THE NURSES' HOME

ON the same block and some little distance removed from the Nurses' Home, the Latter-day Saints hospital stands the home which has been erected for the accommodation of its nurses.

It is a splendid structure of a modified colonial style, consisting of a basement, two full stories, and a commodious attic, making it in reality a four-story building, and is constructed of red sandstone and highest grade buff brick. It was designed by Mr. Don Carlos Young; it contains over 50 rooms and is intended to accommodate from 40 to 50 nurses. It is finished inside in natural pine and all the floors are covered with the hard pine.

It is heated from the boiler room of the hospital by the Warren-Webster system, while the Johnson system of heat regulation automatically maintains an even temperature of 70 degrees Fahrenheit. It was erected at a cost of $20,000, while the furnishings, which are first class in every particular, cost several thousand dollars additional. It was built by Ashton Bros. The plumbing was done by Zeeb & Reeve.

As its name implies, this building is, in every sense of the word, a home for the nurses, and a very comfortable one might almost say luxurious home it is. In the basement a large room is provided for the nurses' trunks. By keeping the trunks out of the sleeping apartments the suggestion of the hotel is avoided and the home effect preserved. In the basement also are the store rooms where are kept extra beds, mattresses, and other supplies. The florist has a room here too, where potted plants are kept over winter, and the engineer's supplies are kept in still another room.

The principal room in the basement, however, is the lecture room. Here the nurses assemble three, four and sometimes five evenings every week to listen to lectures either from some doctor on the medical staff or from the head nurse or one of the other of the trained nurses. The room is well lighted and fitted up with blackboards and student chairs.

A broad stairway of brown stone leads up to the main entrance on the second floor. You enter at once into a wide reception hall, immediately to the left is a very large parlor, where the nurses may sit and read or receive company. It is elegantly furnished in leather, the donation of Mr.
