

Local and Other Matters.

FROM TUESDAY'S DAILY, JAN. 12.

Birth.—Shortly before one o'clock to-day, to the wife of Mr. G. G. R. Sangiovanni, a daughter.

Still Falling.—Still the "beautiful" continues to fall in feathery flakes, making the necessary deposit in the surrounding mountains to feed the streams which fructify the thirsty soil in summer, insuring a reward to the industrious husbandman.

That Lecture.—The repetition of Mr. Stayner's lecture on the "Nose" drew a large audience to the 14th Ward Assembly Rooms last night. Those who heard him on both occasions say that that of last evening was much the more instructive and interesting, the audience being highly pleased, and manifesting their appreciation by a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Stayner at the close.

Don't Go So Fast.—These are fast times in some respects, if they are dreadfully slow in others. A good many people who go a sleigh-riding drive their animals too fast. We hear of three horses which died last night, and it might be safe to presume that that was the cause of the demise of two of them. It should be remembered that it endangers the lives of horses to drive them fast on a cold night, when the air is keen and damp, as it causes their lungs to be filled with the chilly atmosphere, oftentimes inducing instant death.

Died Suddenly.—Last night a horse belonging to Mr. Geo. H. Knowlden, valued at $200, was taken suddenly ill, and notwithstanding that the aid of a person acquainted with veterinary matters was summoned, it died on First South Street, while being taken home. The carcass lay on the street till this morning, when Mr. Knowlden had it taken away. Before its removal a Camp Douglas carriage was passing near where it lay, causing the mules to shy and break the tongue of the vehicle.

A Card.—The following card of thanks has been handed in with request to publish:—

"SALT LAKE CITY,

"January 12th, 1875.

"To Messrs. M. T. Patrick, W. H. Hooper, John Sharp, Walker Bros., and others:—

"We tender a card of thanks for the liberal donations extended to us to help defray the expenses of a ball and supper. We are always on hand when our services are required.

"Yours truly,

"WASATCH FIRE ENGINE CO.,
No. 2."

"The Nose."—Mr. C. W. Stayner was not the only party who manipulated the nose last night. John Eaves and J. Wolf had a dispute, and the latter undertook to reduce the nasal protuberance of the former from a genuine architectural projection to a diminutive "undeveloped pug," in which he was partially successful, and for which he will interview Justice Pyper tomorrow, who will probably manifest his deprecatory sentiments in a legal point of view to that forcible method of physiognomical examination. That manner of examining noses may suit the manipulator, but is seldom or never acceptable to the subject under examination."

Snowslide.—There was a big snowslide in Superior Gulch, Little Cottonwood Canyon, yesterday. When the great body of snow loosened and descended Mr. Patrick, his teamsters and ore teams were on the road below. They made the best time possible to get out of the way, but were unsuccessful, but luckily none of the men were hurt, save one, who was not, however, seriously injured. He was buried in the snow, but was extricated from his dangerous situation by his companions, as quickly as they had freed themselves. One team sled and harness were buried, and for the release of the animals alive Mr. Patrick offered $200.

Artificial Stone.—A branch of industry somewhat new to Utah is being conducted by Mr. D. B. Malcolm, Kimball Block, at the rear of Mr. Nottingham's office. He is there making an excellent article of artificial stone, which appears as solid, nearly as heavy, and as if it might be as durable as the veritable sandstone manufactured by the operation of the ordinary laws of nature. For window caps, lintels, mantels, cornices, and facing for fronts built of other material, the article is well adapted, and for flagging it is excellent. Captain W. H. Hooper is having some of the last named kind made for the floor of an area at his residence.

Mill Creek New School House.—We have received from Brother George B. Bailey, the following account of the dedication of the new school-house at Mill Creek, which took place yesterday, under the supervision of the trustees, R. Miller, J. Hill and D. McAllister:—

"The meeting was called to order by Bishop R. Miller, who made some opening remarks and explained the object of the meeting. The choir sang a hymn and Elder Alexander Hill offered the dedicatory prayer, which was very appropriate to the occasion.

"The building is fifty feet long, twenty-eight ft. wide, and fourteen feet high between floor and ceiling. It is well lighted with large windows; it is a frame building, sided with rustic redwood, and well painted inside and out. It is a credit to the inhabitants of that school district.

"This is the third schoolhouse that has been built in Mill Creek Ward within two years, and the amount spent by the trustees exceeds $5,600, which speaks well for the inhabitants of Mill Creek, in their endeavors to promote education among the rising generation."

AMERICAN.

NEW YORK, 11.—Falcott, Alexander and Guion, of the Pacific Mail directory, have tendered their resignations.

In the Tilton-Beecher suit, this afternoon, Judge Morris continued his argument up to adjournment, but so far has disclosed nothing but what has already been published.

The Herald's London special says that Don Carlos has issued a proclamation dated, Headquarters, Vera, January 6th, in which he says that, as the head of the Spanish Bourbons, he contemplates with profound sorrow the attitude of his cousin Alphonso, whose inexperience has led him to consent to be the instrument of the same persons who expelled him and his mother. Notwithstanding he makes no protest, the dignity of himself and his army being his only protest, he avers that he will remain faithful to his holy mission, and keep the flag unstained.

The indignation meeting at the Cooper Institute, to-night to denounce the outrages against the political rights of the people of Louisiana, was one of the most remarkable events of the kind ever witnessed in this city, in point of numbers and enthusiasm. The doors were opened half an hour before the usual time and the rush was terrific, and at a quarter past seven standing room could not be had in the hall, and before the meeting began, the reporters were crowded out of their places by the crushing throng, and men clambered into the organ gallery, while on the platform there was barely room for the speaker's chair. Wm. Cullen Bryant and Peter Cooper were among the last to arrive, and were heartily cheered. August Belmont called the meeting to order and nominated Mayor Wickham for chairman, who came forward and read the following dispatch from McEnery and other conservatives of New Orleans:

"Louisiana sends greeting to-night. Her people will not be goaded into a conflict with the U. S. troops. A committee is preparing evidence to refute the slanders of Sheridan. We rely upon the moral support of our sister States to restore to American freemen our right of self-government."

Mr. Bryant first addressed the meeting, saying that the President had no right to interfere in the affairs of a State save as provided by the constitution. The wrong done in Louisiana has no possible extenuation. He regarded the question solely as a solemn question of constitutional law. No matter who desired the interference of the military, it should not have been given but in the way of the constitution, otherwise it is an act from which no citizen has a right to withhold his condemnation. The evil must be rebuked and crushed now, before it becomes formidable as a precedent.

A list of Vice Presidents was read, among them were Wm. E. Dodge, Irwin Stone, Peter Cooper, Wm. C. Bryant, Charles O'Connor, and about 700 others.

A series of resolutions was then read, denouncing the interference of the military in State affairs, and condemning the dispatches of Sheridan. Each resolution was greeted with loud and long applause, and carried amid wild cheers and a storm of ayes.

Wm. M. Evarts was the next speaker. He said the sole object of the intervention of federal authority within the province of State authority, was to suppress violence, and then only when requested by the legislature, and only in case the legislature is not in session and cannot be convened can the governor represent them in such demand. None of these conditions existed in the Louisiana case. After reviewing the constitution and law in such cases, he said this effort to control the legislature struck at the very soul of a republican form of government. The people should know how to teach their rulers that they were only in their positions to act in accordance with law. Speeches were also made by Hon. J. L. Thayer, Wm. E. Dodge, Geo. Ticknor Curtis, and ex-governor Solomon.

The Tribune's special says that Fish will retire from the cabinet if the President sustains the military intervention in Louisiana, and probably Bristow will follow. Fish is outspoken that Monday's military course is indefensible on legal or constitutional grounds, and Bristow is equally positive.

The Times does not think the indication of to-night's meeting will be an expression of the republican sentiment of the country, because the meeting is largely engineered by democrats. It does not think the people should condemn the President for Sheridan's misjudged acts, congress rather than the President being responsible for the state of affairs in Louisiana.

The Sun's New Orleans special says authoritatively, that the claimants to seats who were ejected by the military had been declared duly elected by the commissioners of election in their parishes, and there were no contesting claimants to their seats, nobody disputed their right, but the returning board neither admitted nor rejected them, simply referring their cases to the house for a decision, so that their presence was excluded, nobody else having a color of right.

Capt. J. E. Hadley, of the ship John Bright, has arrived here, and makes the following report of the total loss of his ship, which sailed hence Nov. 6, for San Francisco: "At midnight of Dec. 6 in lat. 3.51S, long. 33.49W., she struck on Rocas Reef. We launched three boats, and provisioned and watered them. When we left the ship the forward deck was four feet under water, and the sea breaking on her. We squared away for Pernambuco, with orders, in case the boats separated, to put into Natal. On the 12th one of the boats sprang a leak, when we took off the crew, and divided them between the other boats. Soon after we lost sight of the chief officer's boat, which arrived on the 13th at Natal. On the same day I was picked up off Natal by the Brazil steamer Ipujuka, for Pernambuco, and there landed December 15th. In the meantime the chief officer and party had come on to Pernambuco. I there delivered up the ship's crew to the U. S. consul, and with the chief officer took passage in the steamer Cordova for New York, where we arrived last night."

PUT THIS AND THAT TOGETHER.—When Col. Forney was in Manchester, England, lately, a weaver said to him, "Such men as we elect to our city offices would as soon think of setting fire to their own houses as of abusing a public trust."

An American must feel highly complimented when such an observation about official probity is made to him in a foreign land.

UNQUESTIONABLY.—The Chicago Times says, "Unquestionably there are some rascally carpet-baggers in the South." Yes, unquestionably there are, and not in the South only.
