

VERDICT REACHED IN PAVING SUIT

Jury Finds in Favor of Culmer-Jennings for $4,347.33.

DEMAND WAS FOR $6,664

Case Almost Certain to be Appealed by the City-Decision Was Unanimous.

The jury in the case of the Culmer-Jennings Paving Company vs Salt Lake City, which has been in course of trial since the 21st inst., returned a sealed verdict this morning finding the issues in favor of plaintiff and awarding it judgment for $4,347.33.

Plaintiff sued to recover the sum of $6,641.33, representing the balance—10 per cent—alleged to be due on a street paving contract. The city retained this money as a guarantee that the pavement would be kept in good repair for five years.

The defendant claimed the work was in very bad shape and said it would cost $15,000 to repave the pavement. As a counter-claim against the paving company the city, in its answer, asked for judgment in the latter sum.

Today's verdict is far from being satisfactory to the legal representatives of the city, and the defendant is almost certain to take an appeal to the State supreme court.

All the jurors were unanimous in the verdict returned.

Setting of Non-Jury Cases.

On Monday next Judge Cherry will call the civil trial calendar and make jury cases for the 30th term and make a setting of cases therefrom for trial some time in September.

Silcock Divorce Suit.

Mary M. Silcock has commenced divorce proceedings against Gardner V. Silcock basing her suit on the ground of desertion and failure to support. The parties, according to the complaint, were married at Hot Springs, S. D., on March 23, 1895, and the wife says her husband deserted here in June 1896, and has since failed to provide her with the common necessities of life. Plaintiff prays for an absolute decree annulling the marriage relationship and a reasonable amount of alimony.

Frank J. Gustin is plaintiff's attorney.

Personal Damage Suit.

Theresa Hesselberg and her husband, Isadore Hesselberg, have filed a suit against Joseph Hause in the Third district court to recover $5,000 damages for alleged personal injuries.

The complaint sets forth that on June 18, the defendant unlawfully and maliciously ejected Mrs. Hesselberg from the premises known as 324 South Fourth East street. It is further alleged that while the ejection episode was in progress Hause assaulted and battered Mrs. Hesselberg, hurting and bruising her so that for a period of one week she was unable to attend to her regular household duties, or nurse her child.

JUDGE BASKIN INDISPOSED.

Too Ill to Testify in a Case Wherein He Was the Plaintiff.

A jury was impaneled in Judge Cherry's court today to try the case of N. Baskin vs H. L. Driver et al, a suit to recover $1,700 attorney's fees; but before the taking of testimony had proceeded it was learned Judge Baskin was too ill to appear, and the judge discharged and the case continued for the term.

It was stated that Judge Baskin is suffering with a severe cold.

Judgment for Defendant.

In the case of W. H. Irvine vs William J. Lawrence, judgment, by consent, was given by Judge Cherry today for the defendant. The suit involved 1,066 shares of stock in the Star Consolidated Mining company, given to secure a promissory note for $10,000.

Salaries of State Officers.

State Auditor Richards desires the "News" to say that on Saturday forenoon of this week he will have ready warrants for salaries of State officers and for the compensation of clerks employed in the various offices.

Excused for the Term.

All the jurors in Judge Cherry's court were paid off today and excused for the term.

IN THE FEDERAL COURT.

The Pabst Brewing Company, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, filed a suit in the Federal court today against the Salt Lake City Brewing Company. The bill of complaint alleges that the defendant company has fraudulently used the plaintiff's trade mark, from which the latter has suffered considerable loss, both through unfair competition and the reputation of its beer. The complaint asks the court to issue an injunction against the defendant, restraining it from using plaintiff's trade mark, and to ascertain the amount of beer the defendant has sold under the aforesaid conditions, and to award to the complainant as much indemnity as is conformable to equity.

THE "RED DEVIL CATCHER."

Motor-Cycle Will Pace the Five Mile Race Tomorrow Night.

At the Salt Palace bicycle races tomorrow night the five mile open professional race will be paced by the "Red Devil Catcher" motor-cycle. It will be ridden by John Lawson, the "Terrible Swede," and Nelson.

RUNAWAY THIS AFTERNOON.

A delivery horse, belonging to the Barnes, Hardy company ran away this afternoon, dashing out of the alley in the rear of the store and bringing up against the Temple wall. A small boy who was in the wagon at the time was thrown out and had his chin slightly cut.

TO SAVE THE ANCIENT RUINS

Guards May be Placed About the Cliff Dwellings.

Through the action of the department of the interior the district inhabited by the cliff dwellers probably will be protected from relic hunters, while free to explorers. State or federal guards may be posted on the mesa to watch the ancient ruins.

The efforts of the Woman's club, backed by the earnest efforts of Mrs. D. V. McClurg, seem about to reach fruition. To the fact that the women of Colorado were the first to see the immense value to history of the relics in the southwest of Colorado, is due the expected success of the project for a reserve, under national or State supervision.

Max Pracht, special agent in the employ of the department of the interior, was at the Brown Palace hotel yesterday. Mr. Pracht was sent by the secretary of the interior to look over the country which the Woman's club recommended should be made a reserve, and to report upon its value. He spent six weeks in the country.

He reported strongly in favor of establishing the proposed reserve. The cliff dwellers' country has a historic value beyond comparison. There is absolutely no end to the value of the relics which have been unearthed there, and are still to be unearthed. The work which will be done in the country will do much toward unraveling the history of the world, and the human race.

THE TERRITORY TO BE GUARDED.

"In my recommendation to the secretary of the interior I specified about nineteen townships, which, after a thorough investigation, seem to me to include practically all the ruins of any importance. The area includes the Mancos canyon and the Mesa Verde, and will run to the line between New Mexico and Colorado.

"In truth it is of but little value for anything but a reserve, for a more desolate barren country you never saw. It lacks water, wood and vegetation almost completely. In some places near the rivers are to be found small farms taken up by poor settlers, and if the government decides to make the reserve it will be necessary for these settlers to move. It will not be difficult to bring this about, for the lands are not of any real value, and the settlers could move almost anywhere else and be better off. It will be provided, in the order forming the reserve, that the settlers be reimbursed for the lands taken from them, and be allowed to choose lands upon the government homesteads, so they will in no case be losers.

NOT ROBBED OF RELICS.

"There has been much said about the amount of plunder that has been taken out of the country. It is true that a great deal of value, that lies on the surface, has been tucked in the trunks of foreign scientists, and taken to museums in Europe, but the important things are still in the earth there. Ninety per cent of the historic relics of the cliff dwellers remain to be unearthed, and if the reservation is made, they will be reserved for the State of Colorado and the United States.

"I do not advance my opinion as to the value of the relics, but merely as the matter, but merely as those formed through close observation by one who is accustomed to look into such matters. Without doubt in southwest Colorado are the remains of the most ancient civilization of which the world has any knowledge, unless perhaps a pre-Persian civilization.

"Surveyors will be put to work at once, when the secretary of the interior has been favorably upon the reserve," concluded Mr. Pracht, "and will mark out the boundaries of the 'Montezuma reserve,' as it will be called."—Denver Republican.

POLITICAL POINTERS.

There is a movement on foot to get together the nine Republican members of the Council and the Republican city committee with a view of arriving at some kind of an understanding whereby the Republican members of the Council may be a unit when it comes to a vote on the confirmation of the new firemen recently appointed by Chief Devine.

The Democrats have decided to have a ratified caucus on July 19. This conclusion was reached at a meeting of the Democratic State executive committee and the executive committee of the Woman's Democratic club last night. The following committees were appointed to arrange the details: Program—Medames Howard, McCune, Wood, Cannon and Sommer. Arrangements—W. H. Dale, Fisher, S. Harris, E. W. Wilson, Daniel Hamer, Mrs. J. B. Reid.

Advertising—Fred J. Leonard, John E. Hanson, W. M. Roylance, L. C. Thorsen, L. W. Shuffitt. Reception—John W. Burton, the chairman of all counties and the officers of all Democratic Women's clubs.

The Democratic State committee will meet on July 20 and issue a call for the State convention.

James D. Pardee is lining up his supporters for the district judgeship nomination.

Senator Aquila Nebeker, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, is down from Rich county.

A. H. Nash will probably be in the race for the nomination for county clerk at the Republican convention.

Mayor Wild, of Mercer, is the latest candidate for district judge on the Democratic ticket.

C. S. Varian will not be a candidate for district attorney.

George E. Blair has formally announced his withdrawal from the race for the nomination for county clerk on the Democratic ticket, as he leaves the State in a few months to be absent two years or more.

Ex-Senator Lee Mantle of Montana, is at the Knutsford. The senator resided in Salt Lake as a boy and has many friends here. He says that Senator Clark has the majority of the Democratic vote behind him in his fight with Marcus Daly.

Ellen Bloomquist Promises Judge Norrell to Be a Good Girl.

Ellen Bloomquist, a 17-year-old incorrigible, appeared before Judge Norrell today to show cause why she should not be committed to the State Industrial school. The girl was given a lecture by the court, and upon a promise to reform and do better she was allowed to go to the home of Mrs. Annie Wilner, residing on Second West, between Tenth and Eleventh South. Mrs. Wilner requested that she be permitted to look after the girl, and assured Judge Norrell she would do all in her power towards reforming her.

BOARD MEETS TOMORROW.

The State board of education will meet at 10 o'clock tomorrow (Friday) morning in Superintendent Park's office, City and County building, and pass upon the applications for diplomas and certificates. Persons desirous of taking an examination on August 16, 17 and 18 next, must file their applications with the secretary on or before July 1st.

REMITTANT SENT DOWN.

Judge Hurt Must Now Resentance Young Abe Majors.

The remittitur in the case of young Abe Majors, affirming the judgment of the lower court and ordering that the death sentence be carried out, was made out by the clerk of the Supreme court today, and later mailed to Judge Hart.

It now becomes the duty of the court to re-sentence the youthful prisoner, which, it is expected, will be done some time next week.

WOMAN'S PRESS CLUB.

The U. W. P. club will meet in room 507 Templeton building, Saturday, June 30th, at 8 p. m. An interesting program is being planned, in which the following ladies will take part: Dr. R. B. Pratt, Mrs. Emma J. McKiever, Mrs. Ruth M. Fox, Mrs. Grace L. Anderson and Mrs. E. B. Wells. Members may bring guests.

JUDGE TIMMONY'S COURT.

Wm. Schesbire was the only one to face the judicial bench today. He was accused of ill treating a horse by hauling excessive loads. The defendant stated to the court that the only reason for the horse's condition was that it was 14 years old, and all the anti-leak in creation would not aid him. Judge Timmony advised the accused to unload the animal onto someone else. "Don't do anything wrong," said he, "but fix him up and swap him." "I had a chance to swap him," said Schesbire, "but I couldn't rack up the boot, but you bet your boots I'll set him off him somehow, but cher honor, I will," and William ambled out a free man.

CAMPAIGN TEXTBOOKS.

That for the Republicans is Being Made in Washington.

VADE MECUM OF PARTY LORE

Campaign Speakers Always Depend Upon This Volume for Their Arguments and Their Facts.

Special Correspondence.

Washington, June 23rd, 1900.—O. P. Austin, the government chief of statistics, who, it is announced, will get up the text book for the Republicans this year, is an old hand at the preparation of statistics and political literature generally.

Before he was appointed to his present place he was a newspaper man, his specialty being politics and business affairs, and his acquaintance with the public men of the day, particularly those of his own party, is exceptionally varied and extensive.

CAMPAIGN TEXT BOOKS.

Whether the text book is really as important as national political managers imagine is a question, but there is no question that they consider it of supreme moment, and they aim always to make it a veritable vade mecum of the party's doctrines.

Not only does the writer thereof spend much time, labor and thought upon its preparation, but the members of the executive committee, particularly the chairman, and sometimes the candidate himself, study its construction almost tearfully in advance of publication, and often whole chapters are rewritten on the discovery, as it does all the arguments that the party leaders decide should be used and figures that, in the leaders' judgment, will fortify the arguments. Without doubt any man of bright intellect and the gift of speechmaking, even though not previously posted in political argument, could make a good campaign orator out of himself in a week's time if furnished with a text book of the average thoroughness and exhaustiveness.

THE STANDBY OF THE SPEAKERS.

As a rule, however, it doesn't go to the mass of the voters, but to the local leaders, the workers and especially to the campaign speakers. To them, if well prepared and well indexed, it is an invaluable companion, containing, as it does all the arguments that the party leaders decide should be used and figures that, in the leaders' judgment, will fortify the arguments. Without doubt any man of bright intellect and the gift of speechmaking, even though not previously posted in political argument, could make a good campaign orator out of himself in a week's time if furnished with a text book of the average thoroughness and exhaustiveness.

SLIPS IN TEXTBOOKS.

If it were possible, each committee would no doubt attempt to so restrict the circulation of its textbooks as to keep it out of hostile hands; but, as that can't be done, complimentary copies are almost always exchanged. As soon as the exchange takes place the heavy minds of each party proceed frantically to dissect the opposition volume, and you may know when this has been accomplished by the articles that are sure to appear in your favorite party newspaper holding up to scorn the Democratic or Republican textbook as the cause of defeat.

Sometimes this dissection causes consternation, for sometimes it reveals the fact that the textbook maker has misunderstood some vital point of party doctrine, or has made some statement so palpably erroneous as to be perfectly easy of refutation. There have been times when such a discovery has caused the pulling of the entire edition so far as possible, and the issuing of a new one. That happened two or three presidential campaigns ago, and the cost was staggering, but there was another reason for the new edition, and that was the lack of an index. It was the opposition that pointed out this lack, though within a day or two thereafter letters of protest fell like snowflakes on the committee chairman's desk from indignant spellbinders who found a textbook without an index about as bad as an ax without a handle.

WASHINGTON IN THE RECESS.

Washington will be quieter this summer and fall than it has been for many campaigns owing to the location of at least one and probably both of the congressional campaign committee headquarters in Chicago instead of the capital. Ordinarily the presence of these headquarters here keeps many of the big politicians here most of the campaign and calls many more to the capital on flying visits, but this year the recess will be unrelieved by their presence.

So far, however, Washington has been almost as lively since adjournment as when Congress is in session by reason of the delegates from the West and South who have been stopping in town on their way to the Republican convention at Philadelphia. Many of them have been accompanied by their friends, and the hotels have done a rushing business because of their presence. More than half the States of the Union have been represented by these flitting delegates, only New England, New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey being entirely out of the influence of the two big east and west trunk lines passing through the capital.
