

INFALLIBILITY TRIUMPHANT.

This declaration of Papal infallibility, as a tenet of the Catholic faith, seems to have been the chief object for which the Ecumenical Council was assembled at Rome, for from the commencement of its sittings, and even before that time, the scheme was kept prominently on the surface.

Such a principle as the infallibility, or inability to err, of any man, even when claiming to be the successor of St. Peter, is so diametrically in opposition to the spirit of the age that his Holiness and his warmest adherents have had a tough job to induce a majority of the members of the Council to give their adhesion to the project. Opposition and hostility, the most determined in character, have been arrayed against it, and its ultimate triumph seemed for a long time doubtful. Among the most determined antagonists of the dogma, as might have been expected, were the Roman Catholic prelates of this country.

The free institutions and notions of America and such a dogma as human infallibility are as antagonistic as anything can be; and even Catholics can not live long in our country without being incited pretty strongly with the spirit of liberty and free thought which pervades everything American. Among the protestants against the dogma were twenty-one Americans, archbishops and bishops, twelve of whom are native Americans, five natives of Ireland, two natives of Germany, one of France and one a Spaniard.

But despite the protest of the liberal portion of the Council, the extremists and infallibility have triumphed. The 20th of the present month is set for its formal proclamation, which, it is said, will be celebrated with the grandest pageantry witnessed during the present generation.

The following is the text of the article on infallibility, to which all orthodox Catholics throughout the world will be expected to yield implicit faith, after the 20th inst:

"The Holy Roman Church possesses the highest and completest supremacy and predominance over the whole of the Catholic Church, which she truly and humbly recognizes to have received with the fullness of power from the Lord Himself, through St. Peter, Prince of Apostles, whose successor is the Roman Pontiff. And as she is bound to defend before others the truth of the faith, so also any questions which may arise regarding faith must be decided by her judgment, because, moreover, the words of our Lord Jesus Christ, saying, 'Thou art Peter, etc., are not to be passed over. These words have been confirmed by subsequent events, for the Catholic religion has ever been preserved immaculate, and its doctrine has ever been celebrated in the Apostolic See.

Hence, we teach, with the approval of the Holy Council, and define as a dogma of faith, that by the Divine assistance the Roman Pontiff, of whom, in the person of St. Peter, it has likewise been said by our Lord Jesus Christ, 'I have prayed for thee,' etc., cannot err when, acting as the highest teacher of all Christians, he authoritatively defines what should be adhered to by the whole Church in matters of faith and morals; and that this prerogative of infallibility to err, or infallibility of the Roman Pontiff, is equally extensive with the infallibility of the Church.

If any one should presume to contradict this, our definition, which may God avert, let him know that he thereby falls away from the truth of the faith."

The passage of such a dogma might have augmented the influence and power of the head of the Roman Church before the days of the Protestant reformation—before Luther and the great lights of the Reformation shed their influence and revivifying power over Christendom; but the human race has progressed since then if Romanism has not, and a decree designed to control the faith and consciences of millions of intelligent beings, passed now, is behind its time; and the struggle and scramble that have taken place among the hierarchs who favored it, and the ultimate triumph of the scheme, have little more real importance than a struggle among a parcel of lunatics for the possession of a soap bubble.

The correspondent of the Catholic Mirror furnished to that paper recently, an account of a singular scene witnessed, on Holy Thursday, in St. Peter's Church, Rome. On that day, after the mass and procession of the Blessed Sacrament, his Holiness the Pope went through the ceremony of washing and kissing the feet of twelve pilgrims, one of whom was a full-blooded negro, named Samba, from Senegambia. Being according to annual custom, there was nothing particularly singular or noticeable in the ceremony of washing feet; but the fact of his Holiness condescending to wash and kiss the foot of a negro should gain him many ardent admirers among the negro rights' folks in this country. Such an act of condescension from the head of the Roman Catholic church towards a negro pilgrim, is going beyond the most orthodox abolitionists in this country in paying honor to the negro race.

How different such a statement reads from that furnished by a Washington correspondent to one of the Eastern papers in relation to Senator Davis, of Kentucky, and Senator Revels, of Mississippi. This correspondent says that among the luxuries and comforts provided for the national salons at the Capital is an elegant bathroom. Sometime after his admission to the Senate Mr. Revels availed himself of the right to the Senatorial bath, and while doing so Mr. Davis came along with a similar intent, but seeing the bath occupied by a negro, he turned quickly away, disgusted with the sight and declared that he would no more vote for an appropriation to defray the expenses of Senatorial ablutions! Whether the story be true or false there is no question but the feeling said to have been manifested toward Senator Revels by the gentleman from Kentucky, is that which is generally entertained by those who make the most parade of partiality for the negro race. The manifestations of love for citizens of African descent, which are so popular in these days, are of a very questionable character, and do not have a very substantial foundation; and it may pertinently be asked, would the Pope have washed and kissed the foot of the Senegambian Samba, if formality had not required it of him? We think not; all such demonstrations amount to little more than a farce.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

Boundaries of Land Districts Changed.

WASHINGTON, 7.—In the Senate, the 14th inst., is set apart for business from the committee on commerce, and the bill for the apportionment of members of Congress is made a special order for the 15th.

The bill authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to change the boundaries of the land districts, without increasing their number, was passed.

The Indian appropriation bill was discussed in executive session.

HOUSE.

Discussed.

In the House the bill regulating the payment of members, in cases of contested elections, was discussed and tabled, 90 against 80.

The ninety-five million currency bill was discussed without action. The evening session was held for general discussion.

WASHINGTON.

Nominations—Mexican Claims Commission—Confirmations—Indian eloquence—a big speech from Red Cloud.

It appears that Sumner offered a resolution in the executive session of the Senate, yesterday, for the appointment of a committee to investigate the subject of San Domingo, and to ascertain whether any improper means have been used in connection with the sale of the land. The consideration of the subject was objected to and the question went over.

The President has nominated James B. Delford, of Indiana, associate justice of the Supreme Court of Colorado.

The reconstruction committee have attached to the Georgia bill a proviso that nothing therein should interfere with the election in Georgia this fall, as provided for by the State constitution. The committee also adopted a resolution to postpone action relative to Tennessee to next session.

The mixed commission for the settlement of Mexican claims resumed its session on Monday. The claims number over two thousand, and they may occupy over five years in adjudication.

The Senate has confirmed E. Peshine Smith examiner of claims in the State department; Gilman Malston, Governor of Idaho; W. H. West, consul at Rio Janeiro.

The Senate foreign committee has agreed to report a resolution rescinding the slave trade treaty, made in '02, with England, providing for a mixed commission.

The opponents of the ninety-five million bill are confident of defeating it. The conference committee has agreed to report back the House bill, which furnishes soldiers who lost limbs in the service an artificial one every five years, or its equivalent in money.

An army order has been issued for keeping intruders off land secured to Indians by treaty, until Indian titles are extinguished, or until the lands are opened by Congress for settlement.

The great council between the Secretary of the Interior and Commissioner Parker, and the Indian delegates was held to-day. Secretary Cox made a speech, promising that all the treaty stipulations shall be observed by the Government, but no arms or ammunition till Red Cloud and his people promise to keep the peace. Red Cloud, in reply, said, "The great father may be good and kind but I cannot see it. I have been good and kind to white people and have given my lands. The great father has sent people out there and left me nothing but an island. Our nation is melting away like snow on the side of the hills where the sun is warm, while your people are like blades of grass in spring when summer is coming. I don't want to see white people making roads in our country. The white people have sprinkled blood on the blades of grass about the line of Fort Fetterman. Tell the great father to remove that fort, then we will be peaceful, and there will be no more trouble. I have two mountains in that country, Black Hill and Big Horn. I want no roads there. There have been snakes driven in that country; I want them removed. I don't want a reservation on the Missouri. My people are dying off like sheep. The country don't suit them from the north and west. The red nation has come into the father's hand; we are the last of the Ogallallahas. We have come to know the facts from our father, why the promises made us are not kept. The men whom the President sends are all soldiers and they have no sense and no heart. Yours are the people who should keep peace. The railroads are passing through my country, but I have not received even a brass ring for the land they occupy. You whites make all the ammunition, what's the reason you don't give it to me? Are you afraid I am going to war? You are great and powerful; I don't want it for that purpose, but to kill game with. I suppose I must in time go to farming, but I can't do it right away."

Little Bear made a short speech, and complained of bad treatment. Secretary Cox promised to report that had been said, to the President and would arrange a time for a meeting with him.

CURTIS MODELS—PRICES REDUCED

TO MEET THE TIMES!—The merits of this system for cutting all kinds of garments worn by Ladies, Gentlemen and Children are known by scores of ladies in this City and Territory; but the sure way is to prove it on one's self which may be done without charge. This system removes all anxiety regarding the FIT of garments, as all the directions are absolutely positive. There will be no altering—no taking up or letting out, which not only injures the material but destroys the proportions and often ruins the garment. The system is very simple and can be learned in a few hours.
