 The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company has never been involved with other financial institutions and has no connection with any other line of business. The entire attention of the officers of the company has been confined to the business of the company, they believing that only by so doing could they insure that the company and particularly its policyholders, the best interest of its members.
 Quality, Not Quantity, and Best Results to Policyholders is the Aim of the Northwestern.
 Pays Dividends Annually or Deferred.
 This company is on the Mutual Plan. Every policyholder is invited each year to attend the annual meeting or send his proxy. No officer of the company is allowed to vote any proxy, and no person is allowed to cast more than one hundred votes.
 Agents can truthfully represent to their friends and prospective policyholders that if they take a policy in the Northwestern, they will get the most they can obtain for their money in life insurance. We do not want an agent on every street corner, but we want a few good agents who will sell good goods strictly on their merits and find employment by applying to
