Layton Murderer this Morning
Condemned to Death by Judge
Relapp at Farmington.

TO BE SHOT ON DECEMBER 11.

Attorney Webber Objected to Sentence
Being Imposed on the Ground that Client Was Insane.

CONDENMED MAN WAS SILENT.

When Asked for Reasons Why Sentence
Should Not be Passed by Supreme Court
Said Had None.

Nick Haworth was this morning sentenced by Justice Bolapp to Farmington to be shot. The court fixed the date for Friday, Dec. 11, to begin the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., and the place of execution within the walls of the state prison.

When asked if he had any reason to believe why sentence should not be passed Attorney Webber arose and said that no raised objections on the ground that the defendant was insane. In view of this contention it is referred to the affidavits that were filed on the occasion of the petition for a new trial. These affidavits in support of a man who was sworn to by J. W. Webber and J. M. Hamilton, attorneys for the condemned man. D. E. Haworth, his brother, Guards Martin and Phillips, Yeats, William Brady, etc., others.

Haworth took his sentence in a matter-of-course and returned to Salt Lake and died in the state prison quietly and without giving any trouble.

confession. His attempted suicide at the time of his arrest was also urged to prove insanity.

PAROWAN SCANDAL.

Narrow Escape of a Hotel Keeper
Matrimonially Inclined.

Social circles of Parowan are stirred from center to circumference over a matrimonial incident that was scheduled to occur, but which, however, did not transpire. Parties who bring the tidings to Salt Lake are responsible for the statement that last week a prosperous hotel keeper in that city undertook to take unto himself a wife. The Parowan ladies apparently did not fill the matrimonial bill, nothing but a traveled bride would do. Consequently, the lot fell on a damsel from Ohio still more recently of Salt Lake. The failed call was made to the hotel keeper's son and the guests bidding to array themselves in fine linen and metropolitan attire and ate to the marriage feast. When the wedding day dawned, however, the groom had changed his mind. Some good friends told him overnight that his bride was not exactly a counterpart of his own wife in fact, she was some gorgon ravenously set upon him. The speculator then opened the eyes of the boutinette to an exceeding wideness. The blushing bride, confronted with the evidence, wept and refused to be comforted. She protested her innocence and made all kinds of statements. The groom, however, was as admiring as his posturing. He sought advice of his better from Salt Lake in answer to some rash information received of urgency. When the letter arrived on Monday there was a scene. The lady was told to pack up her jewels and stained reputation and go. She protested and said things not usually associated with a bride when she avers that she goes off with the idea that she would have the law on her side.

With this threat she disappeared and the man is now awaiting the advent of the papers in the threatened breach of promise suit.

In the meantime there are a floral arch, a wedding ring, a marriage license, some gorgon ravenously set upon him and a damsel and disgruntled social leader in Parowan, no bride. The would-be groom is now reported to be taking a course in Pickwick Papers with special reference to old man Webber's advice to his mother who swore to be the "widder."

BELOVED BY ALL.

Sentiment at the Funeral of Mrs. Anderson Yesterday Afternoon.

That Mrs. Mary Anderson, late wife of County Commissioner James H. Anderson, was beloved by hundreds for many excellent traits of character, was strongly shown at the funeral held yesterday afternoon in the Sixth ward meetinghouse, which was crowded far beyond its capacity.

The services were presided over by Bishop James C. Watson and appropriate music was furnished by the ward choir, which sang as an opening selection, "When First the Glorious Light of Truth." Prayer was offered by Elder William Eddington, after which the choir rendered the hymn, "God Moves in a Mysterious Way." The speakers were Rev. Wm. T. Taylor, Mrs. Charles W. Penrose and Joseph E. Taylor, President Angus M. Cannon and Elder John Nicholson, all of whom paid high tribute to the deceased, and spoke of her as a loving wife, a devoted mother and a faithful Latter-day Saint. That her reward was sure there was no longer doubt. Between the speakers, Mrs. Mary Anderson, the organist, sang, "O My Father," Mrs. Louise P. Giannini singing the solo.

The benediction was pronounced by Elder Joseph W. McMurran.

When he appeared closely guarded in the courtroom this morning he greeted those of the officers and officials whom he knew in a cheerful manner and spent the time in chatting with those who would talk to him. He seemed to be bright and did not exhibit any effects of the exposure and rough time he experienced following his forcible removal from the courtroom.

He was then seated in the courtroom frequently with a keen gaze which took in all details.

At 9 o'clock Judge Relapp took his seat on the bench and immediately following the reading of the case in aid Haworth's defense represented by counsel and attorney-at-law, Mr. Atchison Webber, to appear at his bar and could not assign any reason for his absence. Five minutes later Mr. Webber made his appearance a few moments earlier than the court adjourned.

The court asked him if there were any reasons why sentence should not be passed. Collected that his client was not in court and had his objection on the statement that had been filed in support of a new trial.

Turning to Haworth the court asked him if he had anything to say before sentence was passed.

Haworth stood up and simply said,

"No, sir."

The sentence of death was then pronounced and the condemned man was led away by the officers and officials.

The condemned man did not flinch as the death words were being uttered. He comely bowed straight at the judge and then sat down.

OLD BOARD RE-ELECTED.

Rio Grande Western Stockholders Hold Annual Meeting Today.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Rio Grande Western was held in the office of Cashier Colton in the Dooly building this morning and was purely a routine proposition as all the necessary improvements for the system were decided upon at the meeting of the Denver & Rio Grande in Denver last week.

The stock was, as is usual in such cases, voted by proxy and, least as far as the members present, was not even after a short meeting.

After the election was over, the stockholders succeeded in visiting the home of the Denver & Rio Grande in Denver last week.

The stock was not yet out as the session of the stockholders from the several district courts of Weber county, excepting from the window. It was suspended, however, and its death penalty eventually imposed upon him.

The prisoner confessed to the killing after his arrest and in his appeal to the supreme court for a new trial, his attorney attempted to prove he was insane at the time of the murder.

The sentence of death was then pronounced and the condemned man was led away by the officers and officials.

The condemned man did not flinch as the death words were being uttered. He comely bowed straight at the judge and then sat down.
