

ROBERTSON LAILED.

The Seizure of Miss Littlefield Handled by the Court.

SIX MONTHS WITH THE COUNTY.

That Is What His Sentence Demands
 Two-Judge Wagner Says It Could Not Be Made Shorter.

Frank Richardson has been consigned to the county jail there to remain for six months, unless he puts up the gold and silver value of the stolen goods.

Brown, who is 33, was arrested in March 1997, after a 10-month investigation by the FBI. He is the man who led Miss Littlefield, a witness, to the 18-year-old girl, from her home to the rural districts of Missouri, where she was found.

the fellow who was accused of shell

It was on Monday evening 11 public, when the News related the story of a mother's mad ravage at the downfall of her daughter. At the time, when Mrs. Littlefield was in a madhouse, she was the only one who knew the truth.

While the crowd gathered was waiting, as a crowd was behind a prison bar of the city jail. From before that time, he had been found a second death since he had been with the wardens and his mother.

January, he, the designer of a haphazard, urged the faculty and to convince him is the only clock's office, there is no other reason which would permit the con-

you did not have the desired effect, however, as he was then in a situation of the law and could not gain his freedom when justice is being satisfied.

arraigned in the police court on complaint charging him with vagrancy. He pleaded not guilty to the charge, and when desired to have a lawyer but failed in his behalf, a court clerk was called Wednesday morning.

ing. At that time all hands were apparently ready to proceed, but when the case was called up, he announced a jury trial, thus necessitating another postponement of the hearing, which was then set for Thursday.

All the meeting's sessions of public affairs were presided by the same, as were also attended to try on both sides. Frequenter will speak late of the night in some was granted. Hansen drew up another complaint which charged Hlaughton with resorting to houses of ill-fame and being a person of lewdness and immorality. When asked for life of the defendant said he was ignorant.

the law in 1941, and who asked to the authorities under which the cha was thought. This was shown to and after a careful period of 11, provided guilty, those doing away w the city's services as well as those

Before the defendant was sentenced, however, Prosecutors Shoop, with permission of the court, placed Detective Shoop on the stand, the party being in show some of the circumstances connected with the case.

witness testified that he had seen the Defendant for ten days. He watched her movements pretty close and had seen him going in and out certain houses of vice on West 6 and South street. He arrested the

that time he was escorted a route with Miss Little of Morgan City. Robertson admitted taking the girl there, and stated

10. The defendant wanted to go to country clerk's and get a marriage license to marry the girl. He only loved her and was willing to take her as his wife.

himself, Kitchin said he was the writer of the book. He said he was the writer of the book. He said he was the writer of the book.

This was all Robertson had to a after which the court took the case hand. Justice Wenger said that complaint should have been made delay against the defendant, as the proper place for such character.

A man who would lead a young away from her home, accomplish this and then call her into a home prostitution was not fit to enter the door of a decent woman.

He then sentenced the defendant to pay a fine of $50 and to be imprisoned in the county jail for a period of 30 days, admonishing the same with the remark that he was sorry he could not impose the penalty of guy, and although he was found guilty, sentence was suspended to give him a chance to find employment. Young Daniechen was arrested after leaving on Tuesday evening.

A Begging Boy.

street for money with which to buy food and secure a bed. In his testimony he admitted having stolen but said there were plenty of jobs on the streets and that he thing. Almonique had lived here about three years, but had just come from Blaine, where he had been working for a while. His mother was dead, while his father was working in the Nevada mine. Almo-forward, Justice Wagner gave his opinion talking to him, then turned to leave.

