THE GUINEA-PIG PROVED IT.

Drs. Lassar and Bishop, both noted scientists, took dandruff scales from the head of a student who was losing his hair and having made a pomade of them with vaseline, rubbed the same upon a guinea-pig and the pig became bald. Frank Yeaman, a lad of about 12 summers, residing at 713 Sixth East street, was seriously wounded in the neck this morning at the hands of Douglas Archibald, a playmate who was playing with a toy 22-caliber pistol. The gun is supposed to be a toy affair but shoots a small bullet with consider-able force. The boys were amusing themselves with the weapon when sud-denly it went off, and young Yeaman fell to the ground with the bullet in his neck. The police department was quickly notified and the boy was taken at once to the Salt Lake private hospi-tal, where Dr. Anderson attended to the ladie private tai, where Dr. Anderson attended to the lad's injuries. The wound is not regarded as a dan-gerous one, although it is feared that the jugular vein is partly severed. At last accounts the boy was resting easily, and it is believed he will be all right in a few days. few days. Young Archibald was a badly scared youngster when he saw what he had done, and when the police took the wea-pon away from him. He was not taken as the shooting was to the station, purely accidental.
