DESERET EVENING NEWS.

TRUTH AND LIBERTY.

VOL. II. SALT LAKE CITY WEDNESDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 2, 1868 No. 10

BREVITIES.

Canada is garrisoned by 12,500 British regulars.

Portable iron hospitals are an English invention.

Beecher declares the religion of Boston to be as cold as ice.

A Philadelphiaian cuts over 2,000,000 false teeth annually.

In Milwaukee they call harness makers "horse milliners."

A Portland firm has manufactured 24,000 planchets during the season.

English papers ridicule the idea of making Prince Alfred King of Spain.

A sect of philosophers is rising in Germany who disbelieve that the earth goes around the sun.

Since the overthrow of the Bourbon monarchy in Spain, 500 Jesuits have fled across the frontier to Portugal.

Barnum received a letter the other day, from a devout man, who wrote as follows: "I read my bible regular, and I like best Job and the Proverbs."

A preacher took for his text, "Feed my lambs." A farmer, after service, remarked to him: "A very good text, but you put the hay so high in the rack the lambs couldn't reach it."

Why is a candle-maker the worst and most hopeless of men? Because all his works are wicked, and all his wicked works are brought to light.

Smith lives in Cincinnati. There are six hundred and twenty-three of him doing business in that city, and those of him who are named John have dwindled down to two hundred and ten.

Mr. Muggins says there is no country in the world where wives are more worshipped than they are in France. He regrets to say, however, that the adoration comes from somebody else's husband.

An English Dogberry has sent Victoria Harmer to prison and hard labor for twenty-one days, for taking a sprig of lavender from an open garden on a public road.

"I don't know anything about your Tycoon," said an Illinoisian to a man who was discoursing on Japan; "but when you come to the raccoon, you'll find me at home!"

A negro Justice of the Peace decided a case brought before him, by ordering the plaintiff and defendant each to pay a fine of one dollar, and the constable, who had been active in getting up the case, was condemned to pay the costs.

There is not a mote that dances in the sun beam, not a particle of dust that we tread heedlessly under our feet, that does not contain within its form mines of knowledge yet unworked. For if we could read them rightly all the records of the animated past are written in the rocks and the dust of the present.

A young lady, when invited to partake of the pudding, replied, "No, many thanks, my dear madam. By no manner of means. I have already indulged the clamorous calls of a craving appetite, until a manifest sense of internal fullness admonishes my stay; my deficiency is entirely and satisfactorily satisfied."

"Peter, what are you doing to that boy?" said a schoolmaster.

"He wanted to know if you take 10 from 17, how many will remain? So I took 10 of his apples to show him, and now he wants I should give them back."

"Well, why don't you do it?"

"Cause, sir, he would then forget how many is left."

In Dayton, Ohio, recently, a little girl named Foley swallowed a glass button, which passed into the lungs and would not be dislodged. Dr. Reeves, as a last resort, cut a hole in the child's throat, holding it open with instruments, and on the third day after the incision, the child, in a fit of violent coughing, ejected the button through the aperture, and is now doing well.

A young fellow, not quite so wise as Solomon, eating some Orange county cheese, full of mites, one night at a restaurant, said:

"Now have I done as much as Samson, for I have slain my ten thousand."

"Yes," answered one of the company, "and with the same weapon, too—the jaw-bone of an ass."

Long ago, in Massachusetts, it was the custom for a person to go about the meeting houses, during divine service and wake the sleepers. He bore a long wand, on one end of which was a fox tail. When he observed the men asleep, he rapped them on the head with the knob, and roused the slumbering sensibilities of the ladies by drawing the brush lightly across their faces. How would this do in our day?

The first river steamboats were without wheel-houses, and the jealous skippers of the sailing fleet never lost an opportunity of running into them and breaking a wheel. So common had this become that it was an unusual event for a steamboat to arrive at the end of her voyage with both wheels in motion. It was the strange appearance of these uncovered wheels that led the farmer to tell his wife he had seen the devil going to Albany in a saw-mill.

A mysterious and remarkable bird makes its appearance in untold numbers in the tide waters of Virginia. It is called the sora. It comes in September and disappears with the first frost. It is of the snipe genus, and in size between the snow bird and common quail. It is young and tender, and fatens so rapidly during its stay that it can scarcely fly. Its flavor is delicate and superior to any other known. No investigation can discover whence it comes or where it migrates to.
