"Whims."—The Raymond Holmes Musical Comedy Company, present this laughable burlesque at the Salt Lake Theatre, to-morrow night.

The Carson Index, of January 11th, says:

A long absence of theatricals in Carson has whetted the appetite for amusements and consequently a very large audience was promptly on hand last evening to see the noted troupe which has been impatiently awaited. It is not too much to say that none of the pleasant anticipations were disappointed. The performance, whimsical, comical, musical, was like a crazy kaleidoscope of varied performances and the audiences was kept to the height of good humor from the beginning to the end. Raymond Holmes is the life of the scene throughout and his many aptitudes make him the centre of attraction.

Honor to Whom, Etc.—In noticing the new firm of Grant, Odell & Co., some references were made which perhaps might be construed unjustly towards other firms of our own people that handle wagons and machinery. In recommending the young men who have just succeeded to the business of L. B. Mattison, we do not wish to depreciate the business of others. H. B. Clawson is well known throughout the Territory and in the East in this branch of business, in which he has scored a big success. Naylor Bros., now Naylor & Pike, who handle an acknowledged first-class wagon, the "Cooper," and general farming implements; firms at Ogden, Kaysville, etc., have also engaged in this business with profit to themselves and the people, and we do not wish to throw them in the shade while bringing to the front a new firm. We wish them all well and hope they will retain the patronage which they have worthily obtained.

Missionary Work in Wisconsin.—Elder Charles M. Nielson writes from La. Crosse, Wisconsin, under date of Feb. 25th, 1884, to Bro. Andrew Jenson, of this city:

"I have been laboring as a missionary in this State since Dec 1st, 1883, and as I am the only Elder here at present, I have plenty of room. I have, through the blessing of God, met with some success, although I came here as a stranger, and found the people generally filled with much bitterness and prejudice against our people. Most of them had never seen a Latter-day Saint before, and several have expressed great surprise at seeing a live Mormon Elder.

I have held about twenty meetings, and preached in both the English and Norwegian languages. I have also baptized 8 persons. This has caused considerable excitement among the clergy, and some of the pious priests have warned the people against "the Utah wolf" and advised them not to attend my meetings. I have heard some threats about tarring and feathering, expulsion from the city, etc., but up to the present my meetings have not been disturbed.

I wish the Saints at home would take Pres't. Palmer's advice and help to preach the Gospel, by sending the DESERET NEWS and other Church papers to their friends in the States, for we experience almost invariably that wherever we find any of those papers there we also find friends. I have received letters from parties in Minnesota, asking me to come and baptize them, but at present I have too much to do where I am. I am very much pleased with Morgenstjernen and I shall try to get some subscribers here."

ASSEMBLY HALL.

SYNOPSIS OF YESTERDAY'S REMARKS.

The speaker was Apostle Erastus Snow. He referred to the position occupied by the Latter-day Saints as "a city set on a hill" which could not be hid, and proceeded to show forth the providences of God, in the midst of all their trials and hardships, which had resulted in their present prosperous condition. He told how the Prophet Joseph had predicted their coming to the Rocky Mountains, of their sufferings by the way, of their marvelous deliverance and preservation, and their wonderful achievements in the midst of this once desert region.

He showed how the ire of their enemies had pursued them from the beginning, and how the same spirit of jealous animosity which drove the Saints from Missouri and Illinois, was still seeking to destroy or bring them into bondage. Being denied admittance into the Union, at the same time California was admitted, they were given a Territorial Government, and of late years had had Governors and other officials who had sought to enlarge their prerogatives and use their powers for the oppression of the people.

He touched upon the Edmunds Law and the acts of the Utah Commission, and portrayed the inconsistency of such measures and test oaths which disfranchised honorable men and women, and permitted the adulterer, the whoremonger and the lewd woman to exercise all the rights of citizenship; thus showing conclusively that it was not a crusade against immorality but against the patriarchal system of marriage.

It was an effort to dishonor the fathers and mothers of this people in the eyes of their children. But those who had quietly submitted to this great wrong had only "stooped to conquer," for God would yet conquer and the Saints would rise with Him and prevail. This was not uttered as a threat, but as a prophecy. It was not said in the spirit of disloyalty and defiance.

He next drew the contrast between the efforts of the Saints to honorably populate the earth and the practices in the world to prevent it, and said that all these things would yet be recorded by the impartial pen of the historian, and held up for God and angels and the sons of such ignoble sires to gaze upon with unutterable disgust. The history of this generation was not yet written but it would be, and when the religious bigotry of the hour should have spent its fury and the blind folly and ignorance of demagogues should have been drowned in the common sense of the people, then Utah and her pioneers and people would receive the credit due them but which had never yet been paid.

The above are only a few thoughts among many enunciated by the speaker, and a very imperfect synopsis of an eloquent and powerful discourse. It was taken in full by the Church reporter, and will appear in the NEWS at an early day.

SOLDIERS IN DISGUISE.

THEY ATTACK MARSHAL PHILLIPS AND OFFICER SMITH.

About 12:30 yesterday morning, as Marshal Phillips and Officer Andrew Smith were leaving the City Hall for their respective homes, they overtook three men, who were singing loudly and making night hideous with yells, etc.

The officers followed them to Third East Street, and the Marshal stepping up to them, said, "Gentlemen, you are making too much noise and must cease it," when one of them insolently replied, "We are making no unnecessary noise." The Marshal then told them they were disturbing the peace of the residents, etc., to which the spokesman for the trio replied, "Can't a fellow sing and have a little fun?"

"Yes;" replied the Marshal, "at a seasonable hour, and when it does not disturb the citizens." To this, the man made a motion as if to strike the Marshal, when the latter grabbed the offender by the arm, and was immediately struck on the side with a rock thrown by one of the men in the background.

Officer Smith, who at this time came to the assistance of the Marshal, was struck in the mouth with a rock, the force of which broke three of his teeth. The Marshal then reached for his pistol, and while in the act of drawing it from his hip pocket was struck by a large rock on the right elbow, causing much pain and for some time making it useless. With the left hand he drew his pistol and fired two shots at the assailants, but it was so dark he was unable to hit his mark.

The officers conducted one of them to the jail. He is a soldier named Jno. Manning, and is a member of company "B," Sixth Infantry.

A NEWS representative called at the City Hall this morning, but was unable to learn the names of the other two. Manning said that he would never divulge their names no matter what was done with him. He says, however, that one of them is a citizen and the other a soldier. All three were dressed as citizens, and it may be difficult to learn the identity of the two who escaped. Manning will probably have a hearing to-morrow.

Opera To-night.—The Emma Abbott Opera Company, a complete and thoroughly equipped organization, open their engagement at the Walker Opera House to-night, presenting the splendid new opera "King for a Day." Of Emma Abbott's voice the Philadelphia Inquirer says:

"Emma Abbott possesses one of those sweet, liquid—purely musical voices so rarely heard, and so difficult to describe when heard.

"It has a delicate, sensitive timbre, a flute-like, silvery tint, and a charming individuality. Miss Abbott sings as much with her mind and soul as with her throat. Only when a musical voice is united with a highly emotional nature, and then carefully cultivated does the auditor percieve the fire of genius permeating and illuminating rare talent. It is this halo of physical intensity that gives to every tone of the American prima donna its most irresistible charm. Regarded from a purely critical standpoint, her voice is one of exceptional compass, very full and rich in the lower register, pulsing with tenderness and pathos in the middle tones, and as bright and sunny and clear as a rippling stream in the "voce di testa."

Seats have been selling at a lively rate for several weeks, and there is every prospect that the Abbott opera season will be an unqualified success.

Utah and Northern Washouts.—Mr. John N. Pike who returned from the North on Friday night, tells us something in relation to the washouts on the Utah and Northern, of which our readers have already heard. The north-bound train on Thursday remained at Brigham until 7 o'clock that evening (the Phosa McAllister troupe being among the passengers), waiting for the track to be cleared at Collinston, a washout having occurred there.

At 7 o'clock the train started for Collinston, and having transferred at that point, returned to Brigham at 2 a. m. on Friday, and then came on to Ogden. The north-bound freight train on Friday, could not cross Box Elder Lake, which had flooded the track, and was forced to put back to Brigham. The passenger train was likewise delayed at that place, from 10 a. m. till 12, waiting for the track to be put in order.

AVALANCHE AT ALTA.

TWELVE PEOPLE KILLED AT THE NEW EMMA MINE.

The awful news reached this city yesterday of a fatal snow-slide near Alta, Little Cottonwood, in which twelve persons, nine men, two women and a boy, perished. The terrible event took place on Friday evening at half past six o'clock, at the Emma Mine, and the particulars, as gleaned from several sources, notably from Mr. George Cullins, superintendent of the mine, are as follows:

A number of slides occurred simultaneously all along the cañon above and below. The one that struck the Emma works and proved fatal to so many, was a solid mass of snow and debris, about half a mile in width. The portion that swept the buildings away was from the Equitable Gulch directly north of the works. All who were killed, excepting Edward Crockett, the fireman, had gathered there about half an hour before the slide to sleep in the tunnel for safety, and on their way had stopped in the blacksmith's shop, when the snow came down.

It swept over the shed at the mouth of the tunnel and buried up the entire party, not one of whom was again seen alive.

Another party of one woman and three men, were on their way to the mine for refuge, at the time the fatal event took place. The woman had just asked her companions to wait a moment, as she was out of breath from climbing and would have to rest, when the avalanche flew by, knocking some of them down but doing none of them any serious injury. In another moment, had they not stopped to rest, they too would have been engulfed in the snow, and in all probability would have met a similar fate to those who had preceded them up the mountain.

The names of those who were killed are as follows: Gus. Lybecker, foreman of the mine; Ed Crockett, fireman; Willard Stephenson, O. J. Johnson, N. S. Delano, P. T. Calgreen and wife, D. D. Wasson and brother, Sam Prothero, Lottie Olesou and Johnnie Richardson. Some of the bodies, when taken out, were found to be scalded, doubtless by the water from the engine boiler. At last accounts they had all been dug out but one.

Owing to the telegraph line being down, and nearly everybody busily engaged searching for the bodies, or so excited over the occurrence, as to forget everything else, word was not sent to this city until yesterday, when twenty or thirty people from Alta City arrived in town, including Mr. George Cullins, the Superintendent, who is our main source of information. He was at Alta at the time of the slide, but half an hour later would have been at the mine, and probably among the victims.

It is expected that a special train over the D. & R. G., which now owns the line from Sandy to Alta, will go out to bring the bodies to this city for burial. Mr. Cullins states that help will be required to assist in moving the bodies to the railroad, eight miles below Alta. A special train will proceed to the end of the track, for this purpose as soon as the storm is over.

To give our readers an idea of the situation Mr. Cullins informs us that it took 22 men three hours to make the first four miles coming down the cañon.

A MAGIC POWER.
A Secret Agent at Work.

We were surprised the other day to learn that certain individuals in this city, who had for many years yielded to what was apparently an inevitable fate, were startled from their torpid condition of semi-stupidity, into asserting their right to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." These parties had been bound by an influence as powerful as it was incomprehensible. They knew not the cause, yet they were victims to the result. They were enchained, but they could not discern by what means they had been manacled. They had long sought deliverance in vain. Their appeals to science and the knowledge contained in books were equally unavailing. At last, relief came! It was not through any action of the President, or of Congress, for their trouble was not of a political character. Neither did the Governor's Message relieve them, nor any action of the new Legislature, for it was out of their power, and foreign to their jurisdiction. Yet they were suddenly and effectually released from the bondage they suffered, and placed on the equal scale of human happiness. "What was their trouble?" is what our readers will ask. They had been rendered helpless by that universal enemy—rheumatism. They had not walked or even moved without pain for years, and on the strong recommendations of friends "who had been there," they tried Britannia, and were at once relieved and radically cured. Britannia is what did it. It acted like a magic power. This secret agent quietly coursed through their veins, removed the cause of the trouble, liberated the captives from their doomed condition, and now they congratulate each other on the accomplishment of such a triumph, and the acquisition of the knowledge, by which they can at any time resist the encroachments of their common foe. We could give the names of the parties, but will wait a future time.
