ARRIVED THIS MORNING.

Little Richard's Long Voyage From Manila via the Atlantic - Major's Health Good-Stay Uncertain.

"Manila is a most picturesque and Interesting city-I like it so much, but nevertheless I am very, very glad to be home again."

So said Mrs. Major R. W. Young to a "News" representative who called on her this afternoon. Mrs. Young and her daughters, Margaret and Mary had just returned to Sali Lake after an absence of seven months and three days. It will be remembered that they accompanied Major Young to the Philipplnes on his return to the islands last fall, as did also the major's little on, Richard, who is now somewhere on the heaving billows of the great Atlantic enroute for New York. "I should have brought him home with me also." said Mrs. Young, "but he had been suffering from asthma very much, and the trouble got worse on the islands, so when an opportunity presented itself. for him to come home with a friend whom we knew would take the best zare in the world of him, we consented. feeling that he would be greatly benefitted by his long ocean trip.
