LOCAL BRIEFS.

The Home Protective league has adjourned its meetings for the summer.

A large party of Missouri delegates to the Los Angeles convention of the Knights of Columbus spent yesterday in this city, and were shown every courtesy by the local Knights. The visitors enjoyed themselves very much, and left with the kindliest feelings for Salt Lake.

One hundred and twenty-five Iowa school teachers spent yesterday in Salt Lake en route to the Portland fair, and were shown about by City Passenger Agent Robert Wilson of the Rock Island. The party went to the lake in the afternoon, and enjoyed a special organ recital in the Tabernacle in the evening. They left on their Rock Island special this morning for the coast.

The following delegates to the National Good Roads convention at Portland on June 22, 23 and 24 have been appointed by President James H. Anderson of the Utah Good Roads association: C. R. Hollingsworth, Ogden; Senator Reed Smoot, Provo; D. R. Roberts, Logan; J. B. Swenson, Salt Lake; J. A. Hyde, Nephi; J. P. Cahoon, Murray.

The Utah Dental association finished its fifteenth annual convention Saturday afternoon and elected these officers for the ensuing year: President, D. M. Smith of Ogden; first vice president, W. M. Stookey of Lehi; second vice president, W. G. B. Terrell of Salt Lake; secretary-treasurer, A. D. Barbour of Ogden. It was voted to hold the next convention in Ogden.

The First Baptists raised $3,300 yesterday towards paying for the site of their new church on east First South street, the cost of which is $6,750. Individuals gave all the way from $1 to $500. The societies gave as follows: Ladies' Aid society, $500; Willing Workers, $100; Men's club, $100; B. Y. P. U., $100; Berean club, $50; First Baptist church of Kansas City, Mo., $105.

Harry Shearman writes to a friend in this city from Berlin: "The crown prince wanted me to come to his wedding, so here I am. Have had a royal time. The kaiser wanted to know where you were and sends his regards. Will sail from London about June 25." The above poetic sentiment decorates the bottom of a ostal card on the back of which appears an excellent photograph of the crown prince and his bride. She is a fine looking brunette, and he is a bright appearing young man.

THE DEADLY "22."

Councilman Neuhausen's Son Crippled For Life by Small Rifle.

Phillip Neuhausen, aged nine, son of the well known architecht and city councilman, has been maimed for life by the accidental discharge of a .22 caliber rifle which he was holding in his hand, while the owner of the weapon, Frank Konold, aged 12, was locating sparrows to shoot. The bullet went into the lad's instep, and when taken to the Holy Cross hospital, the surgeons removed two splintered bones and said the child would be crippled for life. When he was shot, the lad had the presence of mind to pull off his shoe and stocking and pick the bullet from the wound. Mr. Neuhausen blames the parents of the Konoid boy for permitting him to be in the possession of a dangerous weapon, and will introduce an ordinance this evening, in the city council, making it a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment, for any parent, a citizen of Salt Lake, to permit his children who have not arrived at years of discretion, to own, carry or use firearms of any character. He says it is time that stringent measures were taken to put a stop to the use of small-caliber rifles by boys, and will push the question until some effectual remedy is secured.

Whooping Cough in Jamaica.

Mr. J. Riley Bennett, a chemist of Brown's Town, Jamaica, West India Islands, writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It has proved itself to be the best remedy for whooping cough, which is prevalent on this end of the globe. It has never failed to relieve in any case where I have recommend it, and grateful mothers, after using it, are daily thanking me for advising them." This remedy is for sale by all Druggists.

MAKING CITIZENS OF THE WAYWARD

Juvenile Court Judge Willis Brown Delivers Impressive Sermon On That Subject.

HOW WORK IS CARRIED ON.

A Prime Essential is to Recognize the Fact That a Boy is Simply a Boy And Not a Man.

Just what a Juvenile court may do in making citizens, was explained by Judge Willis Brown in a sermon at the First Methodist church last night. Judge Brown dealt with the boy, immature in body and mind, who may be moulded for better or for worse by the criminal action taken against him for his early delinquencies. The view point placed the court far from what the name of "court" implies, showing its purposes not to deal out justly retributive justice, but to deal out rather aid to character building as a physician of the body, would administer medicine. The judge then, he said, should not cling closely to his bench, but mingle freely with his "boys," and have but little formality in his dealings with them. The sermon was listened to intently by a large audience.

THE SERMON.

Judge Brown said in part:

The Fact—A boy of 12 years has stolen five chickens from a neighboring coop.

The Question—What shall we do with him?

There also arises many other questions in our minds. Was he alone? Did others advise and help him? Was this his first theft? What does the boy look like? What's his name? Who are his parents? etc.

We will all agree that the boy of 12 has not his growth either physically or mentally. Civil law calls him an infant. What shall criminal law call him. Before the advent of the Juvenile court in Salt Lake City, law called this boy thief a man criminal. All the processes of the criminal law used in the apprehension, trial and conviction of the midnight burglar were used in the trial of this boy. If his age pleaded leniency for him, then the law meant nothing to his imperfect understanding of these things, and he was "scolded" and let go, again to commit some act against law and order so soon as the effects of the "legal scolding" were forgotten, until there comes a time when the occurrance of the deed is so often and the act greater in accomplishment and violence that the boy has his "man's trial" and is "sent over." It matters not to him where. It is his prison, call it what you will.

BOY NOT A MAN.

The Juvenile court recognizes as its fundamental doctrine that a boy is a boy. That as in civil affairs so in moral conduct the boy is a growing man immature in every faculty. Incapable at the age of 12 of deeding away property that may be his, incapable of being held as responsible for the theft of five chickens as is the man of 40. Therefore we call him a delinquent instead of a criminal, and administer a delinquent law in his punishment and correction instead of a criminal law.

But there is a further and more far-reaching influence of the Juvenile court of Salt Lake than even this. With this delinquent term modifying the law, we are able to bring into this delinquent or Juvenile court children who are drifting but have not as yet committed an action sufficient in the eyes of the public to be called a "crime."

There is a curfew law, requiring a child 14 or under to be at home at 9 o'clock every evening. The most feared by those who listened not for the "curfew whistle" was a police scolding if caught, and catching was an astonishment. There is the cigarette law and tobacco law against the use or having in possession cigarette or tobacco by youths of 18 years or under. Police should not be blamed for a slackness in bringing eight and 14-year-old boys in the criminal police court of the city, there to see and hear the frightful things connected with the general conduct of prisoners before that court. A "lecture" or "scolding" was usually the punishment meted out to these offenders, when an officer who knew the law and his own heart met such a one.

HOW BOYS START WRONG.

The boy who fails to return home directly after school when told to do so by mother, who goes off with John and creeps into the home at midnight is a delinquent. To do this a second and third time means simply that the boy willingly and knowingly violates the law of the home. He likewise violates the law of the land. He is not a criminal, as is the man law-violater, but he is a delinquent. The Juvenile court, therefore, does its best and more perfect work in the correction and guiding of these first delinquents.

GROWING TO BE A CRIMINAL.

"There is a boy named Bill who will wind up in the pen one of these days. He is a regular tough, and is always getting other boys in trouble. He is the worst boy in the neighborhood and will wind up a criminal." How often you hear this said of some boy. I have had letters and complaints like this from many in the past two months. No act committed that warrants an arrest under criminal law, and before the establishment of Juvenile courts, cities and states simply watched with folded legal arms this drifting boy until the anticipated crime was committed and then gathered the boy in those same arms, but not to admonish with love and advice, but to crush a half-grown man by pressing the legal bands of criminal punishment. Is it a wonder that when the full-grown man emerges from this crushing process he joins the night-gloomed rather than the sun-kissed citizens of our fair country?

But the boy who stole the chickens and what to do with him. We have him in the Juvenile court charged with delinquency. He has given the judge the "square deal" and told the straight story. Investigation shows that Bob and Tom were with him: they were members of the gang. Would it interest you to here substitute a real "chicken story" in place of this supposed one.?

REAL CHICKEN STORY.

Some time ago there appeared in our court four boys. They were brought up by a police officer for stealing chickens. "Now, Tom, tell me about it, but you needn't snitch on the other fellows," was the request of the court. Tom told his story. The other boys were in accord that the story was correct.

"But this isn't the first case of chicken stealing by the gang, is it?" was the court's question.

"No; there have been other times," was the reply.

The Court—Do you belong to the gang that meets in the old barn near the schoolhouse?

Boy—What barn, near what schoolhouse?

The Court—Oh, you know.

Boy—Yes.

The Court—Why, Ned belongs to that gang, why isn't he here with you boys?

Boy—He didn't get caught.

The Court—Is that square on you fellows?

Boy—No, but we don't like to snitch on the other kids.

The court—No, and I don't want you to without their consent, but it isn't square, just the same, that four out of —how many in the gang, Tom?

Boy—I guess there's about 11 or 12, isn't there, Jake?

"'Bout that many," replies Jake.

The Court—Well, you boys will have to be punished for this mistake you have made. The real stealing began when you played hookey from school and met in the barn, smoked cigarettes and fixed up schemes. Now first you boys will have to put up for the chickens. We'll call it a dollar each. We will have to put you in charge of the court and sentence you to the industrial school if you do not mind the instructions which we give you.

The boys are then given slips which cite them to appear in court the next Saturday at 9 o'clock in the morning. They must bring a letter from their teacher that they have been in school every day and done the best they could. A letter from the parents that they have been in the yard every night at 9 o'clock. They must redeem evil with good. They must be obedient to their parents. They must be careful of their habits. No cigarette smoking.

COURT HAS MANY CASES.

Since the establishment of our court we have had 176 cases. Of these 10 have been adults who have contributed to the delinquency of children, and two have been girls, both of whom were sent to the State Industrial school for girls. Out of 16 boys who have been before the court we have sent but three to the State Industrial school direct from their examination. These three were boys 17 years of age and the evidence, together with their lack of home influence which could co-operate with the court was such that probation was out of the question. Then out of the remaining 160 boys 10 only up to date have sent themselves to the reform school. These 10, after trials extending from one to six weeks, were unable or unwilling to redeem their mistakes or obey the instructions of the court or probation officers.

TRUANCY.

With no juvenile court at least 50 of the 160 cases have been serious enough to commit the boys to the industrial school, and there would have been no other alternative but to let the boys go, only to commit another offense, for such is the record where there is no probation system or method of keeping the boys in charge of the court and in the hands of the merciful features of all just law. This then is a saving in money to the city, to those whose narrow vision is measured by the dollar, and a saving in citizenship to those who believe in saving methods and in the noble, true-hearted boyhood of our community.

BUT THE CHICKEN AFFAIR.

But to go back to the chicken affair. Let us continue the investigation. We have found out that Tom stole chickens. He has his punishment in being placed in charge of the state, which assumes for a time or until Tom proves that his parents can control him. The state is now Tom's parent, and he must obey this.

SOURCES OF CRIME.

But what environment, influence or trait conspired to make a thief of Tom? Is he naturally so? Has he a poor home? Is his mother or father irresponsible? Have companions led him into delinquency? To correct the boy is not all. It is here our Salt Lake court is far ahead of many others. There are other boys like Tom. Tom has three younger brothers. Shall they in a few years be in court for theft?

In the case of the four boys it was evident some attention must be paid to the gang. So the boys were asked to bring the others up to see the judge. Not in open court, but in the private office, where we could have a "snitching social." They came, 10 of them. After explaining to them what had happened to the four boys, they all agreed that it was not fair play that those who were equally guilty should escape.

The boys were informed that no one had snitched on them and it was voted unanimously that we all "snitch up." Each fellow told on himself, and you may be sure it went further into the deeds or misdeeds of the gang than the chicken-stealing affair. Then there were more chickens stolen than the ones for which the original four boys were arrested. Then there was on boy who never stole a chicken, nor was he out at night with the gang. He sold the chickens the boys stole in the night time. Another member of the gang was the jigger. He watched for the cop and spotted new chicken coops. The boys all came under the court's direction and so all were on the level.

Now what else conspired to make thieves of these bright boys. A saloonkeeper had his part, and as our juvenile law enables us to arrest for a misdemeanor any person who by any act contributes to the delinquency of a child, on the evidence of the boys of "the gang" the saloonkeeper was found guilty of contributing to delinquency, with a fine sufficient to influence him to keep boys from his saloon.

VISIT EVERY HOME.

We have the mothers in court and our probation officers, Capt. Woods, and myself have visited every home. We have found most of the mothers widows, trying to earn the daily bread and care for from three to 11 children each. In one home the father was drinking and spending all the money he earned in saloons. Here was a case where the father was the chief cause of delinquency of the boy. After 10 days in jail this father discovered it better to spend what he earned for groceries rather than for liquor.

ENVIRONMENT A GREAT CURSE.

Environment is the greatest curse. A wretched hovel, in one case two rooms for 12 people. Mother, widow, sickly, and only two boys on whom to depend for support. These with the boys of the "gang" to influence for the worst, because of no true leadership and no home restraint.

And so these are conditions. They should not be. Parents should control their children. Laws should be obeyed. One of our daily papers well said that a busy juvenile court was a poor commentary on the parentage of children of Salt Lake, and I contend that fortunate indeed is the community or city where not only a juvenile court is a useless thing, but any court. But we have no ideal condition here, nor have I found it elsewhere. The boy stole the five chickens. Who is to blame?

In our capital city of Washington a few months ago an investigation was made of all arrests for a period. Judge Lindsey of the Denver Juvenile court made the investigation at the request of President Roosevelt. It showed that one-third of some 2,000 arrests for crime were children under 18 years of age. With no juvenile court only the very worst cases of children were handled in the police and other courts, leaving the milder cases, which we call delinquent ones, to fester and sore until a criminal is made. Our president has requested of Congress that Washington be given a juvenile court law and that the children of America's capital city be redeemed.

BOY FINDS HIS WAY.

To save our growing citizenship is indeed the greatest mission of the present day. When crime and disregard for law is so rampant it is indeed time that correction begin with growing life and not with old age. Save the gray heads and you save units; save the children and you save a multiplication table. Trust the boy and you win a heart for honor. Lost manhood gives you nothing to trust.

BOY FINDS HIMSELF.

We sent a runaway boy to the Ogden industrial school alone. Gave him his own commitment papers. He left our courtroom alone, made his way to the Oregon Short Line depot, reached Ogden, took the street car, transferred to the industrial school and about 8:30 rapped on the door of the school for admission. He met boys who told him to give us the hot-foot. One said: "I've been there and if you are wise don't go." But he went. This boy who was sent up for running away. God grant that we may reach the hearts of all our Salt Lake boys as we did that of Charley Daniels. Charley Daniels found himself, and I think for the first time, and in the realization of this fact and the supreme joy which I found in his face when I saw him the day following his deed, I think that already we can count on Charley as saved to citizenship.
