

THE SEMI-WEEKLY NEWS

The Great Country Paper of the West.

Issued Mondays and Thursdays and Contains All the Cream of the Daily and Saturday News.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Club Meeting Tonight—The Authors' club will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the parlor of the Knickerbocker hotel and will select permanent quarters for its meetings.

Bugs New Home—Frank C. Price of Provo has bought from the Anderson Investment company of this city the premises at 119 F street for $6,500, and will reside there.

Harwood's Paintings—The club women of the city will be tendered a reception by J. T. Harwood, the artist, at his studio on West Saturday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock. The ladies will be given an opportunity to view Mr. Harwood's collection of paintings.

Officers Instructed—On Saturday afternoon the truant and probation officers, recently appointed by the judges of the district court to serve in the various school districts of the county outside of the city limits, met in the criminal court room and were given their instructions by Judge Armstrong.

Horse Show at Provo—Mayor Frisbie, Dr. D. H. Calder and Ephraim Homer of Provo were in the city Saturday trying to secure a horse show for the county from this city to the Utah county horse fair to be given in Provo this year. They say that the fair this year will show far more blooded stock than ever before.

New Timber Company—A copy of the articles of incorporation of the "Chalk Creek Timber Company," a limited liability company, has been filed in the secretary of state's office. The capital stock of the company is $3,000, divided into shares of the par value of $100 each. W. D. Harwood is president of the company; W. L. Hansen, vice president; Edward Powell, Jr., secretary and treasurer.

Six Horses Captured—Six horses were captured in City Creek canyon last week by Land and Water Commissioner Mathews and were taken to the city pound. The owner of the animals appeared shortly afterwards and paid $5 for their release. He was informed as to the law against allowing animals to graze in the canyon and promised that in the future he would keep his horses out of the canyon.

To Use Big Pump—An 18-inch pump capable of throwing 15,000 gallons of water a minute is in transit to this city, to be used at the Salt Lake lagoon now being rapidly constructed. This pump will be set out in the lake where the water is three feet deep and perfectly clear, and fresh supplies of lake water pumped into the lagoon continually. This will prevent any deposits of salt through evaporation.

"Daughter of Jarius"—Rehearsals are now being conducted by Miss Agatha Berkhol for the production of "The Daughter of Jarius," at St. Paul's church in the near future. The combined chorists of St. Paul's and the First Methodist churches will give the production and the soloists are to be Mrs. C. G. Plummer, Mrs. Fisher Harris, C. D. Daily, Miss O'Connor, Miss Redman, Willard Squires and Fred C. Graham.

A Utah Department—The Denver Medical Times has added a Utah department to its columns, in the absorption of the editorial staff and contributors. The Utah editorial staff and contributors include 25 physicians from Salt Lake, Ogden and Provo, and of this section Dr. W. Brown Ewing is editor and Dr. F. H. Haley is associate. The contributors in the first number are Dr. M. Hughes, Dr. Fred Stauffer, Dr. H. D. Niles, Dr. F. H. Haley, Dr. J. F. Critchlow of Salt Lake, and Dr. Lyman Eicken, Jr., of Ogden.

Accident to Street Car—As street car No. 31 was running down the Twelfth South street hill from the city prison yesterday afternoon, the trolley wire broke immediately over the car and became tangled up with the front end. Owing to the momentum of the car and the street grade, the motor man could not stop for several hundred feet, and for that distance the wire was torn from the poles and the cross arms with it, smashing the car windows as well as doing other damage. However, no one was injured, but travel up the hill was shut off for several hours until repairs could be made by the red wagon.

Dr. Guy Carlton Lee Coming—For next Wednesday evening the Mutual Improvement bureau has secured the services of Dr. Guy Carlton Lee, one of the best known and most scholarly men brought here during the season. Dr. Lee speaks on "The True Jesus Christ," and he is especially prepared to handle the subject on account of his intimate acquaintanceship with American history. During the compilation of the History of North America, published in 20 volumes, Dr. Lee was editor-in-chief. His work in ancient history and in studying the literature of ancient peoples has also brought him recognition, and he has been a frequent lecturer on "The Man of Sorrows in the Light of Modern Knowledge." In his style of speaking Dr. Lee is said to be as fascinating as in his writings.

Going to Los Angeles—The program for the ceremonial session of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, at the Utah Temple, Ogden of Salt Lake, Deseret of Utah, is just out. This fiesta will occur on the 21st inst., and the program is a lurid and spectacular affair suggestive of a college Freshman initiation and mock commencement scheme combined. The illustrations, as are fitting, are printed in vermilion inks, and the tender sentiment of the same would write tears from an old crusher or a buzz saw. A feature of the publication is the "El Kalah Hot Air R. R. Ticket," with a long list of coupons upon which are printed parodies on what generally appears on regular railroad ticket coupons. The pamphlet calls attention to the fact that the Salt Lake caravan will proceed to the City of Angels on the 22nd inst.

Save your money and when you get a dollar, deposit it with Zion's Savings Bank and Trust Co., Salt Lake City, Utah. Joseph F. Smith, President; George M. Cannon, Cashier.

THE C. S. MARTIN COAL CO. are filling orders promptly for all kinds of coal.

DISCOURSE BY RABBI FREUND.

Hebrew Clergyman Occupied Pulpit of Congregational Church Last Evening.

THEME, "WANDERING JEW."

Rev. Goshen at Y. M. C. A. on the Power of Influence—Rev. Eddy's Subject Was "Good of Failure."

P. A. Simpkins of Phillips Congregational church preached for Rabbi Freund the other evening, and last night the Rabbi returned the compliment and preached for Mr. Simpkins in the Congregational church. His subject was "The Wandering Jew." The speaker spoke feelingly of the so often bitter experiences of his race since the dispersion first in one quarter of the earth and then in another, always taking with them the roll of the law, and in the course of his remarks he said:

"After the destruction of the second temple by the Romans in the year 70, the Jewish nationality disappeared. The Jew became a member not of any state, but of a religious organization. It was then the wandering tendency became the strongest force in the Jew's make-up."

"Wherever the Jew goes he carries with him the torch of learning. In the darkest of the dark ages, the Jew was always enlightened because he had with him his Bible. No matter into what country the Jew went, no matter what the amount of illiteracy of the people with whom he was forced to dwell, the Jew was always the learned one, and with him the foundation of all literature, the Bible."

"For the greater part of their stay in Spain, the Jews were well treated. When the Mohammedans took possession of the country, the Jews were treated for all Jews. Upon the overthrow of the followers of Mahomet, and the entry into Spain of the Roman Catholics, the country was no longer a good place for the Jew."

"At almost the same time as the overthrow of the Mohammedans, America was discovered. In the new world lay the Jewish Utopia. In America, since its discovery, the Jews have been most kindly treated. Here as in no other place on the globe they have been allowed from the first all the liberties of other citizens. There are no restrictions whatever here. A Jew may become the same politically, mentally and morally, without let or hindrance, as a Gentile. He may enter all places open to Gentiles. He may even be elected to political offices or in fact, any other circle, just as high as any Gentile."

"It is wrong to suppose that the Jew as a whole are rich in material things. They are not such at all. True, there are many rich Jews, in fact some of the richest men in the world are Jews, but as a class the Jew is a poor being materially. His great wealth lies in his good qualities. His ideals are high at all times. His literary standard is of the best. His mental attainments are above reproach. His respect for women is not to be equaled. His love of home and family is worthy of emulation."

"The Jew is a good citizen. He believes in the golden rule firm. He has had for centuries the tremendous ideal of justice instilled into his very being. With this ideal and these ideals the Jew must of necessity be a good citizen."

"Stanley Hall recently said that the stories of the Old Testament should be the ones taught all children until they are at least 12 years old. Dr. Hall said that this course would result in the making of better men and women because the Old Testament stories were of more value in forming the morals of the young than all modern literature. The Old Testament stories are the only ones the Jewish children are taught while they are at their mother's knees. The Jew naturally claims America as his home. He is best treated here and therefore best satisfied here of all places in the world. While America is the ideal home, the Jewish Utopia as it were, still the Jew has learned the lesson of wandering and persecution to hope and where he may be as his country."

REV. FRANK F. EDDY.

Interesting Sermon Preached on "The Good of Failure."

Rev. F. F. Eddy preached upon "The Good of Failure," in life, God's method of discipline, and the law of existence. In the course of his remarks he said:

"This law of existence might be illustrated by innumerable examples. John A. McCall is an example of a man with great qualities who failed. He thought he was making a success of life when in reality he was squandering his really fine talents in spiritual rioting. If he did not realize how his life had been wasted before the bar of his conscience, he would have been forced to face the merciless criticism of public opinion. The shock of seeing how he was regarded by others, killed him. It is just as well. It is altogether improbable that he could have come to himself and reconstructed his life. The crisis came too late."

"There is another side of the question that does not seem so pleasing. The law of existence is surely in regard to things we hold to be altogether desirable and beneficial. We strive to create an ideal home not only in a material, but in a spiritual sense. But few of us, even we realize it temporarily, are allowed to enjoy ourselves in the abode we have so carefully constructed. Death perhaps breaks the circle, or the children leave the home nest to make their way in the world. It seems hard and disappointing, but it is not after all but nature's fiat against stagnation."

"Another phase of the subject presents itself and that is the challenge of defeat. The inward aspect of the theme is to learn wisdom from failure. The outward aspect is the attitude toward external circumstances. We may be defeated, and defeat comes to us, but it is of no great importance if we can say, 'I am defeated but not beaten.'"

Is it not that there can be no finalities in life? Religion has wronged humanity when it has taught that the greatest virtue is in humility and submission to external conditions. It is the price of wisdom, to discover that there are no finalities to be achieved by humanity."

"The plain moral of all this is to live the progressive life. To lead a growing and responsive life is our highest duty. To do this in the world as it is, means that in our hours of seeming failure and wreck we shall be spurred on to something wiser and savor; that in the time of apparent defeat we still find a challenge for effort. If our lives become failures it is more than anything else due to our submissive attitude toward defeat and failure. Life's greatest danger, then, is stagnation. And there is hope for every soul that can find a road in failure and a challenge in defeat."

REV. E. I. GOSHEN

Spoke at Y. M. C. A. Yesterday on the Power of Influence.

In his talk yesterday afternoon, in the Y. M. C. A. before men, Rev. E. I. Goshen spoke on the power of influence, and said in part:

"Samuel publicly declared against the tyrant Saul, because of his flagrant sin. Saul sent soldiers to take Samuel, but when they came under the influence of the good man they forgot their king's service and wished only to please Samuel. Again the king sent soldiers to take Samuel, but they were so influenced by his goodness that they refused to obey his commands. Then he became exceedingly angry and went forth like an angry beast of prey, saying: 'I will go and take captive him who dares to speak against me and his court.' But when the king entered into the presence of the man of God, he himself was taken captive by the purity of the man's influence, and he confessed his wickedness."

"Influence is a thousand fold more powerful than words. Influence is that subtle and powerful force that lives even after those who generated it are gone. Such was the influence of Constantine that even after he was dead the ruling princes used to meet daily in the stateroom, where the great man used to live, to meditate in the spirit that illuminated their great leader might guide and direct them."

JUDGE BROWN'S ADDRESS.

Judge Brown talked to 300 boys yesterday afternoon, where he urged upon them to be always courageous for the right, and that it was the highest aim and purpose to become a Christian. He hoped they would all become such.
