

TELEGRAPHIC. SIR PAUNCEFOTE

Presents His Credentials as Ambassador from Great Britain.

HIS ADDRESS TO CLEVELAND.

Diplomatic Career of Sir Julian.—The Boach Case.—Destructive Cyclones.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 11.—Sir Julian Pauncefoot became dean of the diplomatic corps in Washington this afternoon by virtue of his reception by President Cleveland as ambassador from Great Britain. As Sir Julian is the first ambassador from any country to the United States the present act of his presenting his credentials to Mr. Cleveland marks the functions of more than usual ceremony.

Sir Julian, with Hon. Michael Herbert and other members of the British embassy, met Secretary Gresham at the state department before leaving. All the British representatives were in mourning. The party proceeded to the White House and at once went to the blue room. When the President entered Sir Julian stepped forward and presenting his credentials to him made the following brief remarks:

Mr. President.—I have the honor to place in your hands a letter from the queen, my august sovereign, accrediting me as ambassador to the United States of America. In making the representative of the United States the rank of an ambassador her majesty manifested her constant desire to draw closely together the two countries, and I venture to tender my grateful acknowledgments for the courteous consideration and kindness which during the whole of that period has been extended to me in the discharge of my important functions. In the higher office of ambassador I hope the same indulgence may be accorded to me, and I beg to assure you that my utmost effort will be devoted, as in the past, to the maintenance and improvement of the relations of friendship and good will which I trust will never cease to exist between the two countries.

On the auspicious occasion of your being called upon once more to fill the exalted office of President of the United States, permit me, Mr. President, to offer you my sincere wishes for your personal welfare and for the continued prosperity of the great nation, whose mighty interests are committed to your charge.

In reply President Cleveland said: Mr. Ambassador.—It affords me sincere pleasure to receive from your hand the letter of her Britannic majesty accrediting you as her ambassador to the United States of America. On behalf of our government and people, I desire to express the satisfaction with which we interpret the action of her majesty in entrusting upon her representative at our capital the highest rank known to the diplomatic intercourse of nations, so a mark of profound friendly consideration that tends to draw into closer unity two peoples having common ties of blood, speech and of history. The pleasure you have so deservedly won during your residence here as minister plenipotentiary and the affectionate acquaintance it has been the privilege of the officers of this government to cultivate with you, furnish a pledge that in your new capacity you will in the future, as heretofore, promote the important interests of the two countries, and I trust to see you at all times you will be met with our earnest co-operation toward strengthening and perpetuating the national friendship which now happily exists.

Desiring you to convey to her majesty the queen, in my name and on behalf of the people of the United States, our heartfelt wishes for her majesty's welfare, and for the continued prosperity and peace of the British empire, I offer to you, Mr. Ambassador, my hearty personal congratulations.

HIS DIPLOMATIC CAREER.
Sir Julian Pauncefoot was appointed British envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States in 1861 to succeed Lord Clarendon, who had been his predecessor at the British legation in Washington. He was appointed attorney general in Hongkong in 1863, and was chief justice of that colony from 1869 to 1874. In 1874 he was made under secretary of state for the colonies. His next promotion was in 1876, when he became legal under secretary of state for the foreign office. He was made permanent secretary in 1882. The honor of knighthood was conferred upon him in 1874. In 1886 he was made a Companion of the Bath, and in 1888 he received the grand cross of the order of St. Michael and St. George.

SIDE BOACH CASE IN THE SENATE.
The Boach case came prominently to the front today in the executive session of the senate and was the cause of some plain talk. It was declared by the Democratic leaders that if the Boach case was to be gone into at this session, others should be taken up as well. The Republicans replied that they were afraid of an investigation concerning other members. After a long discussion the question was laid aside without any definite action taken.

did not follow, it going over for a day under the rules.
A communication was received from the President requesting the Senate to advise on the subject of a treaty with Great Britain, which had been sent to the Senate for its consideration. The Senate confirmed the following nominations:

John O. Breckinridge of Missouri as minister to Switzerland.
Wm. T. Swann of Virginia as minister to the Netherlands.

FLOOD'S DEFEAT.
Apparently involved in some mystery.

SAFETY FRANCHISE, April 11.—The afternoon it was learned that the amount of J. W. Flood's defection is $104,000, as heretofore given out by the bank officials. The banking company today filed a suit against Flood to recover $100,000, he only having made restitution of $4,000.

THE THEORY IS ADVANCED BY SOME THAT he voluntarily sacrificed his liberty and reputation to shield others. He suggested to President Donohue that he might make disclosure before his death, which might be in a couple of days, meaning to imply his intention to commit suicide.

different sympathies. Notwithstanding the large shipments, the exchange rate remains firm. There is no prospect of shipment pending. Some bankers who are selling gold at the exchange rate, about a month ago, would have been glad to take the gold at the rate of $100,000 for $100,000 from the treasury. They now expect that the shipment will go on at least $100,000 have gone out. A banker looking at the situation states that the treasury would have difficulty in placing any bonds to replenish the reserve now, if he should try, for the bank accounts are not as large as two months ago. At that time, he said, the issue of bonds would hardly or entirely have stopped the shipment, because a good deal of gold was sent out by the treasury and the gold was sold at a premium and foreign gold would have to be paid in more valuable currency. But for this many foreign accounts would have been left unsettled and the domestic currency would have been in a bad way, because the interest was easier on the other side, and other things being equal, money would prefer to be the dollar and not the gold.

James and smoke would hardly any attempt at rescue. There is a little doubt, however, that most of all of the men below are suffocated or turned to death.
A second attempt to enter the mine in which the fire started proved unsuccessful. Although the rescue party saw six bodies they were prevented by smoke and heat from reaching them. The number of men still in the mine could not be ascertained.
At midnight the fire is burning in all sections of the mine. A large quantity of pipe used to pour water in the mine has burst. The difficulty in the way of quenching the fire has increased greatly and the rescue of the men is now regarded as hopeless.
