The business men are at their posts but they seem to have no heart in their work. On every corner the sad news is discussed and mingled with the expressions of esteem for the late President and sympathy for his wife, are denunciations for the heartless wretch who fired the fatal shot.

If the "News" is reliably informed T. M. Schumacher's position of acting traffic manager for the Oregon Short Line is only temporary, as the wording of the official circular would denote. There is promotion in store for Mr. Schumacher which will elevate him up several rounds on the railroad ladder. Word comes from Chicago that those who profess to be in touch with the situation are passing around the information among themselves that Mr. Schumacher is expected to be reaching plans into good working order so that the way out of the woods will be in sight. Mr. Schumacher will be called to Chicago and be given a responsible position under Mr. Stubbs and another man appointed in his stead here with the full title of traffic manager for the Oregon Short Line.

FAMILY TROUBLES.

How Sperry Made a Man Care for His Wife.

This is a story of how Officer Sperry compelled a man to provide for his family. Sperry is one of those persons who believes that a man who will not provide for his own home is worse than an infidel.

This morning a telephone message was received at police headquarters announcing trouble at 150 south Eleventh East street, in the household of Will Lee, a miner. It was said that the man was beating his wife and children and threatened to steal the wife. Mrs. Lee is a very delicate little woman and has been compelled to take to her bed to support her three little children. For several days Lee has been hanging around the place in a very ugly mood and has been treating his family in a most shameful manner.

Shortly after twelve o'clock last night, Detective Sheets was hustled out of bed to go to the woman's relief. It was said her husband had been beating her. When the officer arrived at the place, Lee had fled. When word came to the station about 10:30 that the fellow had returned and was worse than ever, Sperry and Officer Kirkman proceeded to the scene in the patrol wagon.

As the officers entered the house Lee was saying what he was going to do. He would take the children and go to Colorado where a job was awaiting him. He kissed the little ones good bye and turning to his wife, he said: "What do you want to do?" "I want to live with you," she said. "What does all this mean?" demanded Sperry. Lee assured him that he was a very good man and to show him how kind and loving he was he picked up one of the children and began to caress it most tenderly. But Sperry's heart was not softened by the play and told the man he would either have to leave the place and let his family live in peace or go to jail.

Five minutes later Lee had his trunk packed and announced his readiness to go to Colorado where a job was awaiting him. He kissed the little ones good bye and turning to his wife, he said: "What do you want to do?" "I want to live with you," she said. "What does all this mean?" demanded Sperry. Lee assured him that he was a very good man and to show him how kind and loving he was he picked up one of the children and began to caress it most tenderly. But Sperry's heart was not softened by the play and told the man he would either have to leave the place and let his family live in peace or go to jail.

It is believed he is now on his way to Colorado.
