the duties and obligations resting upon him be would desire to leave. As it was, he wished to stay and finish the work allotted him. But death had no sting for him. He never felt to mourn the death of a saint that had been true and faithful, from the assurance the gospel gives of their gain. The only can of mourning was the loss of their society and the benefit of their associations to those who remained upon the sarth; but to them it was most certainly a cause of rejoicing. Brother Hyde had been faithful in the midst of his brothren to the last hour of his life. He was glad of this, for henceforth a great reward awaited him, and he would reign in the celestial kingdom. He had gone to propare a place for his family and his friends. He (Brothigh and he friends He (Brothigh) and he friends He (Brothigh) at labors, for he had been moved upon by the spirit of the Almighty in fulfiliment of revesition, to bear his teatimenty of the fulless of the gospel and also of the aigns of the gospel and also of the aigns of the world, and in his office and calling as one of the spouties of the Last Josus he would be one of the jodges of this generation.

One had cheen the week things world, and in his office and calling as one of the apostles of the Lord Jesus he would be one of the Jesus he would be one of the judges of this generation.

God had chosen the weak things of the world to carry on his work, and all that had been accomplished had been through the spirit, power and blessing of God attending those whom he had chosen and who were faithful to their calling. The Lord chose Brother Hyde to be an apostle. He was faithful and dilligent in bearing record of the things plan of redemption, and it was one who was sufficient to learn many years. His mission to Jerusalem alone was sufficient to hand his name down is honor to future generations. How quick, when the spirit, the immortal principle, departed, the mortal plants of Jesus. Amed the spirit, the immortal principle, departed, the mortal plants of Jesus. Amed the principle of Jesus. Amed the spirit, the immortal principle of Jesus. Amed the spirit to receive the keys, post-series and blessings of immortality and cornal lives, was his prayer in the name of Jesus. A very large concourse of people from all parts of the county, and from other portions of the Territory, assembled on the occasion, to mark their respect to the memory of the deceased, and sympathy for his bereaved family.

Shortly after eleven o'clock, the mortal remains of Elder Hyde weis conveyed by bearers from his residence to the Meeting House, which was suitably draped for the occasion. For neatly two hours a continuous stream of the Saints passed through, to view, for the last time, the countenance of their departed friend and brother, whom they loved so well, during which time award atrains of music issued from the organ.

He had traveled with Brother Hyde upwards of forty-five years, and was left the oldest member of the Twelve now living. This admonished him that his stay could net be very long, and were it not for the duties and obligations resting upon him he would desire to leave. As it was, he wished to stay and

ELDER ERASTUS ENOW said he was 16 years of age when he first made the acquaintance of Elder Hyde. Ha came with the spotles through New York and the eastern States in 1835, the first summer after the Twelve were organized. They held a conference at his father's house. The Twelve were then all together. Now there remained but

OBSTRUCTIONS.

The attention of the inhabitants of Salt Lake City is called to the one living of that number that had continued faithful—Brother Orson Pratt. One half of that number had magnified their calling and wath the exception of Brother Pratt, had passed away. Whatever mistakes they had made, they took the first opportunity to rectify and were forgiven, and it was a happy thought that another apostle had fought the good fight, and endured into the end. It would be the duty of those of the Twelve who remained to endeavor to discharge their duties with like fidelity.

He had not felt the apprit of death since he had been in that house, and he felt to exclaim with the Prophet Isalah, "O grave where is thy sting; Oh death, where is thy victory?" and the answer comes that the grave is swallowed up in victory, and the sting is taken away AN ORDINANCE RELATING TO SIGNS AND AWNINGS, Section f .- Be it ordained by the Section f.—Be it ordained by the City Council of Salt Lake City, That no awnings shall be constructed on any of the sidewalks within the limits of this city, except as hereinafter provided. All canvass awnings hereaster constructed, shall be affixed to, and suspended from the buildings, and shall not project over the sidewalk to exceed ten feet, no part of which shall be lower than eight feet from the grade of the sidewalk.
