

QUARANTINED MAN HARDLY STARVING

Lurid Story Told by C. F. Druce

COUNTY SENDS PROVISIONS.

Man Allowed to Run a Bill at Corner
Grocery and Also Owns Considerable Property.

Although C. F. Druce of 655 north Sixth West street received $6 worth of groceries from James Sabine, Jr., the county pauper clerk, last Monday, he declares that he is being starved with his family while under quarantine suffering from smallpox. When it was reported to Mr. Sabine last Saturday by the city board of health that Druce and his entire family were quarantined and in need of groceries, the pauper clerk visited his home and talked with him. Druce told Sabine that he could get credit at the grocery store while he was in quarantine. Before Sabine left his place, he told Druce to telephone the county commissioners if he were in need. Word came on Monday that the family was without provisions and that Sabine ordered the groceries and sent them to the house.

In an article printed in a morning paper Druce says that he only received $3 worth of groceries and that the city and county officers had quarantined and left him there to starve. This statement was made after he was denied permission to break quarantine and go to work because he had not fully recovered from smallpox. It is stated by persons who know Druce that he has considerable property in Salt Lake and a number of relatives who are able to provide for him while he is under quarantine.

POSTMASTERS TALK SHOP

Children and Adults Need Instruction
In Addressing Letters.

The postmasters' convention opened this morning at 10 o'clock in the U. S. circuit court room in the federal building. There was an attendance of about 50 postmasters. The Hawaiian troubadours were present to entertain the occasion with music. The session was opened by a short complimentary address by Inspector Durand of the Denver division, after which Postmaster A. L. Thomas gave an excellent talk on the needs of the postoffice in Utah. C. M. Waters, who was expected to be present to represent the department, was not able to be present, as he is sick in Denver. James C. Postmaster at Provo, delivered an address on the delinquencies and omissions of the patrons of the postoffice. His talk was on the errors in the use of the return card, etc. Postmaster Peter Martin of Park City, led the discussion on it and referred to the matter of educating the children in the schools in this direction as well as the adults as far as possible. On the motion of Postmaster C. M. Waters, a committee of three, consisting of C. M. Waters, Thomas of Salt Lake and Miller of Huntington, was appointed to draft resolutions on the needs of the department, which are to be presented in the convention at this afternoon and if approved by them, they are to go to the department at Washington.

The program this afternoon consists of a paper on "Money Order Work," by Postmaster Griffith of Smithfield, the selection of officers for the ensuing year, naming a place for the next convention and miscellaneous business. The session met at 1:15 in order to allow the members to accept the invitation of Postmaster Thomas for a car ride around the city at 3:25, on one of the "Seeing Salt Lake" cars.

AMUSEMENTS

Theater—A large and brilliant audience was charmed last night at the Salt Lake theater by Ethel Barrymore in W. Somerset Maugham's new comedy, "Lady Frederick." The denouement of the play, however, is most difficult to anticipate, the real design not making itself apparent until the third and last act. In this respect differs greatly from "Jack Straw" by the same author; for in the latter a clear, clever plot always assists the histrionic representation. For Miss Barrymore, personally, however, "Lady Frederick" gives opportunity and a convincing role. The scene of the play is laid at Monte Carlo, where Lady Frederick, an extravagant, heavily involved, but altogether lovable Irish widow, is surrounded by numerous suitors, the most important of whom is young Lord Mereston. The boy's mother, Lady Mereston, objects to the match and attempts to taint the good name of Lady Frederick, much to the chagrin of Pauline Fouldes, the boy's uncle, who himself loves the real woman behind the Lady Frederick of the world. By permitting Lord Mereston to visit her at 10 a. m. and to remain in the room while she makes up her complexion, Lady Frederick gently disillusions the boy; and the very same day accepts with complete happiness his uncle.

As "Lady Frederick" Miss Barrymore was most charming, receiving three or four curtain calls at the end of each act. Her delineation, however, was not altogether faultless, for when examined closely through the glasses the expression of her face, at times, lacked sincerity, lacked a complete harmony with the tenor of her words. Miss Barrymore—she we say now Mrs. Russell G. Colt—is decidedly more convincing as "Lady Frederick" than her uncle, John Drew, was last week as "Jack Straw," for in no particular did an associate excel her. At times Miss Barrymore talks too rapidly, but, again, she gives exquisite bits of wit with a delectability as indescribable as it is spontaneous and captivating. All in all, Miss Barrymore is a most charming actress.

As Pauline Fouldes, Mr. Bruce McRae was the strongest associate of the company; his voice is good, his personality suitable and his delineation superb. As Lady Mereston, Jessie Millward was only fairly pleasing, and Charles Hammond was in person not very engaging as Sir Gerald O'Mara. Norman Thorp as Lord Mereston was good, though at times one felt he was thinking too much of "Barrymore" to give himself that freedom he should have enjoyed with "Lady Frederick." As Admiral Carlisle, Arthur Elliott was excellent, as also was Anita Rothe as Lady Frederick's dressmaker. Altogether "Lady Frederick" is one of the most pleasing plays of the season; and all who like the new and the diverting in society dramaturgy should not fail to see it.

Orpheum—Tonight is regular society night at the Orpheum. There will be only three more performances of "Lady Frederick" this season, when the house will close its vaudeville season for the summer. There is a splendid bill on, one of the best of the season, one that fully closes a remarkably successful year.

B. Y. U. Opera Company—The B. Y. U. Opera company has been able to secure the Orpheum for next Wednesday for an afternoon and evening performance of Millock's famous comic opera, "The Beggar Student." This is one of the most classic operas ever written. It will be presented in superb style with 15 principals, a chorus of 80 and an orchestra of 25 musicians. Miss Fay Loose, the daughter of Col. C. E. Loose, portrays the part of Countess Laura. The opera will be given under the direction of Prof. A. C. Lund.

Colonial—"The Christian," with Ralph Stuart as John Storm and Mary Hall in the role of Glory Quavie, will succeed "The Rainbow's End," which is a big drawing card at the Colonial this week.

Shuberts Get the Grand—Contracts were signed yesterday in New York between J. J. Shubert and A. R. Pelton and F. C. Smutzer, representing the international theatrical circuit, embracing 100 theaters including the Grand in this city. The first independent attraction will be presented at the Grand Monday night, when Mrs. Fiske appears in "Salvation Nell."

RELATES DOMESTIC WOE.

A letter reached Postmaster A. L. Thomas today from Alexander W. Va. who tells the story of an elopement, in which 10 children are involved. According to the story a certain Mr. Sayers ran away with Mrs. Laura Douglas, the wife of Grant Douglas, the writer of the letter. It is thought that they came to Salt Lake City. The injured husband sends along the picture of the man who has injured him as a means of identification. He describes the woman as having dark eyes and hair, fine featured, about five feet six inches high and 28 years of age. She left four children and the man she ran away with left six.

BELLE LONDON UNDER ARREST

Notorious "Queen of the Underworld" is Trying to Arrange for Bail.

PROSECUTION BY NEW LAW.

Citizens' Investment Company is Also Served on Charge Under Which
Fine May Reach $10,000.

Belle London, known otherwise as Dora B. Topham, styled the "Queen of the Underworld," was placed under arrest this afternoon in the office of Harry J. Robinson, attorney. The warrant was issued on a complaint issued by County Atty. Job P. Lyon, which charges her with permitting Marcelle Lucas to consort with an Austrian in one of the cribs in the stockade. The arrest of the Lucas girl and her companion was made by deputy sheriffs after individuals working in the interests of the Edgermont league had obtained information upon which to enter court. The authority for the action is in the law passed by the last legislature.

Belle London was also served with an order to show cause why she should not be punished for contempt of court for disregarding the injunction issued from the third district court and directed to the Citizens' investment company, of which she is president and general manager.

A warrant directed to the investment company was also served. This procedure is also based on the new law, providing that upon conviction of permitting premises to be used for such purposes as the stockade has been shown to be used for, a corporation, agent or owner of such premises may be fined from $100 to $10,000.

The county attorney's office declares that it has an abundance of evidence upon which to proceed. The Betterment league's officers and members have been working with the sheriff's forces and the two agencies claim that now they have collected such a mass of evidence that the days of the stockade are indeed limited.

ASKS FOR AN ACCOUNTING.

Fred Mengedelt filed suit against the Wasatch Utah Mining company and the Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining company in the Third district court this morning to compel the company to render an accounting for all the ore extracted from the mines since Oct. 31, 1907. Mengedelt declares that he is a stockholder in both companies and that the report of the companies is not satisfactory.

SUES FOR INJURIES RECEIVED.

Thomas Katarinitos filed suit this morning in the Third district court to recover $5,000 from the Boston Consolidated Mining company for personal injuries. It is alleged in the complaint that while Katarinitos was working in the company's mine on Jan. 7, 1909, that the ceiling of a drift caved in upon him and injured him.

REFUSES TO VACATE GROUND.

The Tintic Mining & Development company brought suit yesterday in the Third district court against Mrs. Annie Theis to recover possession of a certain portion of the surface of the Mercer Lode Mining claim in the West Mountain mining district. The property was leased to Mrs. Theis, it is alleged, with the understanding that the lease should terminate on a 30 days notice. She was served with a notice on April 14, but still refuses to give up the property.

APPLIES FOR NEW GUARDIAN.

Miss Eliza Wells filed a petition yesterday in the probate division of the Third district court asking that the Utah Savings & Trust company be appointed as guardian of Col. S. A. Merritt in the place of the late Judge W. C. Hall. The hearing on the petition has been set for June 4 in Judge Lewis' division of the Third district court. Miss Wells states that she has taken care of Col. Merritt since he was adjudged incompetent to manage his business affairs and that Judge Hall had acted as his guardian. She sets out in her petition that the estate needs immediate attention, as there are no close relatives of Col. Merritt in Utah. His estate is valued at $50,462.67.
