

FRAGMENTS.

C. W. FISHBURN, Esq., is expected home from Cache County to-night.

The Exponent for November 1st, which has been out several days, is one that should be sought after. It is full of spicy reading.

Several Indian squaws were camped on the sidewalk in front of Z. C. M. this morning. Stockholders from the Reservation?

It doesn't take much to bluen the kind of "gentlemen" characters—the Tribune kind for instance—they do it for themselves.

A large load of hay, with the tire of the near forward wheel, of the wagon camped in the road nearly opposite the Eagle Gate to-day noon.

We are pleased to see that the unsightly tablet on the east wall of the Temple has been removed, and a new one, gilt lettered, put in its place.

Those hoodlums who made last night hideous with the trumpets and other implements of torture were the Tribune crowd, bellowing for Blaine.

REMEMBER the lecture by Mr. J. W. Price to-night, in the 14th Ward Assembly Rooms, commencing at 7.30 o'clock. Subject: "The Elements of True Manliness, or How to Succeed in Life." Admission free.

The course taken by the News, in exposing the abortion infamy, is applauded by Gentiles and "Mormons" alike, except a few "American gentlemen" and other immediate friends and sympathizers with the accused.

WEDNESDAY's edition of the News, though augmented, was speedily exhausted, 500 per copy being offered on the street for it. The dailies went off like hot cakes, but we have struck out an extra number of some, containing the principal articles, which are now to be had at this office.

J. H. CLARK, the cattle-man, was held up by three men last night and robbed of a gold watch and chain and $25 in money. They presented revolvers at him and he had to submit.

The robbers escaped in the darkness. They had laid in wait for him, knowing he had lots of money, but he didn't happen to have it on him. It happened just west of the City Hotel, opposite the 14th Ward meeting house.

A LARON manure pile, set on fire by mischievous boys, is slowly smoldering and smoking night after night on a vacant lot just back of the Church Foundry. The noxious stench arising from it is a great nuisance to the good people of the neighborhood, but there is no convenient way of getting water to it by bucket to put it out. The firemen would go a good deal if they were to drive the hose cart up there and give the pile a thorough soaking.

Immigrants.—This telegram was received to-day:

Council Bluffs, Nov. 7, 1896.

President John Taylor:

The company of emigrants leave here at 11 a.m. All well.

Arrested for Disturbance.—Ed. Butterfield was arrested last night for disturbing the peace. He was leader of the gang who created the tin trumpet nuisance on the streets. They had been warned by the Marshal to desist, but persisted in visiting the houses of prominent citizens and disturbing the rest of the inmates. They had taken General Waller and raised a hubbub, and were on the way to President Taylor's to insult him in like manner, when the arrest was made, and the crowd broken up. This, of course, is "another Mormon outrage" from a Tribune standpoint. The case was taken for 2 p.m. to-day.

Sugar House Ward, 2 p.m.
Farmers Ward, 2 p.m.

Tremendous Explosion.—About 10 o'clock last night, a terrible report, as if a broadside of cannon had been simultaneously discharged, went booming and rattling through the air over the city, and shaking the solid earth with all the force and reverberation of an earthquake. It was supposed by many to be one or more pieces of artillery, shot off at the Fort in announcement of the result of the national election, but the sound was so terribly loud and bore with it such a sensation of upheaval, as if a volcano had burst forth from one of the surrounding mountain peaks, that it left most of the citizens in doubt till morning as to the origin and true character of the alarming event.

It was finally ascertained that the terrific sound had been caused by the explosion of one hundred kegs of blasting powder, stored in a natural cave used as a magazine, some distance north of the Warm Springs, about 100 yards up the mountain-side from the office of the Utah Lumber and Cement Company. Pascoe & Varley, who have a contract for blasting for the company, had stored the powder in the cave, completely out of sight, they say, and were getting ready for every blast on Tuesday next. Mr. Frank Pascoe, the senior of the firm, believes some one set the powder off with a fuse, as other efforts have been made to injure the company by ill-disposed parties in that neighborhood. The explosion blew the cave entirely away, but fortunately no one was injured.

It is said that the blast on Tuesday would have been a two hundred-keg blast. In view of last night's uproar, made by 100 kegs, and unless in the regular explosion the sound would be less terrific, it is a question whether it is a good thing for such heavy discharges to be permitted by the civil authorities.

The loss to Pascoe and Varley is about $32. This theory of incendiaryism is borne out by a man who was passing that way at the time, and claims to have seen a streak of fire raining up the hill towards the magazine just previous to the report. The D. & R. G. Railway track, which is in the neighborhood, and several candidates there, were drenched completely. Perhaps they'll not hear from the magazine City Creek Canon. We haven't had quite enough of this sort of thing just yet.

JOSEPH H. EVANS CONVICTED.

AN EAST VICTORY FOR THE PROSECUTION.

As stated last evening, the forenoon session of yesterday in the District Court was devoted to the examination of the prosecuting witness, Harriet Parry, a willing witness, gentlemanly, who testified to having been married to the defendant in the Evans case, at the Endowment House in this city, May 8, 1890; she thought by Joseph F. Smith. She said she had a child by the defendant, born a year and a half after they were married. The witness was cross-examined at length by Mr. Rawlins, who, with Mr. Sheeks, represented the defendant, and this proceeding reached over into the afternoon session. The only other witnesses put on the stand, were Ruth Evans, wife of the defendant, and David Vaughan, her husband's brother.

The former testified that her husband's nights were always spent at home, and that he and Harriet Parry had both dealt to her that they were married. David Vaughan testified that while the defendant was in England, Mrs. Parry, Harriet's mother, had asked him if he did not know that Harriet Parry was married; he also said that Harriet Parry's reputation for truth was not good. Both sides now rested on evidence and the arguments began.

ZERA SNOW, Esq.,

Opened for the prosecution: He drew attention to the fact that the defendant and Ruth Evans had been shown to be husband and wife beyond doubt; the second marriage was definitely proved by the witness, Harriet Parry herself, she gave the date, the place, and the man who performed the ceremony; they left the Endowment House separately not knowing where they were watching for them; they rejoined in three weeks time and lived together as man and wife. You have the further testimony from Mrs. Parry that defendant was present at the time of the marriage, that of a child; that he paid the doctor's bills. Against these things there is not a single bit of testimony except that given by the last witness, Vaughan, who takes it, is a rejected story of Harriet Parry's. "Brother" Vaughan may tell what "Sister" Brown said, but "Brother" Vaughan's motive must be considered. The testimony of Ruth Evans, it must be remembered, is that of a wife who wishes to defend her husband and to save him from the consequences of a crime.

J. L. RAWLINS, Esq.,

For the defense, spoke as follows:

"I shall not attempt to appeal to the prejudices of the jury, as counsel has done, nor shall I for a moment believe that because a man comes upon the stand and swears to something, that he is telling the truth. I shall not attempt to make a conviction, my client, an aged and respectable man, when this marriage was alleged to have been contracted, was married to the woman Ruth Evans, a native of Utah, and with her has raised a large family; he is a mechanic, earns his bread by legitimate toil, and is not the man, it seems to me, gentlemen of the jury, who would take the pains and care and expense of a superstitious woman. The old woman, Mrs. Parry, does not bear the face, or the appearance, and her incredible tales do not have the semblance of truth and honesty; what is more probable than that, when she was asked to tell the truth, she chose a means to render the most offensive, honorable, and true story of this marriage with the defendant? The old lady Parry's stories are inexpressibly contradictory. It is to be believed that the defendant was married to Harriet Parry, as she affirms. Would not the wife have protested against this, and have we not her testimony that the defendant was not absent from his home a day? Has not Harriet Parry contradicted herself in her swearing that she never told anyone of her marriage? And would she have sworn to it, if she had not round the case? She says she had been courting her two years; she admits that she did not love him when she married him. And the ceremony! Her 'testimony' that she did not see the defendant after the marriage; that he remained away from her for three weeks; no arrangements for a future marriage; no provision for her at all. She thinks she was married by Joseph F. Smith, but she has never seen him since. She is a woman who does not know him for certain. She does not know the man who married her—think of it. The old woman Parry says the defendant never passed a night under her roof; the young woman Parry says he did. Several nights a year, I believe these two witnesses have lied; I believe that Mrs. Ruth Evans knew her husband was coming in with another woman, who would not have remained under her roof one moment. The old woman Parry, I do not cast discredit upon the testimony of David Vaughan; does any one doubt that the reputation of Harriet Parry was not bad after what the witness said? Gentlemen of the jury, I simply invite you to examine all the circumstances attending the case, and from them I think you will find that sufficient evidence has been produced to convince you, beyond a reasonable doubt of the guilt of the defendant.

W. M. DICKSON, Esq.,

U. S. Attorney, said in effect:

I am not surprised that Mr. Rawlins has inveighed against the prosecution, or that he has applied to the witnesses the epithets he has done—this is the usual course in cases where too strong a case has been established. We are all anxious, I know, gentlemen, to get out and see whether Blaine or Cleveland is ahead, and I shall not detain you longer, but this I will say, that no counsel is justified in applying the name of Harriet Parry to the defendant, unless he can lay his finger upon the circumstance which will justify him in making the assertion. Counsel has said that Ruth Evans should not have remained under the defendant's roof a single moment had she known of the second marriage. Counsel asked the day when the first wives of Utah will possess such courage, but we know they do not possess it today. If then devoted himself to reviewing all the evidence, aiming to explain away the testimony of Mr. Evans and Mr. Vaughan, and laying great stress upon that of the witnesses for the prosecution.

The Judge charged the jury briefly and they retired.

Mr. Dickson, who seems to have a mania for wanting people imprisoned before the time comes; and who seemed perfectly sure of it, and who, in the morning, after the verdict, that the defendant be remanded to the custody of the Marshal.

Mr. Rawlins objected, on the ground that such a step was unwarranted. Said he: "By our statutes the defendant is not even required to be present in court—he may be represented by several attorneys. Mr. Rawlins quoted in trial where accused persons have been remanded on the case going to the jury, they were being tried for felony, and not for a misdemeanor; he occupied considerable time in questioning authorities, and was in the middle of his argument when the bailiff announced that the jury were ready to come into court. They did in after having been out just fifteen minutes. Mr. Rawlins suspended his argument while the verdict was ascertained.

Mr. John F. Hardie, the foreman, in answer to the question if they had arrived at a verdict answered: "We have," and handed a piece of paper to the clerk who read from it that the jury found the defendant guilty as charged in the indictment. The jury were then discharged.

Mr. Rawlins continued his argument, drawing attention to the fact that the defendant had given himself up to the Marshal, it was not likely he would attempt to escape. Mr. Rawlins read several brief replies, Mr. Rawlins read several authorities to sustain his position, and the Court ruled that the defendant might continue on bail till he was sentenced. The time fixed for passing sentence is to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Last night's explosion rang an 18th Ward door-bell, but was not aped to come in.

LIZZIE EVANS.

SHE FLIES FROM THE PRATT RESIDENCE AND SEES JUSTICE AT THE HANDS OF HER BETRAYER.

The latest development in the Irons-Fowler-Evans scandal is indicated in brief by the head lines to this article. Last night City Attorney Fletcher had gone down to the residence of Mr. Mitts, to take a deposition from Miss Lizzie Evans, to be used at the preliminary examination, which has been set for Tuesday next. Himself, Mrs. Evans, Lizzie's mother, and the members of the family, had all left the room and were at supper downstairs. The sick girl, who seems to have planned the flight herself, taking advantage of her solitude, which it is said she requested as a boon, got up and put on her shoes and a linen ulster and made her exit from the house by a window.

The next heard of her she was at the house of a gentleman a few doors north of the Hotel Utah, having reached the way from the Seventeenth Ward, nearly a mile, in search of "justice or death." The house where Mr. Irons has been stopping being near this residence, she evidently mistook the place for the domicile of her lover. Her appearance at the hour of the evening, between 7 and 8 o'clock, with disheveled hair, night dress, pale face, torn apparel and skinned and bleeding limbs, deliciously calling for "Johnnie," and demanding reparation for her ruined name and prospects, as might be expected was a startling event to the inmates of the house. But they received her kindly, quieted her down and had her put to bed. Mr. Irons was sent for, and his arrival, though at first she greeted him with reproach and upbraiding, seemed eventually to satisfy her. She clung to his neck with all the intensity of the affection she evidently feels for him, and he treated her with reciprocal tenderness.

Officer Wm. Salmon was summoned by telephone from the City Hall, and on going up to where she was heard from the girl's own lips how she had escaped from the house of Mr. Pratt. Passing through the window which led out upon the roof of a summer kitchen, she threw herself into an apple tree growing near, and partly scrambled, partly fell to the ground. Scratched, bruised and torn as she was, and in a dangerous state of health otherwise, she fled through the streets like a wild woman, as she probably was then, until she reached the place where she was found.

In the meantime consternation ensued at the Pratt residence, when Mrs. Evans, on returning to her daughter's room after supper, and a very few minutes, having been told that Lizzie had fled, she alarmed these below and a hurried examination of the premises by Mr. Pratt and Officer Clayton, who was there, revealed the course her flight had taken. Abduction was at first the theory decided upon, as repeated efforts had been made by Mr. Irons' friends to get at Lizzie since the terrible affair of the abortion was brought to light, and it was well known that he was willing to marry the girl, which would close her mouth as to the theory decided upon.

The search for her was going on, a telephone message from Officer Salmon informed the anxious household immediately took Mrs. Evans up there in a buggy.

Mrs. Evans, who is a cool, determined woman, spoke very deliberately and firmly to her daughter, reproaching her for leaving the house and joining her betrayer, whom she surveyed with anything but pleasurable emotions, and seemed to be suppressing the pent-up wrath which manifested yearning for an opportunity of wreaking vengeance on his head.

Lizzie answered her mother in these words: "I love Johnnie with all my heart, and he loves me," showing that there had evidently passed between them already, perhaps, an agreement to marry.

Dr. Benedict now arrived, having been brought to the house, and Miss Evans was removed to St. Mary's Hospital, at 10.45 p.m., where she now lies. Her mother went with her, resolved not to leave her bedside while there for she has asserted that no marriage shall take place if she can prevent it. She is not a widow, as we were at first informed. Mr. Evans, Lizzie's father, is in Brigham City. He always opposed his daughter's coming to Salt Lake, and of course regarded what has taken place as fulfilling his prophetic visions in that respect. Mrs. Evans admits that she is partly to blame for giving her consent to Lizzie's coming to the city. The parents of John W. Irons have been in Salt Lake since Wednesday.

Dr. Benedict, on being reminded that Dr. Fowler, Irons' suspected accomplice, is a professional visitor at the Hospital where Miss Evans is now a patient, intimated that he would see that no collusion of the nature hinted at took place. The mother will also stand guard against anything of the kind, and will evidently not be a healthy pasture for those who may contemplate any underhanded proceeding, to attempt to carry it out in her presence. Lizzie has said that she will adhere to the truth of every word contained in the affidavit she has signed.

Grand School Lecture and Exhibition.—The school children, and all young people of the city are more or less excited about the lecture on Bonaparte, to be given at the Theatre, to-morrow afternoon, by Mr. J. A. Macknight, who has made a specialty of this attractive subject. The lecture has met with success in the East, in this city, at Park City, and at Ogden and Logan, and in view of Mr. Macknight's intention to give a series of lectures on educational subjects here and in other cities of the Territory, the interest taken by the school teachers is timely and will no doubt result in considerable benefit to their pupils.

The fine pictures which are shown in connection with the lecture are very interesting, beautiful and instructive, and assist in fixing on the mind the facts brought out in the descriptive treatise.

Mr. Macknight informs us that he has in course of preparation the second of the series, on the History of the United States, which will also be magnificently illustrated with views of the principal scenes in our country's history from the landing of Columbus to the present time. The prices have been placed at 10 and 15 cents, and the lecturer should be encouraged by a full attendance. In this connection we are in receipt of the following:

Editor Desert News:

The lecture on Napoleon by Mr. Macknight at the Theatre last night, was the earnest sympathy of every friend of education, and drew a full house, and only a scant account of its intrinsic worth, but as a probable preliminary to further lectures upon educational subjects, it will result in great benefit to our young people, and be the means of opening the way for the dissemination of the truth.
