

SAULT LAKE STAKE ACADEMY.

A Successful Institution—The Good Work Being Done.

THE EXAMINATION TO-DAY.

At 10 o'clock this morning the examination at the close of the first term of the Intermediate Department of the Sault Lake Stake Academy took place at the Social Hall. Professor Karl G. Maeser, Principal of the Academy, came up from Provo to attend the exercises. Among the visitors present were Apostle Franklin D. Richards, President Angus M. Cannon, Elders Wm. B. Duggan, A. H. Hyde, Francis Cope, Elias Morris, Millard Pratt, Wm. M. Stewart, George M. Taylor, Harrison Sperry, Robert Morris, D. L. Davis, I. Brookbank, Sisters Zina D. Young, Lucy B. Young, Zina Y. Williams, and many others.

The proceedings were commenced by the Academy choir singing "Arise, Arise, with Joy Arise, The glories of the latter day." Prayer was offered by one of the students, Brother Thomas Curtis, and the choir sang "Merry, merry children sweetly sing, Of the happy days that the seasons bring."

The class exercises were conducted under the direction of Elder Willard Done, Instructor. Brother Charles Taylor acted as Monitor, a position he has occupied during the entire term. The first exercise was a class catechization upon the principles of Theology, and the replies to the questions of the Instructor relative to the Book of Mormon, its translation, and the history and travels of the people of whom it is a record, indicated that the students had been made familiar with the subject.

Executed then followed in reading, both individually and in concert, and in mental arithmetic. After singing "Joseph Smith's First Prayer," Brother Heber Iversen made an address in behalf of the gentlemen students, in which he expressed the gratification of himself and associates at the school discipline, and the method by which the pupils were taught the principles of the Gospel in addition to regular school studies.

Miss Margaret D. Smith, on behalf of the ladies, made a very neat speech, expressive of the appreciation of the efforts of the faculty, and of the good feeling which existed. The exercises then followed in reading, both individually and in concert, and in mental arithmetic.

LOCAL NEWS.

The University.—The first semester of the present academic year of the Deseret University closed to-day. The third term, or second half-year, commences on Monday. The attendance of students has been large, numbering over 200.

"Ready Reference."—A second edition of this useful publication has just been issued from the press of this office, and is now on sale. Some improvements have been made over the former edition, in the matter of arranging the references, and the whole volume has been carefully revised. Copious notes have been added, and one new subject introduced. The work is now an excellent compilation of Scripture quotations on doctrinal subjects, conveniently arranged under appropriate headings. It is bound in various styles, and is a handy volume for carrying in the pocket. Prices, 45, 55, 65 cents, and $1.00.

Discontinued.—The Sunday School class and tenor class meetings in the Social Hall, on Saturday nights, will be discontinued until the second Saturday after the Union meeting, in order that superintendents of schools may see just how many of the young men of their schools wish to take advantage of this opportunity.

Then, if there will be a sufficient number from each ward to justify Brother Stephens in continuing, he will do so. There should be from 15 to 20 from each school at least. There was an attendance of almost 70 at the last meeting and they made excellent progress, but when the number is limited, as during the various school meetings, it would not result in the attainment of the object in view in having the class. It is an important move for the improvement of our singing, and it should be well attended to.

"The Black Flag."—The story of this place, which will be produced next Monday at the Theatre, is very interesting. Old Owen Glyndon, a hard-hearted, close-fisted farmer, has two sons, Harry and John. The former is something of a free-and-easy, good-hearted, vagabondish fellow, fond of the society of boatmen and sailors; the latter a sneak and hypocrite who, under the guise of respectability, has been leading a disgraceful career in London, where he has forged a note with his father's name. The note has fallen into the hands of a Lazarus, a Whitechapel Jew, who comes down to the Glyndon homestead to find out the culprit. Harry and John are rivals for the hand of Mary Blandford, a sweet, virtuous, and beautiful girl, the daughter of the father, while Harry herself, prefers the vagabond Harry. Because Harry will not release his claims on Mary, Owen drives him from the house at the same time revealing the fact, that he is only his stepson, and finally in his rage and passion he turns his wife, Harry's mother from the door. Lazarus comes to the front, and under the name of exposure, induces John to rob his father, which he does, nearly murdering him in the attempt. This crime however, is shared to Harry, who is convicted and sent to the quaries at Portland. Here, through the devotion of a runaway sailor lad, Ned, and by the contrivance of Jim Beaton, a Portland guide, he is enabled to effect his escape, and in the subsequent act his innocence and the guilt of his brother are fully established. It will be seen from this brief outline of the plot, that there are abundant opportunities for strong and effective dramatic situations.

AN UNWARRANTABLE INTRUSION.

THE HOME OF MR. ANKIN INVADIED BY U. S. DEPUTY MARSHALS.

Before daylight this morning, the quiet of the home of Mr. Charles Ankin, of the 17th Ward, was disturbed by a visit from a couple of U. S. deputy marshals, in search of a victim who resides in the neighborhood of the port, and was wanted by Robert G. Steator. The officers were at sea, having gone to the wrong house, and asked Mr. Ankin where the object of their solicitude resided. That gentleman, being aware of the capacity of his visitors, declined to give any information on the subject, for the reason, as he expressed it, that he did not wish to say anything that would injure his neighbors. After a good deal of side-talk, which it is needless to relate here, the officers informed him that if he would not answer their satisfactory in relation to Mr. Steator, who it was presumed was wanted on a warrant issued upon a bench patent complaint for unlawful cohabitation, they would search his house. Mr. Ankin protested against this on the ground that he had nothing to do with the matter in question; said he was an Englishman and his home was his castle, which no one had a right to invade except upon his invitation. The officers—deputies Arthur Pratt and Bowman Cannon—paid no attention to his protestations, but pushed past him and entered the house. Mr. Ankin is justly indignant at such an unwarrantable invasion of his rights. To-day he is making inquiries as to whether he could get redress in the courts by suing the intruders for trespass. Those to whom he applied for this information shook their heads and smiled grimly at the suggestion of a "Mormon" expecting to get justice in an affair of that kind. Institutions that will throw their protecting arms over the murderer of a Latter-day Saint to enable him to go unpunished of justice, and because of the religious status of the victim, would not be likely to entertain such a complaint as Mr. Ankin makes. But it would not be amiss to give the matter a trial. He asserts that the permission of such outrageous intrusions was inflicted on him under the claim that this is the "land of the free" a hollow boast, there being plenty of the same kind of liberty in Russia.
