

TABERNACLE.

On Sunday morning, October 23, Elder Samuel W. Richards addressed the congregation on the custom and necessity of meeting together to worship the Lord; spoke of the arbitrary specifications and requirements of the gospel of Jesus Christ; reasoned on the text, "Be ye perfect even as your Father in heaven is perfect;" also to the text that the Saints must be made perfect through suffering; set forth the way and manner of becoming perfect before the Lord our God in this dispensation; made remarks on the goodness and purity of the servants of God, and the wickedness of the world in traducing their characters; referred to the governments, nations and the wants and necessities of the people; advocated and recommended morality and purity of life, and a thorough and full acquaintance with the principles of the gospel.

President Daniel Spencer spoke of the necessity of subduing our appetites and preparing to enter into the presence of our God; said that although there is a vast amount of science and knowledge in the world, it is yet very meager and imperfect when compared with the knowledge of God, and the perfections of His attributes; alluded to the trials of the Saints which, he said, they should not consider grievous because they are calculated to bring about great good, and hence they should meet them with joy and gladness. Prayed God to help His people to keep His commandments in the name of Jesus Christ.

President Heber C. Kimball made some timely remarks on the benefits arising from experience in the Church of God; reasoned to show that men act out themselves, and that the common expression "if I were such a man I would do so and so" is preposterous, from the fact that each man does according to that which is in him; spoke of the necessity of being one with the Lord's anointed; he would not sustain the wicked, but if they were hungry he would feed them, and if naked he would clothe them; treated on the sacredness of the covenants of the Saints; also on the nature of sin, the manner of atoning for it, of restitution and the justice of the Almighty overtaking the wicked.

In the afternoon, the sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered by the presiding Bishop, and Bishops Henry Moon, Abraham Hoagland, and Lorenzo D. Young.

The congregation was addressed by Elders Charles C. Rich and Orson Hyde.

CLIPPINGS.

—At the Portsmouth (N. H.) Navy Yard, not long since, the commandant issued orders that all the cattle employed in the yard should be fed on cut feed, which were accordingly carried into effect. But one old ox who had been educated on long hay, could not accommodate himself to the new diet, and it was reported to the proper authority that the animal wouldn't eat cut feed. "Not eat it!" exclaimed the head teamster, filled with holy horror. "By thunder! he must eat it. It's the commodore's orders!"

—The New York Courier says—a returned Californian reached home a week or two ago, with between $15,000 and $16,000 in gold coin. Feeling it unsafe to keep so much money about him, and suspicious of the honesty of banking institutions, he determined to bury it, which he accordingly did, without informing any one of the locality. A few days afterwards, he went out riding, when he was thrown from his horse and instantly killed.—Of course, no one knows where the money is, although it has been searched for very carefully.

—A Methodist minister, at the West, who lived on a small salary, was greatly troubled to get his quarterly instalment. He at last told the non-paying trustees that he must have his money, as his family were suffering for the necessities of life. "Money!" replied the steward, "you preach for money? I thought you preached for the good of souls." "Souls?" replied the minister, "I can't eat souls; and if I could, it would take a thousand such as yours to make a meal."

—The new divorce laws have brought to light quite a number of unhappy cases in England. Formerly it was extremely difficult, and even impossible, without great expense, to sunder the bonds of matrimony, and of course the applicants were few, but now there is quite a rush for the desired freedom, and the torrent of applicants not only continues but increases, so that seven judges are found inadequate to the discharge of business.

—A writer of doggerel in a New York paper thinks the police had better be sent out of that city as they are sadly in need of re-creation.

—It is estimated that there are on all the railways in the United States six thousand eight hundred and ninety locomotives, five thousand nine hundred and ten passenger cars, and one hundred and fourteen thousand five hundred and twenty freight and other cars.

—The Quebec Chronicle retracts its assertion that the Prince of Wales is coming to this country. A New York journal, however, says that in the person of the Leviathan or Great Eastern, the Prince of Wales will visit our shores.

—Aaron Bigelow was burnt to death at Colchester, Conn., while cutting brush. He was in the lot alone, and the fire probably got into the scrub oak near by where he was burned, and he went in there to stop it, and the fire and smoke smothered him. He was soon afterwards found burned to a crisp. He was 50 years of age, and a man of temperate habits.

—One of the best photographers in Europe took a bank note for 5,000 francs on the bank of France, and photographed one so much like it that the bank's judges, the photographer himself, and in fact all who have seen the two, are unable to distinguish which from tother. The bank considers such success rather dangerous.

—A Southern paper thinks it would be hard to find, anywhere, "more lawyers, doctors, colonels, captains, major and 'squires, more legislation and laws less understood, more migratory population, more half-cooked biscuit, harder corn dodgers, less care for expenses, more regard for females, more go-aheaditiveness, more Bibles and more novels, more religion and more devils, more cleverness and liberality, more real independence, wilder oxen, more politeness and gawkiness, more dangerous steamboats, unsafe banks, more pitching horses and awkward dancers, than in our beloved and honored United States.

—A Maine letter-writer says that Bangor has no 'Mayfair.' Its wealthy citizens are still men of business and thrift. I have never seen a private carriage of more pretensions than a one-horse rockaway, and liveries are unknown. Wine cellars are apocryphal, and stunning parties are seldom in season. Still there is, through the year, a prevalence of healthy and becoming amusement. Near the town is a fine trotting park where occasionally some rare time is made and young Bangor 'talks horse' with gusto and intelligence.

—A popular writer says it is not the drinking, but the getting sober, that is so terrible in a drunkard's life. To this Prentice adds—some persons, influenced by this important consideration, seem to have deliberately resolved never to get sober.

—A man boasting in a company of ladies that he had a very luxuriant head of hair, a lady present remarked that it was altogether owing to the mellowness of the soil.

—It is estimated that nine thousand pianos are made every year in the United States, giving constant employment to one thousand nine hundred persons, and costing over two millions of dollars.

—The United States Marshal at Washington says that a cargo of six hundred Africans has been landed on the coast of Florida, near Tyrna, and that after landing the cargo, the vessel was set on fire and abandoned.

—The Sons of Malta of New York have expelled Mr. Sickles from the order, for returning to his wife.

—"How is it," said a gentleman, to Sheridan, "that your name has not an O attached to it? Your family is Irish and, no doubt, illustrious." "No family has a better right to O than our family," said Sheridan, "for we owe everybody."
