

TWENTY-SEVEN BURNED TO DEATH.

Were Italian Railway Laborers
And Were Asleep in a Shanty
At the Time.

A HUNDRED MEN WERE IN IT.

Was a Frantic Rush to Get Out—
Some Went Back to Get Their Gold
And Never Returned.

Johnstown, Pa., Nov. 21.—While over 100 Italian railroad laborers were asleep in a shanty near Lilly, Pa., on the Pennsylvania railroad, early today, the building caught fire, and before the men could escape at least 27 were burned to death and a score or more were seriously injured. The men were employed by McNameis & Sims on the Pennsylvania railroad improvements between Lilly and Portage. There were 500 on the job, all Italians, and in the shanty which burned were 125 of these. The shanty was about 100 feet long, one story in height, and built in the usual style of such quarters. The eastern end was devoted to the cooking and eating, while the men slept in bunks like sardines in a can in the western end. There was only one door at each end and the windows were few and small.

The fire is supposed to have started from an overheated stove in the eastern end. The building burned like tinder and the flames were upon the men before any of them were aroused. Then began a struggle for the outside and life. They fought and scrambled for the doors, and the weaker were crushed down and trampled. Others were rushed to death there.

Those who strove for the doors were in the wildest sort of panic. They fought and kicked, and among those who escaped there are many who bear marks of the fierce strife which took place in this battle for life. A few got out of the small windows, minus clothes and with their bodies cut from broken glass.

Many of those who did manage to get out had their savings of years in their trunks which they left behind them in the building. Remembering this fact as soon as they got outside, they fought just as fiercely to get back. A few succeeded in getting back, and their hoarded treasure they gave up for their lives.

One eye witness says he does not believe that a single man of those who returned succeeded in getting out again. In the ruins today some of the corpses were close beside the hooped bands of their trunks and melted gold and silver which had been in those receptacles. The bodies were unable to identify a single one.

Lower Rates on Rails.

New York, Nov. 21.—Freight rates on steel rails for export will be lowered in a day or two, according to the Herald. The cut will be the same as that ordered Thursday by traffic officials on the railroads in the trunk line and central traffic associations that is 33-1/3 per cent of the present tariff. The cut mentioned, it now develops, was applied only to the "special iron and steel tariffs," which did not include rails.

At a meeting to be held during the second week of December the rail committees of the Northwestern and Trunk line associations will consider an adjustment of the domestic rates on rails.

O. S. L. AT IDAHO FALES.

Some Changes in the Line That Runs Through City.

Some Short Line physical changes to be made at Idaho Falls will result favorably both to the road and to the local business community. The line to Butte at present passes through the main part of the city, which with the growth of the town is making it inconvenient for the local business traffic, and is cramping the railroad for yard room. The changes to be made will be as follows:

The line running to Butte will follow the St. Anthony branch from the depot, in a northwesterly direction for just one mile and then swing on a curve to the north cutting in on the main line about one mile from the city. The distance from the St. Anthony branch line to where the road will meet the main line is nearly two miles. The mileage will be the same and not much difference in the grade, but the switching can all be done in a perfectly straight line in an almost level yard.

The depot will be a new structure about four blocks further up than the location of the present one. The value of this to the city cannot be overestimated. Cars are now found in the way and the room of the Short Line being limited between the depot and bridge, a new bridge will be constructed across the Snake river, the present one which has been the occasion of danger and accident will be removed.

WILL ADVERTISE STATE OF UTAH.

Veteran Newspaperman of Denver
Here Ahead of Famous Exposition Train.

TO EXPLOIT WESTERN STATES.

Scheme to Add an Increase in Permanent Settlers and Tourist Travel Generally.

The veteran newspaperman, Hugh Coyle of Denver, is in Salt Lake making arrangements here to establish the headquarters of the Exposition train project which has been previously described in the "News." He states that there is a huge car now on the way to Salt Lake which will be used as an advance car in front of the train, much in the same way as the press agent's car of a big circus. The car is 74 feet in length and is divided into four staterooms, or offices, for the accommodation of the press.

The Exposition train project has been expanded from one state, Colorado, to all of the Rocky mountain region of the west.

But for obvious reasons the organization was not until now incorporated into a company, nor subscriptions for stock accepted, though many were tendered.

The objects and purposes of the company are to add an increase in permanent settlers and an immense increase in tourist visitors.

The project has been endorsed by many of the best known and substantial men and business firms of Colorado, as well as a large number outside the state. It was due to the earnest solicitation of representative men in Utah, Wyoming, Idaho and other states that the expansion was made and the same effected during the recent sessions of the Irrigation Congress, held at Ogden, Utah. The company has arranged for the allotment of stock subscriptions to certain localities in the various states to be represented, such as are considered by us to be representative from an agricultural, horticultural, mineral, pastoral and scenic point of view, as well as in enterprise, so that those interesting will, by virtue of their holdings in the stock, add a personal interest in keeping up the train exhibit all times to the highest standard and avoid having it classed as a private enterprise.

There has been a considerable expenditure of time and money upon the enterprise for over one year, which has resulted in great good in focusing the direct attention of all the people upon this section's possibilities.

UTAH ARTISTS FILE AN ANSWER.

The defendants in the case of Edwin Evans and J. B. Fairbanks against the Utah Art Institute, G. M. Ottinger, S. P. Whitaker, Edna W. Sloan, Alice M. Horn, Allan L. Lovey, H. L. A. Culmer and L. A. Ramsey, filed their answer to the complaint in the district court today in which they make some sensational charges against plaintiffs in connection with the art exhibit held in this city from March 9 to April 9, 1903.

The answer admits that plaintiffs Evans and Fairbanks and defendant, Alice M. Horn, claiming to be the exhibition committee of the institute attempted to hold an art exhibit on the above date, but defendants deny that the above persons were ever duly appointed as such committee and are not now duly appointed. It is also admitted that the plaintiffs each offered two paintings in competition for the state prize of $200, but it is denied that they were accepted by the alleged committee or that they were the only paintings entered for the prize.

ONE PICTURE SHUT OUT.
It is alleged on the contrary that at least one other painting was offered which was worthy of competition, but that the majority of the alleged committee the two plaintiffs herein, refused to permit said painting to be entered and for the purpose of preventing a fair and open competition and merely to advance their own interests, they selected only their own paintings for exhibition to the exclusion of others equally meritorious. The defendants admit that the judges examined the paintings offered and also the one refused by the alleged exhibition committee and refused to make an award of the prize for the reason that the exhibition committee acted without authority in the matter and the attempted selections were not fairly and openly made and for the further reason that none of the selections were worthy of the prize.

PLAINTIFFS DISQUALIFIED.
Defendants allege that plaintiffs were disqualified from serving on the said exhibition committee by reason of their interest in the paintings exhibited. They deny that it is the intention of the institute to award a prize to the plaintiff. Defendants ask therefore that plaintiffs' complaint be dismissed and that they be awarded their costs in the action.

ERISH CUT GREEN BONE.

Great as are the profits of hens, they may be largely increased by a proper system of feeding.

Students of the "food problem" have discovered that certain foods can be depended upon to produce equally as good results in fowls as in animals. It has been discovered that the feeding of green cut bone increases the production of eggs. Different parts of ordinary market bones upon analysis were found to contain in abundance the ingredients which go to make up the close proportions the different parts of the complete egg.

The lean meat and gristle form the white of the egg and about 16 per cent of the yolk. The marrow and other fat on the bone yield all the necessary lime salts for the shell and the requisite phosphates for the interior of the egg. But it is not enough that a given food contains certain desirable properties. Its "food value" depends upon the power of assimilation by the consumer. Practical experience has proven that the gristle, blood, fat and bone, all of which go to make up "green bone," is the very best possible food for poultry. It is thoroughly assimilated by poultry.

Green bone can be obtained from butchers or sent to the Regal's. Although in many country markets they may be had for the asking. Cutting them into small pieces and feeding them whole upon the number of fowls to be fed, as the invention and use of green bone cutters has greatly simplified the preparation of this food.

Poultry folk differ as to method and quantity of feeding green bone. Personally we prefer to feed it as a separate ration. After becoming accustomed to this food, poultry will devour less per day is the allowance.

Compared with other foods we consider green bone the cheapest for the results accruing from its use of any one food, nearly doubling (as it does) the amount of eggs and very materially increasing their fertility, besides producing better plumage and maintaining a more healthy condition of the fowls.

Therefore, whether from a desire to increase the vigor of the fowl or develop its matter of time and labor depending wholly upon the number of fowls to be fed, as the invention and use of green bone cutters has greatly simplified the preparation of this food.

The book contains 811 pages as against 669 pages in the first edition, issued in 1900, and is unique in this, that it has four separate and distinct departments. Pages 49 to 82 consist of a full and complete list of the state officers, state boards, state judiciary, state institutions, National Guard of Utah, state Legislature, county seats and officers, the Utah public school directory, including a list of the city and county superintendents of schools, boards of education, school districts and trustees, and all of the school teachers of the state. In this department there is also a full and complete list of the United States officers located in Utah, and a list of the notaries of the state, corrected to date; also a list of the railroads of Utah, with the names of the express companies operating over them.

The second section of the work (pages 83 to 469) consists of a list of all the cities, villages, postoffices, railroad stations and settlements in the state, with a descriptive sketch of each place, showing their location and topography, population and resources, with the names of all business and professional men following under the sketch or write-up for each place.

The third section of the work (pages

470 to 622) contains the names of all the farmers and land owners of the state, arranged by counties, giving the number of acres owned, assessed valuation of same, and owner's postoffice address.

The fourth section of the work (pages 623 to 828) contains a general classified list of all the industries and productions of the state, including all the trades, professions, manufactures and pursuits, as well as a list of all the justices of the peace, constables, etc. Each line of trade and profession is arranged in alphabetical order, with an alphabetical arrangement of the postoffice following, and the names of all persons opposite.
