FROM TUESDAY'S DAILY, DECEMBER 27.

Accidental Shooting.

Yesterday, at Ogden, a boy named Frank Graham dropped a gun which he was holding, and the weapon was discharged, the load tearing his heel off and badly lacerating his foot. His injuries are very severe.

Suicide.

Word comes from Provo that L. Jacobsen of that place committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself. He had been until recently confined in the Insane Asylum, but was released on having apparently regained his proper mental balance.

Hurt by a Fall.

On Saturday evening Mr. Preston Blair, of Ogden, was thrown from his cart while making a sudden turn, and struck on the frozen ground with great force. The blow inflicted a severe wound on his head and produced concussion of the brain. The result may be very serious.

Powder-Burned.

At Union, Salt Lake County, on Saturday, Albert Berrett was out shooting chickens. He was putting a cartridge in his gun when the shell exploded, the powder burning his face severely. It was at first thought that his eyesight was injured, but it was fortunately preserved.

Another Change.

Commencing on December 29th, Utah Central trains will leave Salt Lake City at 6:48 p. m. to connect with the Union Pacific east bound train; and at 10:20 p. m. to connect with the Southern Pacific west bound train, at Ogden. A new train, which connects with the Southern Pacific from the west and the Utah Northern accommodation train for the north, will arrive at Salt Lake at 9:35 p. m. The Atlantic express will arrive in Salt Lake at 1:20 a. m., ten minutes later than formerly.

Diphtheria Cases.

There are still two cases of diphtheria in the city—one in the Twenty-first and the other in the Seventeenth Ward. In the first named case, the diphtheric patches still continue to grow in the throat, but the patient does not seem to be affected in any other way, and now has a good chance of recovery. The other case is that of Miss Silver, daughter of Wm. J. Silver, Esq. She has been so severely afflicted that for a time she lost her power of speech. This has returned, however, and her general condition is such that there are strong hopes for her complete recovery.

Third District Court.

Proceedings before Judge Zane today: Sarah A. Graham vs. Joseph Graham; default of defendant; decree of divorce granted plaintiff. John M. Hurst vs. George Edgington; twenty days allowed to file notice of new trial. Emma Jorgenson vs. Ole Jorgenson; referred to E. T. Sprague to try and report findings and conclusion and judgment, at the convenience of parties, by stipulation.

Wm. Holland and Archibald Corsi were admitted to citizenship. Allen G. Campbell vs. Isador Morris; dismissed.

Stabbed by a Rough.

About 9 o'clock last evening George Williams, who was acting as door-keeper at Sheldon's Hall, Second South Street, was stabbed but not dangerously injured. A dance was in progress and a number of drunken fellows presented themselves for admittance. Williams refused, when one of the men began abusing him, and challenged him downstairs. The door-keeper unwisely accepted the challenge and followed the rough and two of his companions down. They reached a landing where the man who had been so offensive suddenly turned on Mr. Williams, stabbing him twice, one cut being just below the heart and the other near the left hip. A large pocket knife was probably the weapon used. The wounded man made his way up stairs, where he gave the alarm. A surgeon was summoned and dressed the wounds, which were at first thought to be serious.

Immediately after committing the crime the rough fled from the scene, and it was some time before the officers could fix on the right man, who is a resident of Blügham, known as Hynds. A vigorous search was instituted by the sheriff, police and deputy marshals. The police got on Hynds' trail, and one of them caught a glimpse of him on First South Street. The Theatre was just out, and the fellow succeeded in getting into the crowd and gaining on the officer, who followed him, both going at full speed, up through the Eagle Gate, where Hynds managed to evade pursuit. At about 2 a. m. today he went to Mrs. Eastman's and changed his clothing, and subsequently shaved his heavy mustache off to avoid identification. From that time nothing has been heard of him, but he is no likely to get away.

FROM WEDNESDAY'S DAILY, DEC. 28.

Pardoned.

The Governor has pardoned J. E. Larson, a resident of Sanpete County. He was convicted of grand larceny and sentenced to imprisonment in the penitentiary, from which place he was released yesterday.

The Inquest.

An inquest was held at Provo over the body of the young man who committed suicide on Monday by hanging himself. He was a cripple and always imagined that his club feet occasioned much derision for him. He had received a fair education, and manifested no signs of insanity until last summer, after he had been converted by the Salvation Army. When he was discharged from the asylum last week he was considered sane. The verdict of the jury is as follows:

Territory of Utah,
Provo Precinct,
Utah County.

An inquisition holden at the residence of Hance Johnson, in Provo Precinct, Utah County, on the Twenty-sixth day of December, A.D. 1887, before John R. Twelves, coroner of said county, upon the body of William L. Jacobsen, there lying dead, by the jurors whose names are hereunto subscribed. The said jurors upon their oaths do say, that the said William L. Jacobsen came to his death by strangulation, the act committed by himself while in a fit of temporary insanity.

A. L. TOWLE,
L. H. HARDY,
W. T. JONKES,
Jurors.
Attest: John R. Twelves,
Coroner.

Probate Court.

Palestine and the Jews.

Elder J. M. Tanner addressed the Saints at Provo on Sunday last, reporting his missionary labors, and in the course of his remarks gave his ideas of the fulfillment of prophecy in relation to the Jews returning to Jerusalem. He said that about twenty-five years ago the Jews throughout the world ridiculed the idea of the gathering of that people to the Holy Land, but soon after the time President George A. Smith went there and dedicated that land for the gathering of the Jews there had come a spirit of gathering among them. They had no idea a quarter of a century ago of the fulfillment of the promise to their forefathers, and not the least spirit of gathering, except occasionally an individual Jew desired to go to the Mount of Olives to be buried there. About forty years ago there arose a sect called Templars; they believed in the last days, according to prophecy, and that a people should gather so that the gospel of Jesus Christ could be taught in its fulness, as had been predicted; and that God would establish His kingdom upon the earth as Daniel had prophesied. These German Templars determined upon gathering, organized themselves, and decided upon Palestine as their gathering place. No sooner did they begin this work than the Jews looked upon the movement with jealousy. As long as the land was a waste, as long as no one made use of it, they did not care; but when the Templars commenced to gather the spirit began to work upon them, and they thought it possible that the Germans might go in and take the land of their forefathers to redeem it. Under this prospect they began to grow jealous, and soon after Brother Smith had dedicated the land the Jews started to colonize it, and then the Turks interested themselves to prevent it. The latter said it was dangerous and it meant the loss of that portion of their country. They therefore resisted the movement, and now no Jew can go into the land to stay. When one goes to Jaffa or any other sea coast town he is informed that he must take the ship again and go out; but if he goes to Jerusalem (as all are allowed to make pilgrimages there) he must give security that he will leave in 30 days; so there is no more colonizing there. But by the aid of a little backsheesh (money) some are able to make friends and enter the land to remain there. The officers are generally poor and willing to be bought, and permit here and there a Jew, not in sufficient numbers to cause suspicion, to go in. Baron Rothchild has interested himself in the matter and is aiding all he can to buy the land and establish the Jews in Armenia and other places. In these warlike times the Turks find it necessary to have arms and ammunition, and like to borrow money. The Jews are willing to lend on condition that they receive a grant of land, with the privilege of so many colonists. The Turks see the situation but want of money presses hard upon them, and they yield.

There are at present nine colonies of Jews established in different parts of Palestine, and although small it is a beginning. The all important question is, however, the disposition of the Jews, that is the orthodox Jews, to gather together again, and to reclaim the land of their forefathers. There is no doubt about that disposition existing today, and it is only a question of time when it will become general. The ball has begun to roll; the spirit among the Jews is to comply with the prophecies, and they are preparing now to do it. Of course there are obstacles in the way at present, but "God works in a mysterious way, His wonders to perform," and it is apparent that He is now bringing things about to fulfil His word regarding the reclamation of Palestine.

AN OUTRAGE AT TINTIC.

A Woman Shamefully Abused—A Riot.

Last evening Mrs. Marks, whose husband is engaged in mercantile business at Eureka, arrived in this city and filed a criminal charge before Commissioner Norrell, against certain men in Eureka. She tells a sensational story, which, as narrated in the presence of a representative of the News is substantially as follows:

On Monday, the 19th inst., Constable John Sullivan, of Eureka, went to her residence and informed her that judgment in the sum of $25 and costs had been rendered against her by default in United States Commissioner Hill's court at Provo, in a civil case in which she was defendant, and that he (Sullivan) had come to take possession of the house. Mrs. Marks says she told the constable to go down to the store and that she would pay the judgment in. This the constable refused to do. He stayed for ten minutes in which he entered the house, and says the constable told her that she could not have two minutes, and then left. Mrs. Marks was so frightened that she fell on the bed in almost a dead faint. In less than five minutes she discovered that of ten or a dozen men were surrounding her house. Sullivan again returned to the house, and finding it locked demanded that the doors be opened. Mrs. Marks refused to comply with his request unless he would disperse the mob. Sullivan then went around to the rear of the house and broke open the kitchen door with an axe. He entered followed by a man named Douglass, and the two dragged the woman from the bed, through the house over the fence and down the hill for some distance, over snow, brush and rocks. Mrs. Marks states that Douglass kicked her a number of times. Finally they got her to the office of the justice of the peace, where she was thrown on a bed in a bruised and partially nude state. Dr. Greer, of Payson, being present in the court, was summoned to examine the nature of her injuries.

In the meantime a crowd, under the leadership of Harvey Tompkins, made an attack on Mrs. Marks' house, tearing it down, throwing out the furniture and carrying off various things, such as cloths, dishes, etc.

Mrs. Marks says that when Sullivan and Douglass came in they each had a gun, and that Douglass swore that he would kill her, at the same time calling her foul names. He raised his gun and pulled the trigger, but for some reason the weapon did not go off. Over two hundred people witnessed the performance, which created women and children running in all directions for fear of being killed by a stray shot from the multitude of guns that were exhibited.

Later on Mrs. Marks paid the $25 and what costs the judgment called for, and the excitement quieted down. Mrs. Marks was given a room in Fat Shea's boarding house, where under medical treatment, she survived the terrible treatment inflicted on her. This morning Deputy Marshals Pratt, Franks and Cannon, armed with warrants left for Eureka to arrest Constable John Sullivan, the man Douglass, one Joe Ferguson and five others who were implicated in the affair. The officers are expected back with their men tomorrow.

Probably investigation will prove that Mrs. Marks story ought to be taken with some allowance, though there have evidently been some high-handed proceedings against her. She states that she sent seven messages in attempting to communicate with the officers of the law, but that Sullivan prevented them from reaching their destination and forbade any person to aid her in communicating with an officer. This, she states, is the reason why the facts in her case were not sooner made known.

A Good Well.

Charles Alfred, of Mill Creek, Salt Lake County, has just obtained one of the best flowing wells in this part of the country. It was sunk by Joseph C. Hamilton, on Mr. Alfred's premises, a 1 1/2 inch pipe being driven down 100 feet, at which point a fine flow of excellent water was obtained. The well purveys 70 gallons per minute, and the water rises above the ground, in a pipe, to a height of 56 feet.

Old Folk's Party.

The people of Almy Ward, Wyoming, gave a party and a feast, in honor of the old folks of the town, on Dec. 26th. A free invitation was given to every person in the place over 50 years of age without regard to sect or party. A highly enjoyable time was had. An abundance of good things were provided to eat, the ward hall in which the affair was held was tastefully decorated, and a Christmas tree laden with useful articles, which were distributed among the guests, was an attractive feature.

An Ingenious Level.

Mr. Carl E. Neilsen, of No. 407 W. Second South Street, in this city, is the inventor and maker of what he claims is a new style of instrument for leveling. It consists of a piece of walnut wood about 15 inches in length by three inches in width and three-quarters of an inch thick, in one side of which is fixed a recessed, circular metal plate having a diameter nearly the width of the stick. In the centre of the dial is the projecting end of an axle to which is affixed a pointer resembling the long finger of an ordinary watch. The point of this finger moves freely round the margin of the dial and the angle of elevation is indicated by it on a circular plate which surrounds the inner dial. The mechanism is extremely simple, the movement being actuated by means of an internal weight attached to the axle. Mr. Neilsen states that he has taken out a caveat for his invention and not being a man of means, would like to get some one sufficiently interested in the matter to enable him to complete his patent and realize something out of it.

TERRITORIAL ITEMS.

PULLED FROM LATEST EXCHANGE.

It is said that three inches of snow fell at Tucson and Phoenix, Arizona, on the 20th and that the weather was freezing cold.

A dispatch dated Yuma, Dec. 23d, says: The Gila City section house was destroyed by fire early this morning. Section foreman Edward Burke was fearfully burned, probably fatally. He was brought here for medical attendance. The cause of the fire was unknown.

About 10 a. m. on the 22d inst. at Laramie, in Wyoming, a man named Frank George was instantly crushed into a lifeless, shapeless mass by an accident in the Union Pacific yard. Deceased was engaged at the time in repairing one end of a box car which had been elevated preparatory to being loaded on a flat car for transportation to Omaha. While thus employed a switch engine backed up against it and tared the car off its supports back on to him crushing and mauling his body almost beyond recognition. Deceased was a single man about 28 years of age.

A dispatch dated Tacoma (W. T.), December 20, says: "Sixty-four immigrants arrived in Tacoma this morning from Collin County, Texas. They came through from Dallas, Texas, by the Texas Pacific road, and from Sacramento to Portland on the California and Oregon road. They were on the first through train that passed over the road. There were forty-four men in the party, twenty-five of whom were heads of families. The men, women and children marched up Pacific Avenue with their traps, and were taken charge of by a committee of citizens, and quarters secured for them. They are all farmers from the drought-stricken regions of Texas, and say they came here to settle.

At 9 o'clock on Christmas Eve, says the Laramie Boomerang, the east-bound train No. 20, a double-header, Phil Brophy, conductor, and Allen and Loper, engineers, was lying on the main track at the Aurora tank. She had just come in with twenty-three cars of coal and was to meet the second section of train No. 23 there. The latter was also a double-header and carried twenty-two loads of time freight and one empty. She was in charge of Conductor Williams and was drawn by engine 965, Crofoot, engineer, and engine 911, Thos. Lynch, engineer. It was a bright, moonlight night and a collision was the last thing anyone was anticipating. As 23 dropped down into Aurora, the loads kept bumping up toward the front and the air brakes were brought into use to check their speed, but at this critical juncture the air on one of the engines gave out and the speed was accelerated. The two big moguls, with their immense load, dashed across the east switch and down upon No. 20 with irresistible force. In less time, than it takes to write a sentence there was a crash heard above the thunder of the wheels and the four iron monsters were locked in a deadly embrace. The failure of the air brakes to work on No. 23 going down the hill into the station, the heavy load she had, and the well known dangerous character of the locality, probably account in a natural way for the wreck and ruin that made Christmas anything but a happy one for all concerned, destroyed tens of thousands of dollars' worth of the company's property, and seriously wounded Engineer Lynch and Brake-man Bodley.

THE OGDEN Herald disappears from view with today's number, and tomorrow the Standard takes its place. It is a fine, brisk, newsy and able paper, no matter under what name it sails, and Ogdens should be proud of it, as we have no doubt it is.
