> > The Ricks Trial Concluded .- On the re-assembling of the Third District Court yesterday afternoon after recess, Judge Bates resumed his argument on the part of the defense, making many clear and telling points in favor of his client, He was followed by Mr. R. N. Bas kin, on the part of the prosecution, who occupied over two hours, show-ing considerable ingenuity in his attempts to explain away the stronger points in the evidence for

The Court then instructed th jury on the various points of law involved in the case, and the charge as will be seen by the document it-self, a portion of which appears in another part of the News, is re-markable for its freedom from ob-tuseness and useless technicality, being simply an explicit exposition legal propositions and princi-

Jurors Dismissed.—The petit jurors of the Third District Court were dismissed this afternoon until as evinced by the evidence, could be merely a case, as it has progressed, from day to day, has appeared in the News, and therefore to give a history of the same now would be merely a capitulation of what the public have already been made acquainted with, but we have no hesitancy in saying that no one, basing his individual conclusions on the facts be held over the body, by Coroner as evinced by the evidence, could be the control of the same now would be merely a capitulation of what the public have already been made acquainted of whom are grown up.

The jury was composed of mea capable of analyzing and weighing the evidence and drawing correct conclusions therefrom for them selves, and, as conscientious gentlemen, though of divided opinions on other subjects, have freed a fel-lew citizen of a foul blot that was sought to be brought upon his good name, for their action has not only set him at liberty from the custody of the officers of the law, but has decided that his good name stands clear and unimpeached before the world in connection with the crime with which he was charged, but had never committed. The evidence called out in relation to the general character of Col. Thomas E. Ricks was probably as strong in his favor as that eve preduced for any individual in court of justice. His acquittal was hailed with gladness by his numerous friends, by many of whom he was personally congratulated. They anticipated such a result, but that rather hightened their pleasure than otherwise. The confidence of Col. Ricks himself that he would be acquitted never flagged for a moment, being as strong as was his consciousness of his own innocence, and as a consequence he was perfectly composed in mind, not only during the trial, but during the time of his lengthy incarceration pending his

Dropped Dead .- About half past eleven o'clock to-day Sister Openshaw, wife of Brother George Openshaw, who resides at the mouth of City Creek Canyon, some distance north of the Eagle Gate, was in President B. Young's store, at the rear of the Bee-Hive House, and appeared to be in her usual health and spirits. Brother William Rossiter dropped in about the same time and bade her good morning. She turned around to reply to his salutation, but before she had finished the sentence, she fell backwards against the counter, only being saved from falling on the floor by Brother John Haslem, who has charge of the store, and who darted forward and caught her. Dr. S. B. Young was immediately sent for and he arrived in a few minutes, but Sister Openshaw exhibited not the slightest signs of life after she was first taken. The Doctor opened an artery in her arm, but it was bloodless. The cause of the lady's sudden and unexpected demise is supposed to be "fatty degeneration A report of the proceedings of the of the heart." Deceased was probably approaching sixty years of
