

"MARCH" WILL DROP DROPS IN TOWN.

"The Entertainer of Princes and Prince of Entertainers" Spends A Few Hours Here.

ALL NEW JOKES ARE ANCIENT.

He Tells a Few to Illustrate the Point That Nothing is New Under the Sun.

Marshall P. Wilder, "the entertainer of princes and the prince of entertainers" author and lecturer, spent a few hours in Salt Lake between trains this morning on his way to the coast.

Although Mr. Wilder has not been here since 1882 when he lectured in the Tabernacle, the number of people he shook hands with was astonishing.

"Everybody knows me," he declared, with a laugh, "but, will you believe it, I know more people in India and Japan who came up and said 'Hello March' than possibly anywhere else."

Once seen Mr. Wilder will never be forgotten. Physically he is not five feet in height, and what he termed this morning as his "half-past-six-o'clock legs" makes walking difficult.

"A Montana Bear" is an interesting play, in which Beatrice McKenzie and Henry Dickinson, who stir the legends, made a picturesque hero.

"Orpheum"—A fair sized audience was at the Orpheum last night on the opening of the new bill for the week.

"Damen and Pythias," the well known fraternity play, goes at the Salt Lake Theater tonight. It is under the direction of John Milton, and a crush house is anticipated.

"You can't change humor," he declared, "you can't change around the surrounding circumstances, but the pitch of the humor will remain the same, there is nothing new in humor and there will not be. Being before the public incessantly as an entertainer, I am obliged to vary my stories and quips, but you will find that they rarely lose their original point. I fatten up my jokes but they are not new, they have a new style, and they must progress as the public progresses. I try to bring up a joke in the way it ought to go. I put it into a new dress. I clothe it over and over again, just as you would a child from boyhood to manhood."

"To illustrate my point of how old humorous stories are changed into new let me tell you a story about Labouchere, the editor of the 'Morning Tribune.' A child asks her father, 'Who made Mr. Labouchere, papa?' Her parent answers that Providence did. Whereupon the child answers, 'What for, papa?'

"Now, I have a story very similar to that which always finds favor with my audience. A child and its mother are on the cars. Says the child, pointing to an overboarded youth, 'What's that, mother, what's that?' The mother quiets the little one with an admonition, but the precocious youngster will not be quiet and asks the question again in a louder voice.

"To bait him the mother leans over and whispers, 'That is what we call a dude, dear.' 'Who made him?' pursues the child. 'The answer is Providence.' And then comes the observation of the young hopeful, 'Doesn't Providence like to have fun sometimes?' You will see that this is the Labouchere story over again.

"Did you ever hear the inspiring words of George Primrose when he was asked why all especially minstrel-jokes were of such ancient vintage. He replied:

"My dear sir, the public simply won't stand for a new joke. They call it indigent. Besides they don't want the trouble of hunting up the place where the laugh comes in. I have found out it takes about three seasons to educate the public up to a fresh joke, if such a thing really exists."

Mr. Wilder is running serially in the Sunday editions of the leading eastern dailies some sketches, "The Sunny Side of the Street," and he is also running another series for a newspaper syndicate under the title "Smiling Through the World," being entertaining letters descriptive of his recent trip to the Orient, Egypt, and Europe. At the present time he is filling a contract with the Orpheum circuit for 4 weeks, and is now jumping from Denver to appear at the Orpheum in San Francisco. He would have been booked for Salt Lake, but at the last moment he has resigned the Salt Lake house, owing to its existence. He hopes, however, to appear here next season.

AMUSEMENTS. Salt Lake Theater—When applied to last night's Orpheum club concert, success should be spelled with a big "S," for certainly that splendid, hard working and indefatigable organization, which has striven so persistently to keep its bark afloat in all sorts of weather, and which has given us so many delightful musical treats in the past, swept the chords of harmony with pleasing and fragrant tones. The audience, which greeted, enjoyed and applauded it was probably, all in all, the most brilliant and representative of the musical and social elements of the community, that ever listened to his interpretation of the songs and sounds of the masters. The visiting artists both created favorable impressions, and Prof. Shepherd, who made his first appearance on the amusement platform since his return from New York, faultlessly performed the function of accompanist.

The program opened with Mrs. Lydia Greenline, contralto, who gave Schubert's "A. Fenthall," a pleasing encore number, a "Mignon" aria and "Ye Banks and Braes." It is understood that this lady is en route to Italy to complete her musical studies. Under such circumstances one does not feel prone to closely criticize her work, which by the way, was, in the main, good, but not reaching a high standard, as could be seen by several home artists. But as to Mr. Hall, the tenor, it must be said that there was no suggestion of disappointment in his singing. Few singers make better or more intelligent use of their voices than he. His tones are rich and rare, even though there is an occasional manifest peculiarity in strain in the higher flights, and a rather decided fondness for his r's, which however, was not unpleasing to some people. With his initial number "O Vision Entangling" he gave the audience its first real awakening of the night. It must be said that it was inclined to be of the "cold kind." It was inclined the enthusiasm he aroused he sang with superb feeling and finish "Peace Be Still." By this time it was clear to all that an artist of high rank was on the program, a fact that was emphasized anew in the rendition of his little group of English, Irish and Scotch songs and the encore songs, followed, such as "Mighty Like a Rose," which our own Fred Graham sings so sweetly and soulfully. But his most superb effort was the great "Elijah" aria.

The choir itself made a striking picture as it stood in the center of the stage, facing Conductor Peabody and obeying the graceful waves of his hand, the tenor soloist, who sang Sullivan's "The Long Day Closes," which was well done, though as the picture painter would say, its atmosphere was a little too somber. It, however, was applauded and a series of old Scotch melodies were given with good effect, followed by Parker's "Valentine." Its best and strongest work was done in still "Bedouin Love Song," where it rose splendidly to the demands of composer and author. In this number, though, as in all others, the bass side overhauled and appeared to better advantage than the tenor voices, whose resonance became a little shrill and rasping on the upward flights. But we must not expect perfection in a club whose members are from their various activities of life, and who belong to and perpetuate without reward, other than that which comes in the knowledge that they are doing something for art's sake.

The concert, which was well received, was a little shrill and rasping on the upward flights. But we must not expect perfection in a club whose members are from their various activities of life, and who belong to and perpetuate without reward, other than that which comes in the knowledge that they are doing something for art's sake.

After the concert the club opened its new quarters in the Goble-Pitts block, where Madame Sterling and Mr. Hall and other musical friends were its guests. Delicately buffed luncheon was served, and many pleasant exchanges.

JOHN C. BROWN CHOSEN MANAGER.

Of Athletics for 1906 at the University of Utah

AT MEETING THIS MORNING.

H. E. Havener Elected to a Similar Position for "Second" Football Eleven—Annual Session Tomorrow.

The University of Utah Athletic committee this morning selected John Clyde Brown, a sophomore in the engineering department, to be student manager of athletics for 1906.

H. E. Havener was elected to a similar position for the "second" football eleven, and the annual session of the committee will be held tomorrow.

Mr. Brown was student body president in 1904-05, and has always been an enthusiastic student, and an active participant in class and university undergraduate affairs.

He was graduated at the Ogden High school, John Jensen, present athletic manager, advised after the spring track meets, and he has held the position since last September in a capable manner, and gives up the position on account of the fact that he leaves the University with the next graduating class.

In conformity with its new policy, the faculty athletic committee also selected a manager for the second eleven, which will be a regular team at the University next year.

H. E. Havener was chosen for this position. He is a Salt Lake boy, registered in the mining school, and while he has not extensive athletic experience, he has been very active in supporting them.

Tomorrow morning the annual student body meeting of the University will be held, and a number of questions of vital interest will be considered and altogether a lively session is anticipated.

Tomorrow is boosting day for everything south of Salt Lake. Five hundred Salt Lakers, Murrayites and Provostites will journey to the town of Nephi, and back via Provo, where a long stop will be made for the evening, and the only regulation on what a man may take is that no "hammers" will be allowed.

The excursion will be a "stag" affair, and from the present outlook the weather man thinks it will be good to those who go. This is what the boosters want, for they are going mainly to see the country, its people and to judge of its prospects.

Members of the board of directors were busy all day today selling tickets for the excursion, and up to noon about $90 had been disposed of. Merchants do not have to be urged this time.

A WOMAN'S VIEW. Writing on the general topic of the "get acquainted" excursions, Louise Coulson makes the following statement to the "News":

CALDWELL GRAND JURY MAKES ITS REPORT. Caldwell, Ida., March 6.—The grand jury has been investigating the assassination of former Gov. Frank Steunenberg made its report to Judge Smith this afternoon.

It is stated, however, that the six men under arrest and detained in the state penitentiary at Boise are included in the indictments, and that they will be arraigned before Judge Smith tomorrow morning.

It is believed that a special train will be used to bring them here from Boise, as the officers fear that an attempt upon the life of Harry Orchard will be made.

None of the defendants was present in court when the grand jury reported today.

A PAINFUL ACCIDENT. Italian Badly Hurt by Fly Wheel This Afternoon. Nick Duclucio, an Italian employed at a macaroni establishment, 543 West Third Street, was painfully injured in an accident while at work about 1 o'clock this afternoon.

In some manner his hand became caught in the wheel. The wheel drew his hand and arm in, and before it could be stopped, the man's hand was cut and crushed and the arm dislocated at the elbow.

MAIL TRAIN TO PORTLAND NEXT.

Harriman Lines Are Figuring on A Solid Train Through To Oregon.

WEIGHING THE DAILY HAUL.

Getting Busy at Points on O. S. L. Figuring on the Tonnage Transported for Uncle Sam.

A solid train of mail cars carrying United States mail between Chicago and Portland, Ore., over the Chicago & Northwestern, Union Pacific, Oregon Short Line and the O. R. & N. is the latest undertaking to receive attention at the hands of the Harriman lines.

The experiment of running a similar train between Chicago and San Francisco has proved such an unqualified success that attention has been drawn to the transportation of mail to the northwest along similar lines.

It is predicted that the proposed train will become an accomplished fact before many months have passed.

In the meantime the weighing of the mails in full swing all the Oregon Short Line terminals, the heaviest work at Ogden and Pocatello. In every case the mail has to be taken out of the cars, weighed and transferred to special cars, which takes both time and labor and delays the trains in some cases.
