(Observations taken at 4:30 this morning.)

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

Sunny and Warm.—The snow has nearly disappeared, again all nature smiles, and the voice of the weather prophet is heard once more in the land proclaiming the arrival of spring.

Gone to Ogden.—President John Taylor and a party of friends have gone to Ogden to attend the Quarterly Conference of the Weber Stake relief societies, and hold other meetings in that city. They will return to-day or to-morrow.

Magic and Mystery.—Among the theatrical possibilities of the near future, is a visit of Anton Zamboni, an Austrian conjurer, now exhibiting in San Francisco. The gentleman has written, asking for terms of the local management, and to know what dates are open to application.

Ladies' Store.—A new establishment is being opened just north of City's Commission Store, in the Old Constitution Building. The south side of the compartment used by the United Order of Tailors has been partitioned off, and is being fitted up for a ladies' store, under the proprietorship of Dr. W. H. Sharp.

Another Virago.—This morning, another persecuted husband appeared before the police magistrate to enter a complaint against his wife, whom he represented as one of those heady, high-minded creatures, who, in lieu of honor, love and obedience, manifest toward their natural protectors precisely the reverse. He said that every day or two she abused him shamefully, and made all manner of threats against him. He did not claim that she was addicted to drunkenness, but was simply a strong-minded woman, and a character described. The name of the family is Fremont, their residence the 10th Ward. The police were sent after the woman, and the trial of the case will follow in due time.

Vandalism.—The young hoodlums of the 23rd and 21st Wards and elsewhere, still continue their diabolical practices of carrying off gates, tearing up footbridges, etc. Why cannot some of these young ruffians be caught and taken to jail? A few examples might well tend to decrease this mischief and delinquency, now permitted to have full scope unmolested. Let those who know the guilty parties inform on them, and do a favor to society at large, by having them arrested and punished as they richly deserve.

Yet Another Marriage.—In addition to the several marriages recorded in our columns within the past few days, there is yet another which deserves a passing notice. The happy couple in this instance are Miss Ellen Watson, eldest daughter of Mr. James Watson, senior partner of the firm of Watson Brothers, butchers, and Joseph A. Silver, son of Wm. J. Silver, machinist, all of this city. The marriage took place in the Endowment House, yesterday, the ceremony being performed by Elder D. H. Wells. Sister Ellen is a good, sensible, Mormon girl, highly respected by a large circle of friends; while brother Joseph is well known as a talented, deserving young man, greatly esteemed by all who know him. A reception took place last evening at the residence of the bride's father in the 10th Ward, at which a large number of friends got in an appearance. Music, cheer and fun was the order of the evening. Many hearty congratulations were offered the newly married couple, and the presents value to the bride were numerous and valuable alike. We also extend our best wishes for their present and eternal welfare.

"Junction" Jots.—From last night's issue.
Mr. J. C. Rich, of Bear Lake, member of the Idaho state bar, and attorney-at-law, is with us once again.
The music store of Mr. D. O. Chadwick has been removed from the Carnegie block, on Main Street.

The quarterly conference of the Relief Societies of Weber Stake of Zion, commenced at 10 a. m. to-day. There were present a goodly number from the various societies in the county, and on the stand were Sisters E. B. Snow, Z. D. Young, Visiteress also, Sisters J. S. Richards, H. Brown, and S. Harter, the president of the various local branches, and others. With them were Elder P. B. Richards, President D. H. Wells, and Counselors, together with several bishops from the various wards of this Stake.

Last evening, one of the footpads or light-fingered gentry undertook to effect an entrance into McNamara & Co's sample room, using a chisel and trying to pry up one of the boards. He tried until his chisel broke, and still the obstinate scoundrel would not move. Finally, Counselor Lobbis who sleeps in an adjoining apartment, "dropped on the mallet," and came into the sample room with a "bull-dog" in his hand, prepared to give his unseasonable visitor an exceedingly warm reception; but the noise of his approach alarmed the burglar, and he fled in dismay, leaving his chisel (which he had broken in his efforts to raise the board) behind him, the point of it being still under the sash.

The Canal Question in Bishop's Meetings.—The most interesting subject discussed at the Bishop's meeting, last evening, was the Salt Lake City and Jordan Canal, now in course of construction, its consideration by the various speakers occupying nearly all of the hour and a half the meeting was in session. The first speaker was Mayor Little. He reminded the present and desired them to remain until the 5th of April, when the election to be held on Monday, the 5th of April, when it would be decided, by the people, whether or not Salt Lake City should assume an indebtedness of $250,000, or as much thereof as the City Council might deem sufficient, for the work of finishing the canal. At the election the vote would be "yes" or "no" on the question, "shall the city assume the debt," and all should know before going to the polls what they were going there for. It was therefore needful that the Bishops instruct their people and make the matter perfectly clear to their minds, so that when they went up to vote they would know just what they were doing. There might be many who did not see the necessity of the City's going into debt for water. These were, for most part, persons who possessed water claims already, and did not wish to be taxed for the purpose of furnishing water to their less fortunate neighbors. Sectional feelings should be smothered and the whole people unite in voice and action, for the common good. The growth of the entire city depended on water, and water it must have, though getting it should increase taxation. The speaker, for one, felt willing to do his part toward paying for the building of the canal.

A question was here asked as to whether the people, in voting, were compelled to vote for the borrowing of $250,000, or whether they could vote for a portion of that amount, as they desired. Mayor Little answered that the vote was to empower the City to borrow as much of $250,000 as was needed, either the whole or only a part, and that the City Council, whom the people had elected to represent them, were to have the control of the matter, and it would rest with their judgment. If the people did not have confidence in the judgment of their representatives, they should not have elected them to office.

Bishop Pyper followed in an expression of his views. It did not follow that because $250,000 was voted for, that that much would be required, but if it were required it would of course be used. The expense of holding elections made it advisable to hold as few as possible and the amount had been set at a maximum, to obviate the necessity of frequent elections. He also advocated perfect freedom among the people, to vote as they pleased, as it was a matter which concerned them personally. They should be told beforehand what they were going to vote for, so that each might vote according to intention, and then allowed to go unfluenced, and cast their ballots as they thought best.

Counselor Jos. E. Taylor suggested that, to avoid confusion at the ballot box, there should be but one ticket, that each ticket should be an affirmative one, and that the voter who desired to vote "no" should negative the ticket himself.

Bishop E. D. Wooley thought the dimensions of the canal were beyond all necessity, that the proposed depth would be amply sufficient to hold all the water to be obtained. He was in favor of bringing water to the city, but not in expending twice as much as was necessary to dig the canal.

Bishop John H. Smith did not think the canal an inch too deep. The proposed size was necessary to give the stream regulate force. The ditch proposed by Bishop Wooley would take the water about 27 miles on the way and that was all, while the canal decided upon would send it along all the way. The plan and dimensions had been thoroughly discussed by men of study and experience, and considered on all sides before they were adopted. The city needed water, no citizen had too much, many not enough, and many none at all. The canal was an absolute necessity. If the Jordan was inadequate to supply the water, Utah Lake must be tapped. It was the natural reservoir of Salt Lake Valley, and its waters carefully husbanded, would supply an abundance. It might be that hundreds of acres of land would be laid waste along its shores, and that to erect dykes and locks at the head of the Jordan would entail considerable expense, but when the benefit to be realized was considered, the expense was not a drop in the bucket.

The query was suggested: Supposing the people should vote "no," what would become of the canal, and whether it would not be better to place the sum to be borrowed as a mere modest figure than $250,000, to induce the people to vote affirmatively. Bishop Hardy replied that he understood that $250,000 was the amount to be voted for, and that if it took but $100,000 to complete this canal, the rest of the money could be used elsewhere, for similar purposes. He was willing to leave it to the City Council, who were personally interested as much as the rest of the people, and were not going to waste money on the matter purposely. Besides, he had voted for those men who composed the Council, and would trust them accordingly.

Other remarks were made to the same effect as those given, after which Apostle Brigham Young, who was present, was invited to speak. He responded in a brief but spirited address on the same subject. He was in favor of the canal, but was not certain that justice was being done, in its construction, to the builders of other canals, who for 15 years had been striving to complete theirs, but could not do so for lack of means, while, we, bigger, stronger, and having more money, were about to send our canal right through, and take the water they had been trying to get possession of for years. He also referred to the remarks of Bishop Smith concerning the fact that would be laid waste on the shores of Utah Lake, and thought thousands and thousands of acres would better express it than "hundreds of acres." It was not our policy to desolate land, but to reclaim it. The dykes of Holland were mentioned as being twenty feet above the level of the country, and the speaker suggested the erection of similar bulwarks on the shores of Utah Lake, to not only save, but reclaim them, so that the water would otherwise be desolate or unreclaimed from the waters of the lake. As to the remark made by a previous speaker of "freedom to vote," he understood our freedom to consist of liberty to do right, to unite as solidly on this, as on any other question, and after first assuring ourselves that we were right, go to the polls like a band of brethren, and vote the right way. If we did this God would approve our course; if not, he would certainly disapprove.

Meeting adjourned for two weeks.

Lewis Will Lecture.—Professor T. B. Lewis lectures in the 11th Ward meeting house, this evening on the subject of "Pests and Hobbies," under "the auspices of the Mutual Improvement Association. Lecture to commence at 7:30. Public invited.

Side-walk Park.—The City Council did not favorably entertain the idea of laying out a park for the use of bicycles, but, if many more show windows are broken and children run over by the two-wheeled dragons on the side-walks, it is barely possible that that honorable body may reconsider its action in the matter.

Third Term Closed.—The third term of the academic year of the Deseret University closed this afternoon. The last term of the year began on Monday morning. The University is in a very prosperous condition. The number of students enrolled is 156 in advance of any previous term's attendance. This, it must be understood, means merely the attendance in one department—the highest grade of students—in respect of the intermediate and primary grades. All desiring to attend should be on hand at 9 a. m., Monday.

IT IS TRULY WONDERFUL
TO SEE what improvements now exist as compared with railway travel only a few years ago. To become convinced of this, one has only to select for his route East, the popular and well-known CHICAGO & NORTHWESTERN RAILWAY.

You are landed by the Union Pacific R. R. in the Union Depot at Council Bluffs, where stands the C. & N. W. Palace train, composed of Pullman Hotel Cars, Pullman Sleeping Cars, elegant Day Coaches, Smoking Baggage, Postal Cars, etc., ready to convey its passengers through Iowa and Illinois, and into Chicago. Gliding smoothly along over the superb track of steel rail through thriving cities and villages, comfortably seated in this train, one scarcely discerns the limit of speed which he is riding. Trains of this road are always on time, connections sure, and passengers seeking pleasure, comfort, safety and speed in traveling will find the "North-Western" in excess of their expectations, and the greatest of all routes to Chicago and the East.
