

It is the duty of the historian to ascertain the truth, and to present it in a clear and concise manner. The historian should not be a mere chronicler of events, but a student of the past, one who seeks to understand the causes and consequences of historical events. The historian should be a student of the past, one who seeks to understand the causes and consequences of historical events. The historian should be a student of the past, one who seeks to understand the causes and consequences of historical events.
