Gov. Perry's message, read before the Legislature to-day, says, though his appointment was made several months after that of other provisional Governors, South Carolina is now as far advanced in reconstruction as any other State; alludes to the new constitution as popular and democratic, inspiring the people with zeal and energy in developing the resources of the State; recommends fostering internal improvements and manufactures and the encouragement of foreign emigration; northern friends are also invited to come; election of the electors for President of the United States should be given to the people, and an early date fixed for the election of members of Congress, should those elected be in Washington; with their credentials, when the clerk calls the rolls, they cannot be excluded any more than those from Massachusetts; no man in South Carolina can take the oath without perjury; it is not the policy of the President to enforce this, and he believes it is not the policy of Congress; election is necessary for two United States senators, one for six years from the third of March last, and one for the unexpired term to March, 1867. He recommends issuing State bonds and selling them to pay the State debt, and to avoid present taxation for the organization of the militia.

The Tribune's Washington special says advice received at the Freedmen's Bureau to-day, from Mississippi, represented an unsatisfactory state of affairs existing in that State in relation to freedmen; many courts still refuse the admission of negro evidence, notwithstanding the proclamation of the Governor, and evince an intention to evade, in every way possible, the recognition of the rights of the freedmen.

Teachers for the freedmen, sent out by northern benevolent societies, are leaving their schools with the withdrawal of our troops, deeming it unsafe to entrust themselves among a people professedly their bitterest enemies.

Davis; after amendment to include all confederate prisoners, it was adopted by a heavy majority; an ordinance nullifying the ordinance of secession was adopted, and the resolutions of the secession convention, which were incompatible with the civil and military laws of the United States, were repealed; an ordinance to redistrict the State was adopted; seven Congressional districts are thus made. The Fenian Senate is now in session at the Astor House; members say everything is progressing finely. They stated that a military plan, by which the freedom of Ireland from British rule can be secured, was submitted and discussed by leading representatives; no decisive action was taken on it. It is further stated that Congress has perfected a great scheme for the redemption of Ireland, and that the most perfect unanimity prevails.

New York, 28.

A special to the Times, Washington 27, says a cabinet meeting to-day, of protracted length, was attended by all the secretaries for the first time in several months. It is reported that the recent correspondence between Minister Adams and Earl Russell was generally discussed, without reference to any action on the subject.

New York, 28.

from West Point, Miss., 26th, stating that Gen. Johnson has discovered most stupendous frauds on the Treasury Department, and has arrested Harrison Johnson, Special Treasury Agent at Columbus and all his sub-agents in three counties, and taken possession of the books and suspended their operations; it is rumored that the investigation will be damaging to high officials.

The World's special says dispatches received there state that the New Orleans convention to sustain President Johnson is a success.

It is reported that Caleb Cushing will supersede Mr. Adams in England, and that Mr. Adams will return and become Secretary of State.

Earl Russell will probably succeed him, Lord Clarendon taking the foreign office, but nothing official has transpired.

New York, 28.

E. B. Ketchum was arranged in the court of general sessions, before recorder Hoffman, to-day. He withdrew the plea of not guilty on the gold certificates and the indictment for forgery in the third degree, and put in a plea of guilty; it was agreed that his sentence should be suspended till he can be examined in the civil cases now before the court.

In regard to the Adams-Russel correspondence, the London News says it should not be forgotten that claims made by Spain against the American government, under similar circumstances were only settled by treaty, while those made by Portugal furnished material for argument for over thirty years. If powers such as Spain and Portugal in circumstances felt themselves bound to keep up the discussion till they obtained some sort of settlement, it is not probable that the United States will follow a different course; assuredly Lord Russell's refusal to refer the matter now in dispute will not settle them.

The Times says it is just possible, to avoid the payment of 200,000 in money, we may leave our opposition on a principle so unmistakable as to cause us, when the causes are reversed, and when the Americans are neutral, and we the belligerents, to suffer terribly in person and pocket. We do not apprehend war, for war in these days could not arise out of this business, but something nearly as bad may arise in future when the practice we have defended may be turned against us in ways that are hideous even to surmise.

The Star says Russell is anxious to save the maritime powers from responsibility for the injury which their subjects may have unwisely caused to belligerents, and has taken very dangerous ground for maritime nations, when they may in turn be the sufferers by such acts. Whatever view may be taken of the justice of the claims of the Alabama, we trust no British statesman will fall into the blunder of placing our commerce at the mercy of desperadoes, who may issue from neutral ports during some of our future wars. Earl Russell deserves all credit for his industry in endeavoring to quiet the mouth of Mr. Adams, by quoting what his grandfather said and did fifty years ago; but at the same time, security to commerce at the present day is a subject of the greatest importance to the people of England.

New York, 31.

A number of the Fenian Senate continued their session to-day; the proceedings were secret, but it was reported that agents were to be sent to Ireland at once, to organize for the great revolution which it is believed will take a practicable shape in a short time; it is also said the Fenians have received the endorsement of officials in this country whose names will lend not only inspiration to the movement, but will be a guarantee of its success.

It is said efforts are being made to effect the release of John Mitchell, in order that he may take an active part in the approaching Celtic Insurrection.

It is reported that Hampton Roads will soon be the rendezvous of a large and important fleet of our naval vessels; the steamers Vanderbilt and Monitor, which arrived there on Saturday, are the pioneers of this maritime gathering at this point; it is said the vessels are to be dispatched to squadrons in different parts of the world.

The Herald's letter from Messilla, Mexico 13th, states that Juarez was then at El Paso, and that the French were on the way to that place.

The Matamoras correspondent of the Herald, 25th, states that an attack on Matamoras by the Liberals commenced the Sunday previous; the fact of their being led upon the town in 3 lines of battle led to the belief that they were commanded by American officers, as they had never formed that way before.

New York, 2.

The London Times, 18th, says: We are sure our government may depend upon the support of the nation in maintaining the position it has taken up; if the American Government is determined to seek a quarrel with us, we cannot have one in which our rights are clearer or more unquestionable; if it is not we shall have saved ourselves, by the firm stand we are now making, from great degradation and vindicated, for the benefit of all mankind, that neutral position so seldom occupied by Great Britain in wars of the past, and so often we trust to be hers in wars of the future.

The Paris correspondence of the London Post says the politicians of the money market and the public generally read, with great interest, the published correspondence between the cabinets at Washington and London; most men come to the conclusion that no rupture will grow out of the demands of the American Government, but think England will make compensation in some way or other for the portion of damages done by the southern cruisers; that is the French view of the existing difficulties.

Washington, 2.
