Above is the result of the caucus held Saturday night by members of the senate.

The caucus was called to order by Senator Love of Utah county. Wesley K. Walton of Rich county, was nominated as chairman by Senator Love, the nomination being seconded by Senator Lawrence. The nominees were unanimously chosen, after which Charles R. Hollingsworth of Utah county made secretary.

When nominations for president of the senate were called for, George N. Lawrence of Salt Lake, placed before the caucus the name of S. H. Love. The nomination was seconded by John of Piute, Larsen of Sanpete, Looze of Utah and Williams of Salt Lake. Election by acclamation followed.

In a brief speech of acceptance Senator Love said that he sensed the great honor shown to him and would attempt to perform the duties of the office impartially to Democrats as well as Republicans.

Upon the suggestion of Senator Lawrence a recess was taken to prepare a list of senate appointments. After a recess of nearly an hour the list as given above was presented; except that two officers were seconded by Johnson, the new positions being "reading clerk" and "assistant doorkeeper."

In discussion on the choosing of seats it was decided that as Senator McKay was the oldest member of the senate he should have first choice, after which the Democratic members should be given the privilege of making their choice.

Chief Justice George W. Barch was, by special motion, invited to be present Monday and administer the oath of office to the senators.

The final act of the caucus was to appoint, upon motion of Senator Johnson, a committee of three to draft a resolution of sympathy for Senator McKay, whose wife recently died at the family home in Weber county. Senators Hollingsworth, Love and Johnson were appointed.

THE ARID LANDS; WATER OUTLOOK.

Chairman Doremus of the State Reclamation Commission Makes Report.

TELLS WHAT HAS BEEN DONE.

Also Informs Governor of Future Necessities to Carry on Work Now Under Way.

State Engineer A. P. Doremus, as chairman of the arid land reclamation fund commission, has filed in the office of Governor John C. Cutler, his biennial report. It is about 6,000 words long and full of valuable information. In his report, Mr. Doremus recites the origin and organization of the commission as provided by state legislation in accordance with the act of Congress. Attention is called to the earliest meetings which were attended by Senators Kearns and Smoot and Congressmen Howell, and many representatives from Utah and Salt Lake counties, as showing the public interest in the work. On account of legal questions arising and likely to arise, Hon. Franklin S. Richards was retained as counsel. His general knowledge of irrigation law made him able to advise the commission, and his almost constant service soon became indispensable.

The commission was authorized by the interior department to determine the best means for improving Utah lake as a reservoir and for utilizing such increased water supply as might result from such improvement; and the services of Morris Elen, an expert, were furnished by the department.

Mr. Doremus, in his report, recites Mr. Richards to Washington, and includes in his report the valuable and interesting correspondence between the interior department and the commission.

UNION OF WATER INTERESTS.

The report also recites the efforts made by Mr. Richards and the commission to unite the owners of lands under Utah lake for direct dealing with the government in relation to the water supply, and fears that lack of unity might result in the government's withdrawing the men from the field. In the meantime the different county clerks were corresponded with relative to needs and possibilities of water supply in their counties. The result was that the general information was encouraging, but the commission went ahead, just the same.

THE BEAR LAKE PROJECT.

Finally the Bear Lake-Duchene project was evolved, and the chairman and Mr. Richards went to Washington where the plan, with complete drawings and statistics, was laid before the secretary of the interior. Stress was laid on the torrential character of the state streams, and the necessity of reservoirs to save these waters for the suitable irrigation of the state; it being also pointed out that because of the shorter seasons and liability to early and late frosts in the higher valleys, the lower valleys were more worthy of the water. The correspondence and printed matter shown the secretary, covered exhaustively the irrigation status in the state, and correlative data and facts from an agricultural standpoint. Just what was advisable if not positively necessary to be done, was set forth. These recommendations included the Wasatch tunnel and Strawberry engineering scheme already mentioned, frequently referred to in full imprint.

STATE COMMISSION.

The report then points out the great advantage of a state commission as manifested in this Washington experience, for the value and completeness of every move made by the commission was recognized by the department, and Secy. Hitchcock granted on March 17, 1904, the examinations asked for, and the commission was officially notified through the director of the U. S. geological survey. The local officers of the reclamation service were instructed to proceed with the investigations, and work was begun last spring that has been prosecuted vigorously ever since. It will take another year to complete it.

EXTRA AVAILABLE WATER.

The report states it has been ascertained that an additional supply of 1,250,000 acre feet of water can be made available in the district embraced by the project, and in anticipation of this, all lands now being organized into a corporation to be known as the Utah & Idaho Water Users' association. The work, however, of organizing the 16,000 or more land owners under the circumstances, be necessarily slow. But the work in some neighborhoods has already been completed, and the subscription lists have been returned to the secretary of the association. The formation of this association is necessary as the land to be benefited is practically all in private ownership; and the water supply must be by the request and at the expense of the land owners. It is erroneous to suppose that the government will undertake any work beyond that of investigation, unless assured that the land owners desire to have it done. So an opportunity for the land owners to express themselves has been afforded through the association of owners.

SALT LAKE THE PLACE.

When it became apparent that the details of the government work could not be satisfactorily conducted from the Washington office, and that a branch office would probably be established nearer the field of operations, the commission hastened to invite the selection of Salt Lake as the place for such an office, and the result Salt Lake City was subsequently selected and the office is now permanently established here.

RESULTS THUS FAR.

The commission is highly pleased with the results of its efforts under the law have so far accomplished and earnestly recommends sufficient interest by the land owners to induce a continuance as well as a culmination of the great work so satisfactorily begun.

LIBERAL APPROPRIATIONS.

The commission also recommends the desirability of such liberal appropriations as will enable it, besides completing the work already commenced, to procure facts relative to the possibilities and needs in all parts of the state, with the view of inducing such investigations by the United States reclamation service as will disclose where there is opportunity, and what measures can be profitably employed for increasing the water supply generally, and that $15,000 can be profitably expended for these purposes during the ensuing two years. It is also suggested that the members of the commission receive compensation commensurate with the work required of them. It appears to the commission that there should be no halting in the work so well started, and which if persevered in will contribute so largely to the growth and glorification of our great state.

FALLING BRICK SOUNDS ALARM

Scheme to Break Out of County Jail Neatly Nipped in the Bud.

DISCOVERED BY THE MATRON.

Was Work of George Williams, Now Awaiting Trial for Burglary and Grand Larceny.

An attempt to break jail was made by George Williams at the county jail Saturday afternoon, but the man's own carelessness was the cause of the plot being discovered by Jailer Burbridge, and the prevention of what might have been the escape of several prisoners, who are confined on the second floor of the jail. Williams had succeeded in digging the mortar away from the bricks in the wall of his cell on the east side of the jail, and one of the loosened bricks fell to the ground below and attracted the attention of Miss Edna Mitchell, the matron, who was in the kitchen at that time.

She at once informed Jailer Burbridge about the matter and he went to Williams' cell and made an investigation. A sharp stick was found in the cell, and also a saw, made out of a case knife. The stick had been used to dig the mortar away from the bricks, and the saw had been used to saw the screen. Williams was at once placed in the dungeon, where he will remain until he is tried upon the charge of burglary and grand larceny, and it is now probable that he will have to face the charge of attempting to escape from prison.

Some mysterious noises had been heard at night recently by members of the sheriff's family, and the detection of Williams in this attempt to escape explains everything of that nature. It is believed that some of the other prisoners on the second floor of the jail knew of the plot and would have profited by Williams' work had he succeeded in making an opening in the wall large enough to permit of an escape. The fact that his cell is directly over the kitchen and that the brick, in falling, passed the window of that room is in a great measure responsible for the discovery of the attempt.
