the tripping tongue can preach,
But though silence is sometimes golden,
child,
As oft there is grace in speech—
And I see, from my higher level,
'Tis less the path than the pace
That wearies the back and dims the eye,
And writes the lines on the face.

There are vexing cares enough, dear,
And to spare, when all is told;
And love must mourn its losses,
And the cheek's soft bloom grow old;
But the spell of the craven spirit
Turns blessing into curse,
While the bold heart meets the trouble
That easily might be worse.

So smile at each disaster
That will presently pass away,
And believe a bright tomorrow
Will follow the dark today.
There's nothing gained by fretting;
Gather your strength anew,
And step by step go onward, dear,
Let the skies be gray or blue.—Ex.

POSTOFFICE DETECTIVES.

THE SORT OF WORK THEY ARE CALLED UPON TO DO.

Considering the hundreds of thousands of dollars that are daily sent through the mails in the form of treasury notes, the few losses from embezzlement speak volumes for the general honesty of postoffice employes, says the New York News. In spite of the facilities afforded by the government for the safe transmission of money by money orders and registered letters, the masses seem content to take chances, and it is safe to say that where one person seeks a guarantee for the safe delivery of a missive and its contents, there are two who are disposed to trust in Providence and to the integrity of postal clerks. Instances are on record where as large amounts as $10,000 have been mailed in unregistered packages, and misdirected letters containing sums from $1 to $100 turn up every day in the dead letter office.

The average postoffice official is perfectly conversant with the fact, and if at all weak-kneed morally, the indiscretion of the forwarder subjects him to constant temptation. But there is always more or less thieving from the mails.

One of the chief duties of a most important branch of the postal service is the detection of this species of misdemeanor. This branch is known as the department of postoffice inspectors. They number from 75 to 100, and are under the immediate direction of Chief Inspector E. G. Rathbone. The country is divided into ten districts, the chief offices being located in Washington, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chattanooga, Tennessee, St. Louis, Chicago, San Francisco and Austin Texas. Each division is under the supervision of an official known as postmaster inspector in charge.

The staff of each division varies in number according to its extent and general character. Inspectors in charge receive a salary of $2,500, and inspectors $1,600 per annum, besides a per diem of $4 when actively engaged in work for the department. Their commissions run from January 1 to January 1, and appointments are made under the civil service act. Chief Rathbone is paid $3,000 a year. The positions involve considerable responsibility, and call for a degree of intelligence and capacity far beyond the requirements of ordinary detective work. As a rule, the clews afforded by cases presented for their investigation are of the vaguest character.

There are about 60,000 postoffices in the entire country. When complaints are made of money being lost in the mails they are at once forwarded to the chief inspector at Washington, who classifies them under the head of A, B, C and F. It may be said in this connection that the loss of ordinary letters is classified under the head of B. All complaints are "jacketed," as it is termed, numbered and, with directions for the prosecutions of the case, returned to the inspector in charge of the division in which the complaints were made. Certain formal inquiries are sent to the writer and the person to whom the letter was addressed. It is estimated that at least 20 per cent of the letters at first reported stolen eventually turn up, perhaps having been misdirected or held for postage. The cases reported are subjected to careful investigation to ascertain if the number of losses center in any particular mail route or in any particular postoffice. If they do it is accepted as an indication of crookedness, and the suspected points are at once put under the closest espionage. Sometimes complaints covering a wide expanse of country seem to center on one railroad route.

When either a railroad route or postoffice has been selected for investigation there are various methods pursued to locate the supposed thief. Decoy or "test" letters, the latter being the official designation, are frequently called into play. As soon as suspicion is fastened upon an individual, half a dozen of these letters, each marked and containing money, are addressed to some obscure town and mailed the same day. If these letters come to hand all right the experiment is tried again and again until the inspectors are satisfied that they have been misled. When any of these letters fail to come through to their destination an arrest is made so soon that criminating evidence is generally found upon their person.

The location of offices of the above character in any town or city is selected by the inspectors, who also lease the premises. In fact, an inspector in charge can temporarily suspend any postmaster for cause. In some respects their powers are autocratic. Credentials issued by the postmaster general not only command all railroads, steamboats and other mail contractors to afford them free passage, but require that they shall be "respected and obeyed." They are called upon to rate up the salaries of clerks, and investigate the demands of postmasters for additional help, as well as to sift every case where there is reason to believe that the mails are being subjected to improper uses.

The detection of dishonest postal clerks is almost certain in the long run, but there are instances where peculations have been carried on years before discovery. One dishonest clerk will temporarily cast a shadow of suspicion over many others. This class of work, however, is but one portion of inspectors' duties. They are also required to follow up cases where parties have put the mails to improper uses of any kind. One of the most important of their functions is the supervision of postoffices of the first, second and third classes, and the investigation of any charges of inefficiency or misdemeanors preferred against the postmasters themselves.

Too Old To Learn New Tricks.

It is indeed a hard task to instill the latest fads of fashion into the every day life of the old timer who likes the old ideas best and who cannot break away from them. It was a Michigan boulevard millionaire who sat down to his dinner table not long ago and noticed the absence of the good old silver castor that had graced the center of the board for years and years. He could not see it anywhere and he asked his oldest daughter what had become of it. "Why, papa," she said, "you know that castors are not used at all nowadays. Small bottles are placed about the table instead." For a few moments the old gentleman regarded his stylish daughter sternly. Then he said: "You just ring the bell there and order up the castor. I've been used to a castor all my life and I'm too old to make a fashionable change now." The daughter saw that there was no help for it, so she ordered the servant to shy the castor into the ring again.—Chicago Herald.

His Story Was Sad, but Untrue.

Frank Clark, a lad of 12, arrived at Castle Gardens recently from Liverpool. He told a pitiful story of his endeavor to reach his father, who, he said, was a compositor in one of the large cities of the United States. Prominent people became interested in the lad and began a search for Mr. Clark. It proved unavailing, and then the boy confessed that his story was untrue, and that he stole the money to pay his passage to America from his father, who is a policeman in London.—Ex.

A Safe Investment.

The Spring Medicine.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just those elements of health-giving, blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which everybody seems to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and makes the weak strong. 1

SUMMONS.

In the District Court in and for the Third Judicial District of Utah Territory, County of Salt Lake.

Lucy B. Truck, Plaintiff
vs.
John Truck, Defendant.

The People of the Territory of Utah send Greeting:

To John Truck, Defendant:

YOU ARE HEREBY REQUIRED TO appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the District Court of the Third Judicial District of the Territory of Utah, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to have a decree of this court dissolving the bonds of matrimony between plaintiff and defendant, awarding to plaintiff the custody of three minor children, issue of said marriage, for general relief, above relief prayed for on the grounds that defendant has for more than one year prior to separation of plaintiff and defendant was guilty of habitual drunkenness, and to the best of knowledge, information and belief of plaintiff is now a drunkard; that he has at sundry times treated plaintiff in a cruel manner by striking her, using vile and abusive language, thereby causing her great bodily harm and mental distress, and that for more than five years last past defendant has failed to provide the common necessaries of life.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded therein.

Witness, the Hon. Charles S. Zane, Judge, and the seal of the District Court of the Third Judicial District, in and for the Territory of Utah, this 15th day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

Inaugurate a Children's Carnival

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE BELOVED LITTLE ONES.

Monday morning we'll vacate for the youngsters, and give them full charge of our famous Boys' and Children's Department. We'll endeavor to make them all happy and contented, regardless of consequences. Candidly speaking, there never was such a tremendous stock of Boys' Suits under our roof before. Think of it! Several hundred patterns to select from, and dozens of various makes, styles and designs. Our buyer spared no pains to gather the cream of the leading Eastern manufacturers' productions, and surely no novelty escaped his notice.

A Carnival for One Week.

A Picnic for the Little Ones.
